YOUTSEY DYING; TRIAL GOES ON.

Legal Fiction Is Being Solemnly Performed Over Man Accused of Murdering Goebel.

PRISONER IS NOW INSANE.

For Nine Days He Has Been Unconscious of All That Is Passing at His Formal Trial.

MAY DIE AT ANY HOUR.

Judge Orders Court Bell to Stop Ringing for Fear of Rousing Him to Ravings Which Would Bring Death.

JURY SOON TO TAKE VOTE.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Though Henry E. Youtsey, the person most concerned, knows it not, the jury which is trying his unconscious form will soon be locked up to decide whether he killed William Goebel. The testimony for both sides closed this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the Judge instructed the jury.

For ten days Youtsey alternately has lain as senseless as clay or has filled the air with the ravings of a maniac. From paroxysm he has lapsed into a comatose state, and from that he has roused to expend his strength with the fury of a mad animal. Today, lest its sound should wake him to new outbreaks, the Judge ordered that the tolling of the courthouse bell should cease.

For one week the petit juryroom in the courthouse has been hospital, insane ward, and witness seat. By fiction of law, created for the occasion, the motionless body, visible on a protruding cot, has been for that time the prisoner at the bar.

In that fashion has this man been tried for his life; in that fashion has he been allowed the right of having his accusers confront him in open court. He did not hear the arguments of the prosecution made this afternoon in his nominal presence—addresses which called upon the jury to assess the penalty of his own life against him. Neither did he hear the equally impassioned pleas made in his defense by his attorneys.

Staring and unseeing his eyes looked from the level of his pillow through the door and into the jury box. His physical case now has reached such a desperate strait that the attending physicians fear an awakening to sanity will be the signal for the coming of death. Even if the weight does not lift from his reason it is declared his body cannot resist the wear and tear of its spasms much longer.

Does Not Know His Wife.

In the throes of a paroxysm last night he leaped from his couch, and, not unclosing his eyes, he seized a chair and broke it into bits before his guards could restrain him. In three days he has not given a sign of recognizing any one, not even the faithful wife, who has remained by his side from the first.

This trial of an insensate being has been allowed to continue because no precedent has been found which could govern the case. It has been argued by a prosecution, to which the Judge, Judge Cantrell, has given a willing ear, that the prisoner was present, that no rights were being lost to him by his condition, that there was no proof that time would improve his condition, and that there was no immediate danger to his life in the fact that he was unconscious. Against the legal plausibility of the contentions has been placed the spectacle, if not travesty, of Youtsey's body being made to take Youtsey's place on the witness stand.

When the name of the defendant was called as a witness the cot bearing his frame was drawn into the center of the room. His counsel, Attorney Crawford, who also is his half brother, addressed him various questions. The prisoner never moved a muscle. "See," said Mr. Crawford to Judge and jury, "he is so much clay." But no continuance of the trial was granted.

Cause of Youtsey's Collapse.

Youtsey's collapse began nine days ago, on Oct. 9. Arthur Goebel, a brother of the murdered man, had taken the stand as a witness to tell what he claimed was a partial confession of the crime made to him by Youtsey in the Frankfort jail on the night of his arrest. Youtsey seemed suddenly possessed and, shouted:

"That's a lie! The blood of no man is on my hands!"

He made desperate attempts to reach the witness, but was held back. Court adjourned in confusion, and Youtsey went to his cell crying "Three cheers for Goebel: Goebel is not dead! All the demons in hell cannot kill him!"

Except to call "Sally!" the name of his wife, he has not spoken since. The next day he was unconscious. At first it was thought he was shamming, but the expert medical testimony was that he had become suddenly insane, though it was deemed probable that the attack was only temporary. On Oct. 11 he was removed from the jail to the petit jury room, where he has since been. When court is not in session the door has been closed, and when the trial has been in progress the door has been opened and the cot pushed near it.

Case Ordered to Proceed.

The case was continued from day to day that week, but on Monday Judge Cantrell ordered it to proceed, basing his action on the grounds already mentioned. Physicians testified that as long as the patient remained unconscious he was in no danger.

"But," said one of them, Dr. Carrick, "if he regains consciousness he will have another breakdown." Against the hopeful medical view is the evidence of Youtsey's appearance, which bespeaks a steadily growing weakness. He took no nourishment yesterday or today, the attendants being unable to force even stimulants through his tightly closed teeth. All medicine has been administered hypodermically.

At the present time the prisoner is being attended by three physicians, two of them appointed by the court, by his wife and father, by a trained nurse, and by a guard of deputy jailers. At first, however, his rela-

ASKS M'KINLEY TO SEE PARADE.

Chicago Business-Men's Committee Invites President to Be in Chicago on Oct. 27.

NOT A PARTISAN AFFAIR.

Resolve to Do No Campaigning Need Not Be Violated by His Coming to the City.

GREAT DISPLAY IS ASSURED.

President McKinley may come to Chicago for the prosperity and sound money parade on Oct. 27. He has been invited by the Business-Men's committee having in charge the arrangements, and that body received information yesterday which encouraged its members to believe their hopes would be realized.

While President McKinley decided soon after being officially notified of his renomination not to do any campaigning away from home, the circumstances surrounding this affair are such, it is claimed, that it would in no wise be violating the decision. Partisan politics does not enter into the proposed demonstration beyond one division, which will be composed entirely of Republican campaign marching clubs.

At least this is what the committee having headquarters in the Woman's Temple declares. It points out that in the commercial and industrial divisions party lines have no place. In these divisions merchants and manufacturers, regardless of politics, are invited to participate. This being the situation, the committee contends that President McKinley could come and review the parade as Chief Executive of the nation rather than the nominee of his party for reëlection.

Senator Hanna and Charles G. Dawes, Controller of the Currency, were requested by the committee to use their influence with the President in inducing him to accept the invitation and be Chicago's guest for a few days. It is not contemplated that he would be called on to make an address unless he should indicate a willingness to do so.

Parade's Success Assured.

That the forthcoming parade will be a success is assured. Never in the history of Chicago, say the men who are working out the plans, have so many people asked the privilege of participating in a demonstration as in this instance. The committee is almost swamped with applications from mercantile and manufacturing concerns, as well as from McKinley clubs and Republican organizations of all kinds in all of the middle Western and Western States.

The somewhat celebrated Americus club of Pittsburg will be here 1,000 strong. The McKinley club of Polo, Ill., 500 men, and the Fremont association of Iowa, 600 strong, have asked to be assigned to places in the marching divisions.

The old Tippecanoe club of Chicago will be near the front of the line. Its members have passed away until there are only fifty of them left. If physically able all of them expect to turn out.

Bands in High Demand.

The demand for bands is greater than was ever before known. Clubs are forming in all the big stores, wholesale and retail, and in the big factories. Every club wants a band at its head.

George F. Stich promises to bring out 2,000 members of the Republican Workingmen's club.

Colonel Young, the chief marshal, has appointed the following additional division commanders:

Marshals—E. J. Kohn, wholesale clothing brigade.

W. S. Powers, furnishing goods division.

Hugh T. Reed was given a commission as Adjutant General on the Chief Marshal's staff, and Lieutenant Leo Wampold as chief of the aids.

As permission has been given for floats typifying the different branches of industry, this part of the display promises to be one of the most attractive features.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN IS REPORTED HOPELESSLY ILL OF STOMACH TROUBLE.

Disease, from Which He Long Has Suffered, Grows Worse in Paris—Trip to the Riviera Stopped and Physician Says He Is Doomed to Early Death.

[Special Cable to the New York World and The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Sir Arthur Sullivan is in Paris in charge of two attendants. He is on his way to the Riviera, but has been compelled by extreme weakness to break the trip and stop here for rest.

To some friends who called on him he expressed himself as sure that he will never be able to return home to England, realizing that his case is past help. He has long suffered from stomach trouble.

An eminent French physician, an old admirer of the distinguished composer of music, visited him today and afterward concurred in the invalid's conviction that he is doomed to an early death. It is uncertain how soon, if ever, Sir Arthur will be able to proceed South.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Oct. 19, 3 a. m.—Nothing is known in this city of the dangerous illness of Sir Arthur Sullivan beyond a brief telegram from Paris to the effect that the composer had stomach trouble. He has suffered more or less with the malady for some time, but there has been no previous hint of the disease taking a serious turn. Sir Arthur left for the continent several days ago, supposedly to take a little recreation, and the report that he is seriously ill is a complete surprise.

JOHN SHERMAN WEAKENING.

Aged Statesman's Condition Shows Lesser Chances of His Recovery—Afflicted with Irritating Cough.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—There was no material change in John Sherman's condition tonight, except that he showed signs of increasing weakness, with less chances of recovery. The patient is partly unconscious much of the time, rallying at intervals. He has a cough which irritates him a great deal in his debilitated condition. Dr. Johnson remained at the house again tonight.

OLEO PLANT IS RAIDED.

EIGHT MEN ARRESTED AND LARGE QUANTITY OF PRODUCT SEIZED.

Contents of Factory in State Street and a Store in Thirty-first Street Taken by Federal Officers Show an Extensive Business Has Been Conducted—Accused Are Charged with Making and Selling Bogus Butter Without a License.

Internal revenue agents yesterday raided an alleged illicit oleomargarine factory at 2334 State street, a store at 120 Thirty-first street, seized a large amount of manufactured product, raw materials, and machinery in both places, and arrested eight men, who are accused of making and selling oleomargarine without a government license. The men arrested are:

A. T. Dow, proprietor, 120 Thirty-first street.

N. C. Dow, manager, 3334 Rhodes avenue.

John Moody, assistant manager, 34 Thirty-third place.

F. K. Moody, employed as maker of oleomargarine, 34 Thirty-third place.

Daniel T. Koehn, employed as maker of oleomargarine, 5028 Marshfield avenue.

M. Jamieson, employed as salesman, 384 Forty-fourth street.

Henry Kruse, employed as salesman, 2945 South Park avenue.

T. Joyce, employed as salesman, 411 North Hermitage avenue.

Business Has Been Extensive.

Deputy Marshal Ames said last night that the raid was one of the greatest in the history of the Chicago Internal Revenue office. The Fertile Valley Creamery company is the name under which the concern has been conducting an extensive business.

Assisted by Deputy Marshals W. E. Cass and D. A. Fraley, the revenue officers, McGinnis and Martin, visited the factory at 2334 State street in the afternoon. There they found F. K. Moody and Daniel Koehn at work making the oleomargarine. The men were at once placed under arrest and a further investigation of the place made. In the basement and rear of the factory building seven barrels of neutral lard, valued at $30 each, were found.

In addition to the lard in the barrels a can containing 100 gallons, or about 800 pounds, of melted neutral lard was seized, and also 250 pounds of the illicit product which was in the process of manufacture. About 1,200 pounds of pure butter for mixture with the neutral lard and fifty-seven tubs containing 1,500 pounds of the completed oleomargarine product were also discovered at the factory.

Complete Outfit Seized.

All equipment necessary to the manufacture of oleomargarine on a large scale was found, including shelves, butter troughs, butter baths, salt, butter coloring, and butter workers. After making a seizure of the contents of the place as evidence F. K. Moody and Koehn were taken to the office of United States Marshal Ames.

The Deputy Marshals and revenue officers then proceeded to the store operated under the name of the Fertile Valley Creamery company, at 120 Thirty-first street. There the proprietor, A. T. Dow, the manager, N. C. Dow, and the assistant manager, John Moody, were arrested. In the store was found 2,000 pounds more of the oleomargarine of the same make as the product of the factory.

The officers then waited for the return of the remaining men, who were in various parts of the city selling the factory product. As they came they were arrested.

How long the factory has been in existence is unknown to the revenue officials. From the extent of the equipment they believe that its operations have extended over a period of several years, and they admit that it may have been running even a dozen years or more. With all paraphernalia necessary to an outfit of 900,000 pounds a year how widely its product has been scattered throughout the country is still a matter of conjecture with the officers.

SLANG AT THE UNIVERSITY.

Professor Thatcher at the Midway Institution Provokes Smiles Among the Students by Use of Apt Phrases.

The report that a petition had been circulated by the young women of Professor Thatcher's class at the University of Chicago asking him to quit using slang in his lectures proves to be unfounded. While the professor is liberal in the use of slang, the students have not objected so far, and judging by their appreciation of his apt phrases it is unlikely that he will be asked to stop. Such remarks as "he is the whole thing," "he was on the make," "any old thing," are frequently heard, but always used in such a way that they provoke smiles. So far as calling the students "you" and "you in the third seat," which was said to be so objectionable, Dr. Thatcher accounts for that by the largeness of his class, there being about one hundred altogether. At the beginning of the quarter he announced that owing to the difficulty of remembering so many names he would not try to do so, as he would be sure to mix them and cause more confusion than if he did not attempt it. For that reason he has been calling them "you."

POORHOUSE AIDS GALVESTON.

Dunning Adds Its Mite for the Relief of the Texas Flood Sufferers.

The inmates of the Dunning poorhouse and insane hospital, aided by the county employés who care for them, have raised $84 as their contribution to the Texas relief fund, and yesterday Superintendent Lange turned over the amount to D. D. Healy of the Relief committee. It represents for the most part all that the 2,500 persons in the institution have been able to scrape together in the last few weeks. Thirty of the inhabitants of the poorhouse formed a relief society, and gave up smoking and other luxuries to swell the fund.

Commissioner Reynolds, secretary of the Galveston Relief committee, yesterday morning telegraphed Chairman McVittie of the General Relief committee at Galveston, that a draft for $30,000 had been mailed to him. Governor Sayers of Texas was notified at the same time that a draft for $1,162 had been mailed him for use in relieving the sufferers outside of Galveston.

GIVES POWER TO IMPROVE RIVER.

Judge Chetlain Holds That Sanitary District Has Jurisdiction Over Both Canal and Stream.

UPHOLDS BOND ISSUE.

Decision, if Sustained, Will Enable Drainage Board to Unite with City in Benefiting Lake Commerce.

APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

By a decision of Judge Chetlain yesterday, upholding the legality of the $2,500,000 bond issue of the Sanitary District, the Drainage Trustees were held to have jurisdiction over the Chicago River as a part of the drainage canal. The decision is of consequence to the extent that, if sustained by the Supreme Court, it will enable the Drainage Trustees to unite with the city in river improvement necessary to the maintenance of an adequate flow of water in the canal, which will carry with it benefits to lake commerce for which the city is working.

An appeal from the decision has been prayed, and the case will be taken to Springfield next week. A final decision is expected to follow soon after the case has been taken up, and on the eve of an election the Drainage Trustees may find themselves vested with additional powers. Jurisdiction over the river to the extent of making it an adequate adjunct to the canal, capable of supplying the increasing volume of water demanded by statute, carries with it the power to aid the shipping interests which have suffered by the decline of the river.

The limitation of bonded indebtedness—$15,000,000—will bar the Drainage Trustees from any further action at present than that contemplated in the last issue of bonds. The river will need additional improvement as the population of the city increases and the required volume of water grows. Under the decision, if sustained, the power to make the improvements will rest with the Drainage Trustees.

Holds River Part of Canal.

In his decision Judge Chetlain said in part: "The requisite water cannot be obtained, under the present conditions, to comply with the provisions of the law. The power was given to the trustees to widen and deepen the river to give the required flow of water. The Chicago River is a part of the drainage canal and the deepening and widening of its channel is clearly within the power of the Drainage Trustees. If the assessed valuation of the property in the district, at the time of the contraction of the debt, is enough to cover the additional indebtedness, that is sufficient to validate the bond issue.

"On such a point as this, where the trustees seek to continue the work of completing the canal, I hold that they have continuing power to borrow up to $15,000,000. In my opinion section 12 of the act is for other purposes than section 9, which it seems to oppose. The demurrer to the bill is sustained and the bill dismissed."

Sustains Bond Issue.

The bonds which were called in question have been bid for by the New York Security and Trust company, which has made a deposit with the Treasurer of the sanitary district. The petition for an injunction to restrain the issue was filed late yesterday afternoon in the Superior Court by Attorney John S. Miller, representing John H. Bradshaw, a taxpayer of the sanitary district.

Attorney Charles X. Gilbert, counsel for the sanitary district, immediately filed a demurrer to the bill, and it was argued at once before the court. An injunction to restrain the issuance of the bonds was asked upon the ground that section 12 of the sanitary district act limits the tax which can be levied for the district to one-half of 1 per cent of the assessed valuation of the district. If the bonds be issued, it was argued, the interest on them will exceed the tax which can be collected under this section.

It was argued in support of the bond issue that the widening and deepening of the Chicago River was a part of the original plan for the canal and was the object for the issuance of the bonds. The point was raised that in order to permit the canal to carry the volume of water prescribed by the law it would be necessary to widen and deepen the river. This view was sustained by Judge Chetlain in his decision.

AMEER FLEES FROM CHOLERA.

Ruler of Afghanistan, His Army and Court, and Most of the People Driven from Kabul.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Oct. 19, 3 a. m.—A Times special from St. Petersburg says:

"The Russian medical department announces that an epidemic of cholera broke out in Djebal, Abad, and Kabul, in Afghanistan, beginning in June. It produced so rapid an increase of the mortality rate that on June 20 the Ameer, Abdurrahman Khan, was induced to leave Kabul with the members of his family. He was followed by the troops of the guard and all the government establishments were closed.

"Four thousand five hundred persons succumbed to the disease in Kabul. Many of the inhabitants took to flight, and the panic spread the epidemic eastward.

"It is rumored that cholera has also appeared at Ghazni, Kandahar, Jalalabad, Badakshan, Faizabad, Shignan, and between Kabul and Kara."

MARY E. WILKINS TO MARRY.

Announcement of Her Engagement to Dr. Charles Freeman Reveals Pretty Romance.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—A romance in literary life became known today, when Miss Mary E. Wilkins, the writer, admitted that she was to be married shortly to Dr. Charles Freeman of Metuchen, N. J. The wedding is to be a quet, home affair.

Years ago she met Dr. Freeman in Metuchen while visiting a friend. The betrothal followed, but was kept secret. Difficulties arose, however, and at one time it seemed as if complete separation was inevitable, but a year ago last summer it was all arranged.

Dr. Freeman visited Miss Wilkins in her cottage in Plymouth, where she was spending the summer, and since that time all has gone as they wished.

DOWIE FACES A RIOT.

MEDICAL STUDENTS OF LONDON BREAK UP HIS MEETING.

Chicago Zionist Attempts to Preach on Faith Healing and His Audience Starts a Free Fight, in Which the Doctor Seeks Safety in Flight While His Bouncers Engage in a Free Fight with the Crowd—Police Arrest Leaders.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Oct. 19, 3 a. m.—Dr. Dowie met with ignominious defeat yesterday. Four hundred medical students attacked his afternoon meeting at St. Martin's Town Hall, and, although the healer's bouncers fought valiantly, they broke it up and drove Dowie to cover.

Dowie's lack of humor and diplomacy, together with his attacks on the London press, is responsible for the popular resentment against him. He came to London with the notion that he could not only browbeat the people into adding gold to his already well-filled coffers, but that he could run his meetings according to his own ideas.

The British people are long on precedents and are always ready to combat any interference with them. Hence, when Dowie undertook to deprive his audience of its right to heckle him he struck a snag. He declared he would allow no interruptions, and added fuel to the feeling against him by denouncing the Church of England, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Pope, the Masonic fraternity, and the press. The newspapers could not overlook these aggressions, and ever since the healer began his meetings have not hesitated to score him. His tirades are fully reported and each article has carried more or less editorial comment, warning Londoners that Dowie's one aim was to squeeze money out of the credulous. One paper dubbed him "the prince of humbugs."

Dowie Starts Trouble.

Yesterday Dowie announced an address on faith healing. An audience of perhaps 300, mostly old women, was on hand as usual. Four hundred students from different hospitals were also present. Dowie was slow to appear, and for half an hour the students indulged in pleasantries at the healer's expense. They exhorted him to "buck up," and when not singing popular melodies were shouting.

Finally Dowie presented himself and tried to shout down the students. He might as well have attempted to check a cyclone. To the voices of the students was added the noise of trumpets, rattles, and whistles.

Dowie, as usual, lost his temper, and implored some one to bring the police. Seven "bobbies" fought their way in, cut out three students, and marched them off the premises.

Healer Runs Away.

This only incited the rest to further uproar, in the midst of which one student screamed:

"What about a collection, old Money Grabby?"

Dowie replied that there would be no collection that day and declared the meeting at an end.

Having dismissed the faithful, the healer bolted through a side door. He was just in the nick of time, for, with a yell, "We want Dowie," the students made a rush for the platform. At its foot fifty of Dowie's bouncers met them. Then ensued a scene of confusion. Sticks and fists were freely used on heads and faces, the furniture flung to the walls, and upon the cleared space the combatants tore and struggled in wild, fierce fighting. The police finally gained the upper hand and the students were dispersed.

The Express says it understands that the Council of Medical Defense union met yesterday to formulate a protest against the letting of St. Martin's Town Hall to such people as Dowie. The Town Hall committee meets in the morning, when, with representatives of Scotland Yard, the desirability of allowing further faith healing meetings will be discussed.

WILL MAKE NEW TREATIES.

Ask for Armistice and Withdrawal of Troops as Soon as Reparation Is Agreed Upon.

PROPOSALS REFUSED BY FRANCE.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Oct. 19, 3 a. m.—A Times special from Pekin, dated Wednesday, Oct. 17, says:

"Yesterday Prince Ching and Earl Li Hung Chang addressed a circular note to the Foreign Ministers formulating proposals for a preliminary convention on the subject of peace negotiations. The note contains five articles:

"1. China expresses regret over the recent occurrences and promises that they shall never recur.

"2. China admits her liability for the payment of indemnity.

"3. Regarding commercial treaties, China is willing to reaffirm or modify old treaties or to make new ones.

"4. These general principles being approved, China asks that the Tsung-li-Yamen be permitted to resume its functions and that the foreign troops be withdrawn when the various items of indemnity have been arranged.

"5. Now that negotiations have begun, the foreign powers should declare an armistice and cease military actions.

"The covering dispatches again impudently ascribe the recent occurrences to the Boxers, make no mention of the concurrence of the imperial troops in the outrages, but admit that the Boxers received support from Princes and Ministers, who have since by imperial decree been ordered to punishment in accordance with Chinese law.

"The tone of the dispatch is characteristically arrogant, as if the position were that China is offering terms, not Europe dictating them.

"Foreign envoys in China declare that the decree recently telegraphed to Europe purporting to banish Prince Tuan and to order the execution of others is a fabrication."

France Rejects Proposals.

According to advices from Paris received during the night the French government has already rejected the Chinese suggestions and demanded the punishment of Prince Tuan, Prince Chwang, Kang Yi, and Tung Fu Siang, adding that as long as their heads had not fallen it was impossible to cease hostilities.

Commenting editorially on the attitude of Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang, the Times says:

"To whatever cause this attitude is due it is a bad augury for the progress of the negotiations, which cannot be fruitful until China has been taught her place. M. Pichon has given her the answer her impudence deserves."

Another Times special from Pekin says:

"M. Pinchon, the French Minister to China, is seriously ill.

"There is much alarm in Chinese circles over the news of the outbreak of an antidynastic rebellion near Canton.

"The Russian Legation is expected to make an early return to Pekin."

News Confirmed in Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The Hovas agency has received the following dispatch from Pekin:

"The diplomatic corps has received a joint note from Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching saying that it is time to end the present situation and to treat for peace, and that the Princes and Ministers who were accomplices of the Boxers will be handed over to the courts to be judged and punished according to Chinese law.

"In their quality of plenipotentiaries Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching offer to treat for peace and accept the principle of indemnities for the legations destroyed. The losses are to be estimated by delegates of the powers.

"European nations can be accorded fresh commercial advantages on the old treaties modified, but, as the requirements of the powers vary, each power must formulate its own.

"The plenipotentiaries demand an immediate cessation of hostilities because of their offer, and request an interview with the Tsung-li-Yamen for Oct. 21.

Leaders Must Be Beheaded.

"Replying to the note, M. Pichon, the French Minister, said that China, having recognized that she had violated the law of nations, was bound to accept, for that reason, the responsibilities involved. Consequently he demanded that exemplary punishment be inflicted upon the principals guilty—namely: Prince Tuan, Prince Chwang, Kang Yi, and Tung Fu Hsiang—adding that so long as their heads had not fallen it was impossible to cease hostilities."

Conger Sends the News.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—Minister Conger today communicated by cable the substance of certain propositions advanced by Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang as a basis for the conduct of negotiations for a settlement of the Chinese trouble.

The Chinese government already had prepared the way for these by a preliminary action looking toward the punishment of Chinese officials guilty of complicity in the Boxer uprising and, while the text of Mr. Conger's communication is not made public, it is believed that the last Chinese advance is addressed to some of the propositions contained in the French note, being in the nature of counter-proposals.

It was learned at the State department that Mr. Conger's previous instructions fit him perfectly to deal with the new phase of the Chinese situation developed by the general acceptance of the French note as the basis for present action.

Yesterday M. Thiébaut, the French Chargé here, called at the State department and proposed to the Secretary the immediate institution at Pekin of negotiations for a settlement, and it appears that the Secretary then agreed to do his part.

Most of the powers have accepted the French note with reservations, but it is said that they all agree upon a sufficient number of points of the first magnitude to warrant the assembling of the diplomatic body at Pekin. It is probable that to this body will be referred the latest Chinese counter-proposition, received today by cable from Mr. Conger.

Accept French Proposals.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Russia, Austria, Germany, and Great Britain, having already replied affirmatively to M. Delcasse's note, he is notifying the powers of the acceptance of the first note and is asking each of them to instruct their Ministers at Pekin to begin peace negotiations. Favorable replies are expected from all. M. Pichon, the French Minister at Pekin, therefore, has been instructed to place himself in touch with the Ambassadors and Chinese emissaries for the purpose of opening negotiations at the earliest moment.

Allies at Pao-Ting-Fu.

PEKIN, Wednesday, Oct. 17, via Tien Tsin and Shanghai, Oct. 18.—The Pekin column of the Pao-Ting-Fu expedition arrived at a point six miles south of Chi-Chow yesterday without encountering opposition. They found the heads of fourteen boxers on the walls at Chou-Choon and they killed seven of the imperial troops.

Field Marshal Count von Waldersee has arrived here and has been accorded full military honors. He was accompanied by an escort of international troops to the palace of the Dowager Empress.

Troops Meet No Resistance.

TIEN TSIN, Oct. 18, via Shanghai, Oct. 18.—A courier reports that the British column of the Pao Ting Fu expedition reached the walled town of Wang Chia Kou on Oct. 15, meeting with no resistance, and that the other columns have also been unopposed.

The natives are friendly and supplying food to the troops.

The Taotai of Wang Chia Kou asserts that a body of troops, supposed to be French or German, dispersed a force of Boxers around We Nan on Oct. 9, inflicting severe losses and burning a number of villages.

General Chaffee has ordered two companies of the Ninth United States Infantry to garrison Tien Tsin.

The provisional government of Tien Tsin has sentenced six Boxers to death.

KING LEOPOLD DINES IN STATE.

President Loubet of France Gives a Royal Banquet to the Belgian Ruler.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Grace Corneau.]

PARIS, Oct. 18.—President Loubet tonight gave a grand official dinner in honor of King Leopold of Belgium. The dinner was followed by a reception and private theatricals on a lavish scale. The Belgian King is enjoying himself in Paris in his own way. Today he won 21 louis at the races and insisted on standing in line and receiving the money himself with boyish pleasure.

Repeals a Gallifet Decree.

Minister of War André has repealed the decree issued by his predecessor, General Gallifet, forbidding the reading of anti-governmental papers at the officers' clubs. Army officers may now read these papers, the only condition being that the ministerial papers be also admitted to the club reading-rooms. The new order does not include the soldiers and sous-officers, who must continue to read Figaro and the Socialist papers, to the exclusion of all others.

Like the Wilson Case.

Another Wilson case, on a smaller scale, developed in the courts today when M. Sabathier was accused by M. Carre of manipulation of funds confided to his care. The defense declared that by the consent of Carre the money was given to Deputy Casille, now dead, to secure the cross of the Legion of Honor for Carre.

Plague at Calais.

Dispatches from Calais announce the arrival of a case of the plague at that port on board the Dolphin, an English steamer. The vessel has been disinfected, and orders have been sent to disinfect all steamers arriving from English ports.

SWORD OF HONOR FOR BULLER.

British General Tells of the Difficulties He Faced and Defends His Own Strategy.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Pietermaritzburg correspondent of the Daily Mail wires as follows:

"In his speech returning thanks for the sword of honor, Sir Redvers Buller made a spirited defense of his strategy. He said:

"'I found Mafeking and Kimberley beleaguered and the two main avenues across the Free State, Bethulie bridge and Norvals Pont, in the hands of the enemy, with Ladysmith nearly surrounded. If I had waited for the army and then advanced on Bloemfontein it would have been at least twelve weeks before I could have exerted any influence on the situation.

"'In that time the Boers would have completely overrun and occupied Natal, and what would have been the effect of that on Europe and the British people?

"'I knew that if I failed to relieve Ladysmith,' he exclaimed, 'I should lose the supreme command. I lost it, and rightly, I think. But I had taken on the task and was bound to see it through to a conclusion.'"

WILL NOT WELCOME KRUGER.

King Leopold and the Belgian Government Will Hold Aloof from Pro-Boer Reception.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Arthur L. Clarke.]

LONDON, Oct. 19, 8 a. m.—A Times special from Brussels says:

"It is stated on good authority that King Leopold and the Belgian government will absolutely keep aloof from the reception being organized in honor of Kruger's arrival by the pro-Boer Brussels societies.

"The government considers Kruger a private visitor and will take measures to prevent all anti-English demonstrations."

BOERS WILL NOT STAY PACIFIED

Burghers Continually Tear Up Parts of Railroad and Cut the Telegraph Wires.

PRETORIA, Oct. 18.—The Boers are daily tearing up portions of the railroad and cutting the telephone and telegraph wires. Their attacks are intolerable.

The repairing linesmen cannot leave the garrisoned points without considerable escorts.

The only remedy seems to be to corral all the burghers and deport them, as apparently none can be trusted.

Little Fire at the Exposition.

KAISER THANKS VON HOHENLOHE

Emperor William, in an Autograph Letter, Accepts the Resignation.

VIEWS OF BERLIN PRESS.

Papers Fair in Comment and Silent as to Von Buelow's Policy.

FRENCH EDITORS PLEASED.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Emperor William has written to Prince Hohenlohe an autograph letter yielding to the Chancellor's request for relief from his official duties and expressing the warmest thanks for his fidelity, distinguished services, self-sacrificing devotion, and unvarying faithfulness.

The retirement of Prince Hohenlohe is the principal theme of discussion here. The Agrarian and Liberal press says the Chancellorship has practically long been vacant. The press generally adopts an expectant attitude, and there is much curiosity as to Count von Bülow's policy in respect to the Prussian Diet and the imperious demands of the junker squirearchy. The general feeling is that a strong, young statesman becomes the responsible chief in command of the state and empire.

The papers are generally fair toward Prince Hohenlohe and refrain from anticipating the policy of the new Chancellor. They assume that Count von Bülow's holding of the two offices will be only temporary, and that, in any event, he will devote his attention chiefly to foreign affairs.

Resignation Comes Suddenly.

Today it was hinted that Prince Hohenlohe decided to resign only after he saw Emperor William at Homburg. The Berliner Neueste Nachrichten says:

"Prince Hohenlohe declared on Friday that he had no intention to resign, since resignation might appear to be a deserting of the colors; and on Saturday he stoutly asserted that he intended personally to justify in the Reichstag his failure to convene that body in special session."

In this connection it is significant that the Berliner Post, in which Prince Hohenlohe is understood to be a stockholder, asserted in this morning's issue that his resignation was improbable, inasmuch as there was no reason for it.

The Boersen Zeitung regards as the main cause of the resignation an unwillingness to assume responsibility for Emperor William's policy in China.

Dealing with Prince Hohenlohe's record, the press generally considers the first years of his Chancellorship to have been more fruitful than the later. The Cologne Gazette asserts that "only later generations will comprehend the importance of Prince Hohenlohe as a check upon the Kaiser."

Praise for His Achievements.

The Berliner Post, after declaring that he "largely succeeded in restoring harmony among state-conserving parties," mentions among his achievements the civil code, the reform of military court procedure, and naval enlargement. The Kreuz Zeitung denies that the Conservatives felt any enmity toward him.

The Agrarian press comments bitterly upon Prince Hohenlohe's liberalism and his resistance to Agrarian demands. The Tages Zeitung says the retirement is not an event of special importance. The Staakburger Zeitung remarks that "Germany recently passed through a Chancelloriess period."

Prince Hohenlohe, who is at Homburg today, is described as appearing depressed. He will not return to Berlin but will go to Baden Baden.

French Editors Are Pleased.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune by Grace Corneau.]

PARIS, Oct. 19, 3 a. m.—The French press receives the news of the nomination of Count von Bülow as Chancellor of the German Empire with much satisfaction. Le Temps says his well-known moderation will have the tendency to weigh down the erratic tendencies of the impetuous Kaiser.

SHOOTS SWEETHEART'S FATHER

Dr. C. A. Beck, in Duel with W. R. Barton, Who Forbade Him His House, Inflicts Fatal Wound.

Columbus, Ind., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Dr. Conda A. Beck shot and mortally wounded William R. Barton, an old soldier, at noon today during a duel in the main street of Waynesburg, a town about twelve miles distant from this city. Beck and Barton quarreled yesterday, and when they met again today both drew their pistols and fired two shots at each other. Beck's bullets entered Barton in the abdomen and near the heart. Beck was slightly wounded in the neck. Physicians say that Barton cannot recover. The quarrel grew out of Barton forbidding Beck to call upon his daughter.

Beck was tried and acquitted for killing a former sweetheart, named Grace Cohee, at Newbern, this county, six years ago. A practical joke was played upon the young man and in his excitement he shot Miss Cohee. Before she died she exonerated him from all blame.

It is said that Dr. Beck was engaged to be married to Miss Barton. He is 28 years old, popular, and successful. He has been admitted to bail. Beck claims that Barton fired the first shot.

DENY DOUGLAS STORY CHARGE.

State Department Officials Have No Proof That Webster Davis Was in the Pay of the Boers.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—"I have declined to discuss that matter and shall not discuss it now," said Secretary Hay when asked if there was proof in the files of the State department that Webster Davis had received $125,000 for starting the pro-Boer agitation; that United States Consul Hollis at Lourenzo Marquez bought contraband stores for the Boers during the war; that Consul Macrum was in the pay of the Transvaal government; and that Consul General Stowe was offered a bribe.

Questions propounded Secretary Hay in regard to the existence of the papers in question failed to throw any light on the matter.

Another official of the department said: "There is absolutely no proof of the charges against Davis, either of an official or unofficial character."

This official added, however, that he had a number of letters of a private nature which told exactly the same story as telegraphed from London.

LIPTON TALKS OF RACES.

SAYS THERE WILL BE FIVE CONTESTS, NOT THREE.

Challenger for America's Cup Delighted at the Prompt Acceptance of His Proposal for a Renewal of the Competition Next August—Explains Some of the Disadvantages Under Which He Labors and Expresses His Confidence in Fair Play.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Misapprehension having arisen over the wording of Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge, Sir Thomas says the challenge provides for five completed races, and not three, as might be inferred from the wording. In fact, it is exactly the same as the conditions of last year, unless, as was the case last year, the result can be achieved in three races.

It is now understood that Shamrock II. will be built by the Hendersons on the Clyde, and that Sycamore will be its skipper, with Mr. Jameson in general charge.

Sir Thomas Lipton will take both the new and old Shamrock across the Atlantic.

The contracts for building Watson's new craft are not yet closed, but it is expected that work on Shamrock II. will start shortly.

Sir Thomas hopes to arrive in the United States about the middle of July. He said today he was delighted that his challenge had received such a prompt and satisfactory answer. He added:

"The only difference mentioned—that of extending the time of the start from 11 to 2 o'clock—seems to me a good idea, fair to both sides, and tending to produce less delays and better sport. It is the matter of delays which I regard as my chief handicap.

Admits One Disadvantage.

"Crossing the ocean does not bother me a bit, for the boats I build can cross any ocean, and so could Columbia. It is the loss of time and loss of opportunity in tuning up necessitated by changing from a yawl or jury rig to racing trim which, as I consider, takes it out of a boat far more than the actual trip across. I shall have one advantage this time which has never been secured by an English challenger, that of having a boat which has already raced on the other side with which to test my new yacht. I regard this as an inestimable help."

"Suppose, Sir Thomas," it was asked, "the old Shamrock should beat the new in the trials?"

"It is impossible," he replied, and from the emphasis and energy of his tone a fair idea could be obtained of the great confidence the challenger places in the plans drawn up by Watson.

"Talking of fair play," continued Sir Thomas, "none of us is quite infallible; but I guarantee to say should anything controversial by any chance happen to occur, I am certain I shall get the benefit of any doubt existing, such is my belief in the integrity and sportsman spirit of the New York Yacht club.

"The continuation of last year's accident clause, mentioned by Mr. Oddie, is eminently satisfactory. It was my own suggestion, and I see no reason for any change.

"Some people seem surprised at my challenging with a cutter, and I have seen it stated that I intend taking over a 75-foot schooner. The idea never entered my head. I have worked continuously upon the cutter plan, and you may be sure no detail, however small, will be overlooked which might tend to make it successful.

"Mr. Jameson is the best yachtsman in Great Britain, and Sycamore is our premier Captain.

"No, there will not be any second or third Captain this time, and, as I said in my letter to Mr. Oddie, I can only hope that last year's arrangements will be repeated, with the exception that I hope the boat that lifts the cup will be the Shamrock."

MASONS AND BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION IS CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY.

Union Pressed Brick Company Asks State's Attorney Deneen to Revoke Its Charter, Alleging Coercion—Combination Defended by Attorneys.

George W. Northrup and Jacob Newman, on behalf of the Union Pressed Brick company, appeared before State's Attorney Deneen yesterday and demanded that the charter of the Masons and Builders' association be revoked. They said that the association was a combination of brick companies which resorted to coercion to force all builders to use the lime, stone, and bricks of certain companies. They accused the "trust" of conspiring against them.

Clarence S. Darrow and W. J. Thompson, the attorneys of the Masons and Builders' association, admitted that the association was a combination, but contended that the companies which form it had a perfect right to make the combine.

After hearing both sides State's Attorney Deneen announced that he would consider the matter and would defer his decision until next week.

Among the companies named in the petition are the Chicago Hydraulic Brick company, the Cayuga Brick company, and the Thomas Molding company.

PORCH CLIMBER'S WIFE TALKS.

Mrs. McMahon, Alias Leonard, Tells the Police All She Knows About Gang Under Arrest.

The police investigation of the plunder taken from the flat at 94 Thirty-third street shows that the gang of porch climbers under arrest at the Warren Avenue Station had been operating in Milwaukee, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Cleveland. Stolen property from all of the cities named was found in the trunks and valises seized by the police.

The police have not ben working in the dark. Mrs. McMahon, alias Leonard, wife of one of the principals, has talked freely, telling all she knows of the operations of the gang since she married McMahon in Baltimore. Mrs. McMahon told the police that her husband and Mackey were supplied with crucibles and melted up the sterling gold and silver articles as rapidly as they secured them and sold the bullion to dealers. For this reason no gold jewelry and little sterling silver plate was found.

Two tickets for valuables pledged in pawnbrokers' shops in Cleveland were found and sent on there, in order that the goods may be recovered and identified. A police official of Milwaukee called at the Warren Avenue Station last night and identified property stolen there three weeks ago.

RAAB ATTACKS RICHARD YATES.

Democrat Appeals by Letter to Lutheran Preachers to Vote Against the Jacksonville Man.

Copies of a letter signed by Henry Raab, chairman of the German-American Democratic State committee, have reached Chairman Rowe of the Republican State committee, who is informed that copies are being sent to every German Lutheran preacher. It is an attack on Richard Yates. Mr. Raab says he is acting "in the interest of liberty, of conscience, as well as of the Democratic party, and adds:

You and the members of your church certainly do not wish that in the future the tribulations and troubles of conscience may recur which, on account of your schools, you have experienced through the Edwards law in 1890 to 1892. The candidate of the Republican party for Governor, Mr. Richard Yates, gives you no guaranty in this respect.

For several weeks Chairman Rowe and his aids have known that Mr. Raab was making this sort of a fight, but they are not fearful that any harm is being done.

POLITICS IN THE SOUTH.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, }
Washington, D. C., Oct. 18. }

Studying the Influence of Filipino Friars.

Important results of an educational character will follow the work of the Philippine commission which is now engaged in securing information from the Filipinos. A report received at the White House gives the character of the inquiry, which is mainly directed toward the friars, with a view, apparently, to discussing later the advisability of purchasing the estates of the friars and using the accruing revenue for educational purposes. These are the questions asked of the leading Filipinos:

"How long have you resided in the Philippine Islands?

"In what places in the islands have you lived?

"What opportunities have you had before 1896 to observe the relationship—religious, social, and political—between the friars and the Filipino people?

"How many friars have you known personally?

"To which class of society in Spain do they belond, to your own personal knowledge?

"How much agricultural property and other business interest do you know of from which they obtain a revenue?

"What political function did the friars exercise in this island during Spanish rule?

"What were the ordinary relations between the Spanish Governors and the chief officers of the church?

"What charges did the friars make for weddings, baptisms, and interments?

"How were these charges or taxes established?

"What effect did they produce?

"What was the moral standing of the friars, and what opportunity had you to observe their immoral conduct? Please give samples, if you can.

"What do you think will be the principal nature of the hostility against the friars?

"Does this hostility exist against all orders, or is there any difference among them?

"The friars have been charged with having caused the deportation of Filipinos, and in some cases were guilty of cruel, insulting domination. What can you say definitely about this?

"What is you knowledge of the morality of the Filipino priests?

"What do you know in reference to the preparatory instruction given the Filipino priest in fitting him for the priesthood?

"What do you think would be the result if the friars would go back to parishes in the provinces?

"What do you believe would be the effect in the islands if an American Archbishop was appointed?

"What do you think of the establishment of a public school in which ministers of all kinds of religion can instruct the pupils who desire their instruction for one-half hour before the regular hours of study?

"Do you think the Catholics of the islands would desire it?

"If the friars had no political influence, and if they must live from the voluntary contributions of the people, do you believe that this would result in a change of feeling among the people towards the friars?

"What do you believe would be the result if the government purchased all the property of the friars and used the revenues to create a public fund for the furthering of public instruction in the islands?"

McKinley Sentiment in the South.

In discussing the political situation in Tennessee Commissioner Evans, who has just returned from that State, said: "I never saw the political harness set so lightly on Democracy as it does this year in the South. The active, progressive, productive Democrats of the South who want the resources of the country developed are for McKinley. I will not say that this sentiment will affect the Presidential election in the South this year, but its future effect will be wonderful.

"I saw many Democratic business-men who asked my views of the outlook, and when I gave assurance of Republican victory they expressed pleasure. For formality's sake many of them may vote the straight Democratic ticket. It would make little difference anyhow about their voting for McKinley, as the Democratic managers will take good care to see that the State goes for Bryan.

"In the Congressional districts we are going to make gains. The First and Second Districts are now represented in the House by Republicans. These districts will return Republicans, without doubt. In addition to these we expect to send two other Republicans, one from the Third District and one from the Eighth.

"In the Third District R. S. Sharp has been nominated by the Republicans. He is young, active, energetic, popular, and a good organizer. The party is united behind him and will elect him.

"In the Eighth District the Democrats have two candidates in the field. These are Representative Sims and ex-Representative Enloe. They will divide the vote so much that Captain Samuel W. Hopkins, the Republican nominee, is assured of election. He is an ex-union soldier, former District Attorney under President Harrison, an able man and campaigner, and has a large following. Messrs. Enloe and Sims are fighting each other bitterly.

To Abolish Gambling by Filipinos.

As already indicated in these dispatches, the army officers are determined to stop the gambling propensities of the Filipinos. A notice has been issued in some of the districts where the practice is especially prevalent, prohibiting gaming, cock fighting, and opium smoking. One of the orders which have been issued has been sent to the War department. It is that of Captain J. G. Ballance, Twenty-second Infantry, stationed at Vigan, who says, after reciting the prohibitory clause:

"It is not expected by this order to change the sentiment of the mass of the people nor to change their moral natures so that they will be in accord with the ideas of modern civilization. For this, dependence must be placed on the good example, practices, and teachings of the enlightened, refined, and educated people of this district.

"The prevalence of these vices has been a serious hindrance to the mental, moral, and material development of the Filipino people, and their continuance will in the future prevent them from having a place among the people of modern civilization.

"It is hoped that the educated classes will endeavor to impress upon those who are more or less dependent upon them for assistance and advice the evils which the indulgence in these vices bring on the individuals and the community, and do their best to awaken the enlightened public sentiment among the people which will cause them to be prohibited in their homes."

Doctors Will Investigate Schools.

At a meeting of the Homoeopathic Medical Society of Chicago in the Great Northern Hotel last evening a resolution was passed authorizing the President to appoint a committee to examine into the methods of teaching in the public schools of the city. It is the belief of many members of the organization that the pupils are crowded too much in their work for their welfare mentally.

DEATH CAUSES A SUICIDE.

MAJ. PETERSON DIES OF YELLOW FEVER; WIFE KILLS HERSELF.

Officer Was a Member of the United States Volunteers on Duty in Cuba, and the Fatal Termination to His Illness Was Followed an Hour Later by Self-Destruction of Mrs. Peterson, Daughter of a Prominent Cincinnatian—Scourge on the Increase.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—A cablegram from Havana today brought the intelligence that Major Peterson had died of yellow fever and that Mrs. Peterson, crazed by grief, had killed herself soon after the Major's death.

The remains of Major Peterson and his wife were interred at Havana this afternoon with military honors. The flags at El Morro and on all the public buildings were at half mast. The occurrence has depressed the whole military community of Havana.

Following is the text of the cablegram which was received at the War department:

HAVANA, Oct. 18.—Surgeon General, Washington: Major Matthew R. Peterson, U. S. V., died of yellow fever at Los Animas at 9 o'clock on Oct. 17. Mrs. Peterson, his wife, killed herself an hour later.

GORGAS,
Chief Sanitary Officer.

Major Peterson was of the Commissary department and held the rank of Captain in the regular establishment. He was a graduate of West Point and was appointed from North Carolina.

Indianapolis Knew Major Peterson.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 18.—Major Peterson was well known here, having been detailed to this point as mustering officer during the Spanish-American war. When the One Hundred and Sixty-first Indiana Regiment was formed in response to the second call Peterson was appointed a Major in it by the Governor. He went south in it, but before the war ended he was promoted in the regular army and left the volunteer service.

Mrs. Peterson a Cincinnatian.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. Martha Allison Peterson of Cincinnati, who shot and killed herself at Los Animas, Cuba, was the daughter of Robert Allison, President of the Board of Public Service of Cincinnati. She was a pronounced social favorite until her marriage to Dr. Posey of Philadelphia caused her removal from the city. Her first marriage was an unhappy one and she secured a divorce.

She was married again on Aug. 18, 1897. At the time of his marriage Captain Peterson was stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., where his bride joined him. Members of Mrs. Peterson's family here were alarmed by her premonition when she left for Cuba that she would never return alive. To her sister she said that if Major Peterson died she would never come back, as she could not live without him.

Yellow Fever on the Increase.

Havana, Oct. 18.—Yellow fever is increasing here. It is said that there is not one block in the city but has contributed from one to seventeen cases. If there is no improvement there will soon be an exodus from here. Frank W. Hayes, the General Manager of the Havana branch of the North American Trust company, who is suffering from yellow fever, is in a critical condition and Mrs. Hayes has been isolated with him.

EDITORS' WOES IN SMALL CITIES

Sensitive Subscribers Who Can Throw Stones Produce an Object Lesson for Ambitious Young Men.

A former Chicago reporter became editor of the Rock Island Republican, and the woes connected with directing the destinies of that journal have been faintly hinted at in the current accounts of an attack on the business office by some powerful irate citizens.

The editor himself, partly consoled by a comforting insurance on the broken glass, but smarting with the hurt to his pride, explains the circumstance with highly instructive detail as follows:

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The reporter from a large city going into a smaller town and entering the newspaper field as an editor has a number of things to contend with. The first and foremost is the sensitiveness of the readers of his paper; secondly, the absolute hatred and thorough-going selfishness of his contemporaries, who fear he may lead a subscriber or advertiser away from them, and who, in consequence, stop at nothing to put in the worst light possible any and all articles which are writen by his pen; and, thirdly, the fanatic excited by the opposition organs to perpetrate any crime which his mind conceives.

For instance, the Rock Island Republican made its bow to the public on the 7th of October and received the highest praise from the people of the Cities of Rock Island, Moline, and Davenport, as well as the surrounding cities. The paper was made up as near the metropolitan dailies' standard as was possible in a limited field, and in every department excelled the ancient standards of its local contemporaries. The second issue equaled the first, but a phrase appeared which gave an opening to the opposition party to make a mountain out of a mole hill, and in consequence the press of the three cities above mentioned took it up. The Democratic press did what they could for their party, but the upholders of Republican principles, forgetting their politics, thought only of their own desire to drive the new paper out of the field and turned against it with greater venom than even did the Democratic press. Representatives of the Chicago papers in Rock Island are all employed on the local papers, and in consequence immediately wired their respective sheets that the editor of the new paper had insulted everybody.

The phrase quoted was: "Will the Germans vote for a Jew or a gentleman" and nothing has been mentioned of an editorial in the same paper stating the objection to Mr. Alschuler was "not that he was of Jewish extraction, as many of the greatest men in the world are, but that he conceals the fact to influence the German vote."

Upon this the press of the city built up a mighty story of "Race War," "War of Blood," "Insult to the Jews," etc., and so excited the fanatical members of both parties that threats were made, not once, but on three different occasions on the editor of the Republican's life [over the telephone, by the byel, and his employés were threatened with violence if they did not at once leave his employ. The climax came when, forty-eight hours after the publication of the article, the office was attacked in the dead of night and $500 worth of glass demolished by a party or parties unknown. A coincidence was that a Democratic rally was held in Davenport the evening before the attack took place, and many of the shouters came home much the worse for wear in the wee sma' hours.

With the exception of an independent paper, the Moline Mail, not one of the papers of the three cities deplored the crime, and failed to discourage the breaking of the laws of the country, hardly being able to suppress their delight, while even the Jewish people of the city forgot their mistaken anger to say, "we are sorry that it happened and disown any connection with the crime," which was unnecessary.

The Chicago reporter has had troubles of his own, but the fair-minded and cool-headed of the three cities are behind time and the glass was insured.

ARIZONA GAINS IN POPULATION.

Census Figures Show an Increase of One Hundred and Four Per Cent Over 1890.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Arizona's population has grown wonderfully during the last decade, having more than doubled. It is now 122,212, as against 59,620 in 1890, a gain of 62,592, or 104.9 per cent. The population of Arizona from 1870 to 1890 is as follows:

Years.	Population.	Increase.	P.ct.
1900	122,212	62,592	104
1890	59,620	19,180	47
1870	9,658

This large increase is due in part to the fact that there were 28,469 Indians and 154 other persons, or a total of 28,623 persons, on Indian reservations in Arizona who were specially enumerated in 1890 but were not included in the general population of the Territory at that census.

While running after two thieves yesterday afternoon Joseph Heintz, 629 Grand avenue, was struck by a stone hurled by one of them and his skull was fractured by the blow. John Cartwell and Joseph Day were arrested last night and locked up at the West Chicago Avenue Station, charged with being his assailants. He will recover from the effects of the blow.

D. W. ANDREWS NEAR TO DEATH.

Former Chief Grain Inspector Suffers Stroke of Paralysis Near Antioch.

GIVEN UP BY DOCTORS.

Story of a Famous Investigation, Trial, and Acquittal Recalled.

SHORTAGE IS MADE GOOD.

Dwight W. Andrews, chief grain inspector under the administration of Governor Altgeld and predecessor in office of the present incumbent, E. J. Noble, is critically ill at the Sylvan Beach Hotel, near Antioch, of which he is part owner.

Two days ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis, and his condition became so serious that the physicians treating the patient have given up all hope of saving him. After a consultation with Chicago doctors Dr. Jamieson of Antioch took charge of the case and remained with the patient all last night. The patient is conscious only at intervals, but the doctors believe that he may linger for several days.

Famous Case Recalled.

Mr. Andrews' term as chief grain inspector expired on Feb. 5, 1897. After Mr. Noble had taken possession of the office it was discovered that Andrews was short in his accounts and an investigation was ordered which brought to light a great amount of damaging evidence. According to the testimony given before an investigating committee and later before the grand jury numerous irregularities had crept into the affairs of the Chief Grain Inspector's office. Several clerks of the office made claims for salary which had not been paid to them, and charges were made that the pay rolls of the office had been swelled by the addition of names of persons who never had done any work for the office. The grand jury found four indictments against Andrews and his cashier, Benjamin F. Jenkins. The first was for the embezzlement of $199 from the Railroad and Warehouse commission, which money, it was charged, was used to pay for a junketing trip to Florida; the second indictment was for the embezzlement of $10,000 and the other two for the embezzlement of $500 in each case. The trial on the first indictment was begun before Judge Gary on Nov. 21, 1898. It was extremely difficult to obtain conclusive evidence, and after a short trial both Andrews and Jenkins were acquitted.

Andrews Repays the Amount.

Meantime Andrews had paid back to his successor in office the entire amount of the shortage and settled all differences with his former employés. Knowing that under those circumstances Andrews could only be found guilty of a technical offense, State's Attorney Deneen did not press the suits upon the remaining indictments, which, for that reason, are still pending.

During the investigation of the charges against Andrews and Jenkins incriminating assertions were made that the shortage was due to large loans which Andrews was supposed to have made to Governor Altgeld. It was charged that to make up for the funds thus drawn from the treasury of the office Andrews had swelled the pay rolls of his office to a considerable extent.

Andrews was a prominent Democratic politician up to the time when the shortage in his accounts was discovered. At one time he was chairman of the Democratic State committee and was considered a political power in this county.

About two years ago he became part owner of the Sylvan Beach Hotel, near Antioch, a family hotel, well patronized during the summer months. He took an active part in the management of the hotel and paid but rare visits to Chicago during the last two years.

PASTOR PRISONER TRIES TO DIE.

S. S. Bandy, Wanted in Kansas, Makes Attempt at Suicide in City Hall Cell.

S. S. Bandy, the Arkansas City (Kas.) negro preacher who was arrested on Wednesday on the charge of a murderous attack on a Kansas negro girl, made what may prove to be a successful attempt at suicide in his cell in the basement of the City Hall yesterday morning. In some way the prisoner secured possession of a small pen knife, and with it he stabbed himself several times in the breast and hacked his throat. When discovered the negro had suffered greatly from loss of blood. He was taken to the County Hospital.

Search of the cell revealed two letters addressed to Assistant Chief of Police Ptacek. One contained the will of the man, disposing of his few effects. The other practically admitted his guilt.

"After eight years in the gospel harness," the man wrote, "I must throw off the flag and cry deep water. I will cross the stream of Jordan. I trust in God."

Bandy was arrested on Wednesday in the Chicago Postoffice by means of a decoy letter. He had been a fugutive for two months. While admitting his identity the negro strenuously denied his guilt.

Word was received yesterday that an officer was on his way from Kansas to take charge of the prisoner.

ROAD BALKS AT TRACK SCHEME.

Northwestern Rejects Latest Plan for Kinzie Street Elevation.

HITCH ON PAVING CLAUSE.

Rockwell Street Matter Also Taken Up by the Council Committee.

HARRISON CONCEDES A POINT

Track elevation was blocked yesterday, according to railroad officials, by the action of the Track Elevation committee in recommending for passage the Kinzie or Rockwell street ordinance so burdened that the companies will not accept it.

As an afterthought the committee decided not to present the ordinance for passage at the next session of the City Council but at the succeeding session. An opportunity for a change of opinion is reserved by this action.

After the committee had decided to give Rockwell street to the Pennsylvania company in return for another street, and had the ordinance in shape to present to the Council, Alderman Duddleston insisted that the Chicago and Northwestern railroad should pave Kinzie street with vitrified brick and put in a five-foot cement sidewalk from Elizabeth street to Western avenue, along the elevated track of the company.

Pulver Makes a Protest.

"If you do that you will kill the ordinance," said Arthur W. Pulver, attorney for the Chicago and Northwestern road. "The company will not accept it. It will not spend $1,000,000 for track elevation for which it gets nothing and then add $50,000 to that to pave streets."

The amendment to the ordinance, however, was passed.

The Pennsylvania road, which is concerned in the ordinance, secured the consent of the committee, against the protest of some members, for the vacation of Rockwell street, of which the company now possesses a part. The street is to be abandoned to the railroad from Monroe stret to Harvard street. The company in return agrees to widen an alley into a street and to improve it.

It is agreed that the new street, east of Rockwell street, shall be thirty-three feet wide from Monroe street to Jackson boulevard and twenty-five feet wide from Harrison to Harvard street. It is closed entirely from Jackson boulevard to Harrison street, there being another street close to it by which communication can be secured between the broken ends.

A fight in the Council is predicted when the order for the vacation of Rockwell street is presented. A movement to have California avenue opened from Kinzie street to Grand avenue was blocked temporarily by an opinion from the Corporation Counsel holding that the land never had been dedicated as a street and could not now be set aside for that purpose unless evidence other than that of record could be found.

The roads which occupy the land which it is desired to open as a street are the Chicago and Northwestern and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

Harrison to Modify Ordinance.

Mayor Harrison has agreed with railroad officials to amend the general ordinance which he had presented to the Council for the guarding of all grade crossings in the city by gates and flagmen, the amendment to allow the railroads to place these precautions at such streets as may be designated by the Mayor or Commissioner of Public Works.

The object is to save the companies the expense of taking safety provisions where the tracks run through what is practically farm land.

CICERO BOARD AGAIN IN HARMONY, BUT THE GOSSIPS MUST BEWARE.

Minutes of the Sherman House Meeting Read, and Instead of Trustee Cole It Is Shown That F. W. McAvoy Made the Charges of Corruption.

Trustee Cole of the Cicero Town board last evening presented to the board the notes taken at a recent meeting in the Sherman House. These notes were to prove, according to an expression of the board, whether Trustee Cole or President Jones was telling the truth at a meeting of the board one week ago, at which time the President accused Trustee Cole with having charged that officers of the Town of Cicero had accepted bribes from the Hawthorne race track managers.

The report of the Sherman House meeting as read by Mr. Cole last night showed that he had not charged any one with having taken bribes. It did show, however, that F. W. McAvoy, late manager of the Hawthorne track, accused Lieutenant Cumock, Town Clerk Tristram, and, in a general way, others of being in the pay of the gamblers. He said that the owners of the track spent about $1,000 a day for the purpose of corrupting public officers and that he had handled this money himself.

After the reading of the report, which President Jones said would startle the people of Cicero, he said it was substantially correct and that he felt he had been sustained. Mr. Cole seemed equally pleased, and the board, in committee of the whole, accepted the opinion of Trustee Utley, who said that they should not let such men as Bert King and F. W. McAvoy cause trouble in the board.

PAY OF STATE'S ATTORNEYS.

Practice Commission Suggests That Fixed Salaries Take the Place of Fees They Now Receive.

The Practice commission, which has in hand the matter of suggesting improvements in the legal procedure in the State, has approved a recommendation that the State's Attorneys of the various counties be paid a fixed salary instead of receiving their remuneration from fees as is now the law. The recommendation provides that the amount of the salary be fixed by the County boards in all counties except Cook County. The commission suggests that the salary of the State's Attorney for Cook County be fixed at $10,000 a year. The salaries are to be paid out of the earnings of the office and the balance is to be paid at the expiration of the year to the County Treasurer.

PANIC IN A CANDY FACTORY.

A fire which caused some excitement among a number of girl employés, but did little damage, was caused yesterday by the overflowing of a kettle in the candy factory owned by A. G. The other women employed in the building made their escape to the sidewalk and none was injured.

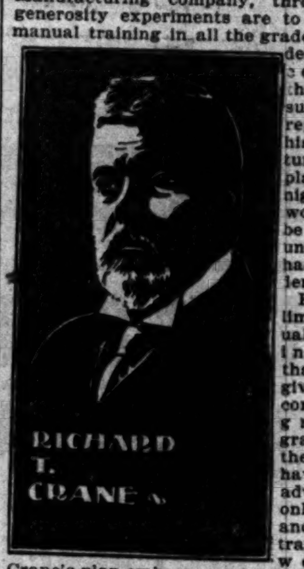
CRANE TALKS OF HIS GIFT

MANUAL TRAINING EXTENSION SURE OF SUCCESS, HE SAYS.

Instruction in Work of the Hand at the Tilden School Will Be Made Common to All Grades and Will Be Continued at the Manufacturer's Expense Until the Value of the Work Is Demonstrated — Results Justify the Expenditure.

Richard T. Crane, President of the Crane Manufacturing company, through whose generosity experiments are to be made in manual training in all the grades of the Tilden School, is confident that the results will well repay him for his expenditure. He explained last night that the work would be continued until its value had been fully demonstrated.



RICHARD T. CRANE.

Hitherto the limited manual training instruction that has been given has been confined to the grammar grades, and the pupils have had the advantage of only one hour and a half of training each week. Mr. Crane's plan embraces not only an extension of this instruction to all the grades of the school but an increase in the number of hours of instruction.

Mr. Crane was an early advocate of manual training instruction in the graded schools. Six years ago he furnished the equipment for the experiment in the grammar grades of the Tilden School, and provided for maintenance for four years. The value of the instruction was so well illustrated by the experiment that the system was extended to other schools, until now it is taught to a limited extent in nearly all the schools of the city.

Mr. Crane spent $12,000 demonstrating the practicability of his plan, and he is now ready to maintain a course in each of the grades of the Tilden School until the value of extending the instruction is shown.

"The practicability of manual training instruction in the grammar grades has been fully demonstrated," said Mr. Crane last night, "and I know of no reason why equally successful results might not be attained in the lower grades. With the younger pupils the work could be confined to creations from cardboard and such materials, which would teach the child the use of his hands to a certain degree. In the higher classes carpentry and such branches might be taught.

"I desire that the new experiment be conducted under the direct supervision of Robert M. Smith, supervisor of manual training, as he is familiar with what was accomplished during the former experiment and will be able to judge intelligently of the results.

"Any one who will go to the Tilden School and see what was accomplished by the boys there, even with only one hour and a half of instruction a week, cannot doubt the benefits of manual training in the graded schools. The cost of that instruction was $9 each child for the four years' course, or less than $2.50 each year.

"I hope to be able to secure three hours' instruction a week for each pupil for the new experiment. I cannot say now what the cost may be. The work will be maintained until its value is fully demonstrated."

HOPE TO SAVE KINDERGARTENS.

Board Members Expect to Divert Funds for Manual Training of the Blind to the Purpose.

In the face of protests from without and criticism from its own members the Board of Education is seeking means to avoid the proposed closing of the kindergartens and the curtailing of instruction in other important branches, including German, music, and drawing. The methods suggested are both in the line of retrenchment and an increase of funds available for the present year.

At the next meeting of the Committee on School Management the proposition to divert $43,000 from the appropriation made by the City Council for the mental and manual training of the blind will be considered, and it is probable that the money will be made available for general educational purposes. This will solve the problem.

Vice President Thomas Gallagher, who, with several other members of the board, has opposed the curtailing of the regular branches of study while the expenses of the board were being increased in other directions, has prepared a statement showing the disposition of the money saved cutting down the teachers' salaries. The total amount, he says, saved is $142,679.50.

Chief Engineer T. J. Waters of the Chicago public schools received a letter yesterday from the secretary of the American Society of Heating and Engineering informing him that the society had been awarded two medals, one for the annual report of its proceedings and the other for Engineer Waters' system of heating.

Court Grants More Time to Give the Grand Jury an Opportunity to Investigate.

The preliminary hearing of Dr. Unger and Detectives F. Wayland Brown and Frank H. Smiley, charged with conspiracy to defraud several insurance organizations in the death of Marie Defenbach, was continued yesterday one week by Judge Gibbons for the purpose, the court said, of giving the prosecution a chance to bring the case before the October grand jury, which meets on Monday. The continuance was made on the motion of Assistant State's Attorney Newcomer, who said the prosecution was not prepared to go into the case. Judge Gibbons said later that in the event the defendants came before him prepared to give bail in the sum of $10,000, he would reduce the bond from $15,000 each to that amount. No application was made.

LOOK FOR STOLEN BICYCLES.

Victims of Thieves Throng Woodlawn Police Station Hoping to Find Missing Wheels.

The Woodlawn Police Station was thronged yesterday with the victims of bicycle thieves searching for their wheels among the lot seized in the Coey & Co. warehouse, at Laflin and Harrison streets. Of the sixty-seven wheels thirteen were identified.

C. A. Coey, a member of the firm, was arraigned in the Hyde Park police court on nine charges of receiving stolen property and the case was continued to Oct. 27. Coey was released on bonds of $4,500.

Walter S. Starkey, manager of C. A. Coey & Co., made a statement in which he denied all guilt in receiving stolen property. He said that the firm asked the police to take the entire stock of wheels, and also the books, in order to further a thorough investigation.

It is feared by her relatives that the girl has been taken somewhere against her wishes by a man whom she met in Lincoln Park on the day she disappeared. Wagner, however, failed to report the matter to the police until last night.

The question is often asked, "What has William J. Bryan done to entitle him to the honor of the Presidency of the United States or even to the honor of a nomination to that high office?"

Even his warmest partisans cannot point to a single accomplishment which warrants the position he now holds before the country.

Mr. Bryan's past is colorless. It is a record of failures, mostly in petty things. Few men have crowded so many failures into so short a career. The reason is not far to seek. He has ever endeavored to succeed by the glitter of superficial qualities. He has built his structure without foundations.

As a lawyer he first went to Jacksonville, Ill., where the shrewd farmers of that neighborhood looked askance at the young man with a glib tongue. After a time he gave it up and went to Lincoln, Neb., to practice law.

In Lincoln Mr. Bryan did not build up a practice by his own exertions. He became a partner of A. R. Talbot, a former Illinois man, but the two together failed to work up a lucrative business. Bryan's time was put in on the political stump. He was elected to Congress in 1890 by the tidal wave of Populism. His first term in Congress was a failure, as was his second. He failed to impress his individuality on a single piece of legislation.

Having been a failure in Congress after two terms Bryan in 1894 made a canvass of Nebraska to secure the election of a Legislature that would elect him United States Senator. Although he made a schoolhouse campaign the people elected a Republican Legislature and John M. Thurston was made United States Senator.

Bryan's next failure was as an editor. He was made "editor-in-chief" of the Omaha World-Herald by its free silver owners. He made no changes in the policy of the paper. He wrote a few editorials, noted for their length more than for anything else. He left no impress of individuality on the paper, and its readers never knew when his editorial career began or when it ended.

Bryan's next failure was as a Presidential candidate. He appealed to the discontent of the people, but was rejected. In 1898 Bryan registered a failure as a military hero. He offered his services as a Colonel—after Nebraska's quota of volunteers had been filled. He was given a regiment. He made a good Colonel before the camera, but not before his regiment. The Democratic press complained first against sending his regiment to Cuba or the Philippines, and later complained because it was kept at home. Bryan's connection with it added only one more failure to his list.

Tests Made with City Lights Furnished by the People's Company Show They Are Not Up to Grade, but Defects in Tips Are Blamed—President Billings Offers $5,000 to Any One Who Will Show the Product of the Concern to Be Below Specifications.

An official of the People's Gas Light and Coke company is authority for the statement that the negotiations on behalf of the Municipal people for control of the Ogdon plant include the purchase of the Cosmopolitan electric light franchise. It is stated, however, that this will not be used to embarrass the Chicago Edison company. The possession of the Cosmopolitan franchise was to have gone with the Ogden company, had the deal gone through as originally planned. The purpose of the syndicate controlling the People's company was to bring about a combination of all the lighting interests in the city.

The absorption of the Ogden Gas company by the People's company, which brought the gas rate war to a close, has resulted in the city starting an investigation to ascertain the quality of gas furnished by the combined concerns. Photometrical tests made of street gas lamps by City Electrician Ellicott seem to show the gas furnished by the People's company to be lacking in illumination power. Pending the results of tests to be made in all parts of the city he has decided to hold the company's bill of $60,000 against the city for street illumination for the quarter ending Oct. 1.

President C. K. G. Billings of the People's company denies the gas is below the standard, claiming that the photometer with which Mr. Ellicott makes the tests is not accurate. Mr. Billings said his company would give $5,000 to any one who would prove that the gas furnished in any section of the city is below 24-candle power, which is the power contracted for by the city and the consumers.

So thoroughly convinced is Mr. Billings that the gas is up to standard that he will bring to Chicago some of the recognized gas experts of the country, let them make tests either with or independent of the City Electrician, and make affidavits as to what they discover.

Find Street Lamps Defective.

Accompanied by John Williamson, constructing engineer for the People's company, Mr. Ellicott made tests of lamps picked at random on the West Side last night. Of the six lamps tested all were declared by Mr. Ellicott not to be giving sufficient illumination. The tests were made in Sebor street, east of Halsted to Desplaines, and south on Morgan street from Blue Island avenue to Maxwell. The results of each test, giving the number of feet of gas consumed an hour and the candle power, together with the location of the lamps were as follows:

	No. feet consumed per hour.	Candle power.
Corner Sebor and Halsted streets	3.4	13.6
In front of 210 Sebor street	3.5	11.3
In front of 196 Sebor street	3.25	11.9
Corner Sebor and Desplaines streets	9.5	25.0
Corner Blue Island avenue and Morgan street	4.00	16.4
Corner Morgan and Maxwell streets	4.00	12.2

The lamp at Sebor and Desplaines when burned at the rate of five feet an hour showed twenty-one candle power. Mr. Williamson said the insufficient light was due to the fact that dirt had accumulated in the tip. He said he thought the company was willing to replace the present tips with improved ones.

Mr. Ellicott said that while the gas may be of a quality to produce a twenty-candle power light, the street lamps were not producing it. "It may be the condition in which the street lamps are kept," said Mr. Ellicott. "Dirt in the gas tip may cause a defective lamp. The People's company has contracted not only to produce a quality of gas of twenty-candle power, but it also must produce a light of that power. The city cares nothing for the chemical quality of the gas. I shall recommend to the City Council that the last quarter gas bill be not paid until the full results of my tests are established."

Confirms Report of Deal.

Judge Andrew Hamilton, President of the Municipal company, who effected the purchase of the Ogden stock by which the rate war was terminated, arrived from the East yesterday. He announced emphatically that the deal had been completed.

Despite Judge Hamilton's assertion, Roger C. Sullivan, secretary of the Ogden company, adhered to his claim that a majority of the Ogden stock is still out of the control of the People's company. Five of the eleven blocks of the Ogden company's $5,000,000 worth of stock are said to be owned by Mr. Sullivan and his friends. The other blocks are said to be distributed one each among Thomas A. Moran and Levy Mayer, Thomas Gahan, Jacob Franks, John McGillen, Andrew J. Graham, and P. J. Sexton. To secure a majority of the stock it would have been necessary for the Municipal people to obtain control of six blocks. This Judge Hamilton claims to have done.

The Ogden company issued a statement yesterday announcing that after today the 90 cent rate would be charged.

MAY PROSECUTE GAS COMPANY.

New York Attorney Starts for Chicago and Talks of Entering Suit Against the Corporation.

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Alfred Lamb, a lawyer, who makes a specialty of suits against corporations, left here at 9:30 this morning for Chicago. He said that on reaching Chicago he probably would institute a suit or suits against the People's Gas company of Chicago. Mr. Lamb declined to state the purpose of the suits.

M'KINLEY AND BRYAN IN WAX.

Feature of Church Bazaar to Be a Voting Contest for the Two Candidates.

The women of the Holy Name Cathedral will inaugurate a bazaar for the benefit of the church at the parochial school hall, Cass street and Chicago avenue, on Wednesday next to last three weeks, and as a feature announced an election contest between McKinley and Bryan. Well executed miniature figures of the two Presidential candidates, with wax heads, have been donated and these will be exhibited and voted for in the booth under the direction of Father McCarthy.

BRIDE AND GROOM ARRESTED.

Angry Parents Prosecute Daughter Who Secretly Weds John Peterson Against Their Wishes.

Mary Klema, 17 years old, loved the milkman who woke the neighborhood every morning trudging up the stairs to her mother's flat at 705 South Morgan street. It was all settled that she was to marry him.

The girl worked till recently for the Cold Blast Feather company, Canal street and Jackson boulevard. Across the alley at 269 Clinton street John Peterson worked for the Devoe & Reynolds Paint company. He was wont to beguile the working hours standing by the window and casting loving glances at Mary Klema across the alley. The result was a secret marriage engagement and Mary Klema no longer loved the milkman, whose name, by the way, is John Bican.

A marriage license was procured and all the arrangements were made for the ceremony to be performed on Monday evening. An unexpected incident happened, however, which for the time being threatened to delay the ceremony. When the bride-to-be had finished her toilet on the wedding eve her parents decided not to permit her to leave the house.

She begged and pleaded, but in vain, the mother thinking the daughter intended to go to a dance near her home. The predicament worried the girl, but she managed to get away from her home and went immediately to the place of meeting. Peterson was there waiting. A clergyman was visited and when the bride returned to her home her name had been changed to Peterson.

The parents of the girl were so angry that they swore out warrants against the couple, accusing them of disorderly conduct. The case will be decided by Justice Sabath on Oct. 27.

ALLEGED BUNKO MEN ARRESTED

Ashland Avenue Coal Dealer Makes Complaint Against a Quartet of Supposedly Old Offenders.

Four alleged confidence men have been arrested by police of the Twentieth Precinct. They give their names as Charles Louis, Jauchie Leslie, Joseph Anwartis, and Charles Bernardin, and it is said that they are old offenders. Julius Loderd, a coal dealer at 4939 Ashland avenue, is the principal witness against the quartet.

Saloons Closed at Midnight.

All saloons in the Cottage Grove avenue and Twenty-second street police districts were closed at 12 o'clock last night in accordance with orders sent out by Lieutenants Alcock and O'Brien. It was possible to get into all places through side doors, however. It is understood that the orders were sent out at the request of an association of business-men headed by W. S. Forrest.

FOUR ROB A CARPENTER.

SUPPOSED UNION MEN ASSAULT INDUSTRIAL MEMBER.

S. Domby, Employed at Western Electric Company's Building, Is Set Upon by Unknown Assailants—Take His Horse and Buggy After Knocking Him Down—Building Trades Council Said to Be Seeking Consolidation with New Organization.

S. Domby of 1201 Flournoy street was assaulted at the Western Electric company's Building, where he was employed as a carpenter, by four men, who are supposed to be union carpenters. In connection with the assault Domby's assailants took his horse and buggy away from him, and, although the case was reported at once to the Maxwell Street Police Station, no trace has been found of the missing property or the thieves.

Domby, who is a member of the Industrial union, had worked only half a day at the Western Electric building. A request for carpenters had been sent to the headquarters of the union, and Domby was sent there at noon. He drove there with his horse, taking with him a lot of tools. At quitting time he started home, and at the corner of Thirtieth and Polk streets four men, he says, ran out from a saloon toward him. Two of them jumped into the buggy and knocked him into the street. When he arose the other two started toward him, and he sought safety in flight. They did not press the pursuit, and when Domby looked for his rig it was not in sight.

Domby was not seriously injured by the assault. He insisted yesterday, as did the officers of the Industrial union, that his assailants were members of the Carpenters' union who have been discharged from the Western Electric Building.

Seek to Consolidate.

The latest development in the labor war is the reported effort being made to bring about a consolidation of the Industrial union with the Building Trades council. It has been known for a considerable time that the Industrial union members were greatly dissatisfied with the treatment they have received from the Building Contractors' council. The assertion has been frequently made by them that the contractors were playing fast and loose, and they have especially opposed the plan of the contractors to divide the organization into trades, with the purpose of entering into agreements with them. This dissatisfaction is said to have reached a point where they are willing to join forces with the Building Trades council in order to get even with the contractors for their alleged unfair treatment of them.

May Expel Bridgemen.

There was considerable talk among some of the leaders of the Building Trades council yesterday of pressing a motion at tonight's meeting for the expulsion of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers because of their purpose to withdraw from the council.

SAYS CHICAGO MEN CONSPIRED.

Mrs. S. R. Sanderson Has Warrants Issued at Milwaukee for Her Husband and Two Others.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Warrants are in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Umbreit for the arrest of S. R. Sanderson, a wealthy lumber merchant; Herbert Reed, a Chicago attorney; and Frank Sherwood, a Chicago private detective, charging them with conspiracy and abduction. Sanderson operates in northern Wisconsin and Minnesota, and has headquarters in Chicago.

Sanderson was separated from his wife six months ago, Mrs. Sanderson coming to this city and taking apartments at a West Side boarding-house. Four weeks ago Frank Sherwood, it is alleged, came here, hunted up Mrs. Sanderson, and took lodgings at the same apartment-house.

This, according to the woman's allegations, was the beginning of the conspiracy. She became acquainted with Sherwood, and on the night of Oct. 9, she says, he succeeded in placing her in what seemed to be a compromising position. Then, she says, her husband and Reed appeared on the scene.

Mrs. Sanderson declares that the alleged conspiracy had for a purpose the furnishing of grounds for a suit for divorce.

HINTS OF BIG WATER THEFT.

Superintendent Nourse Gives No Names, but Says Offender Is Not in Stock-Yards District.

Superintendent Nourse claims to have secured evidence of large thefts of water by a large manufacturing concern outside of the Stock-Yards district. He refuses to make public the name of the concern until he has thoroughly investigated the matter. It is said that excavations are now being made in the vicinity of the plant in the search for illicit pipes and mains.

At the Stock-Yards yesterday the city water officials found a pipe on Loomis street connecting with the regular feed pipe of the Libby, McNeill & Libby Packing company. This pipe describes a circular course around the regular city meters from the Loomis street main. On the inner side a sealed valve was found.

When this pipe was found Assistant Superintendent Kreuger of Libby, McNeill & Libby asserted that the pipe was a part of the firm's private system. Later he admitted that this statement was wrong, but that the pipe had never been used and was there only for emergency purposes.

Superintendent Nourse said that the existence of the pipe had heretofore been unknown to the city water officials and ordered it removed.

TO TAKE BIBLE'S PLACE.

DR. THOMAS SAYS SOME TIME A BOOK OF MORALS WILL BE USED.

Thinks the Time Is Not Now Ripe, but That a Suitable Substitute Will Be Found in the Future—Bishop McLaren Declares That if God Is Not Recognized by Educators the Spirit of Anarchy Will Be Encouraged Among the Children.

"Some time we will have a great book of selections of moral teachings and teachings of inspirations that can take the place of the Bible in the schools, but we have not come to that yet."

THE REV. H. W. THOMAS.

These are the words of Dr. H. W. Thomas, pastor of the People's Church. The action of the Board of Education in deciding against the proposition to permit the use of "Readings from the Bible" in the public schools on the ground that it would lead to sectarian strife was the subject of the pastor's remarks. He believes that the board acted wisely. "We are not civilized and have not intelligence enough to look at great questions broadly," he said. "In that state it is best to work along the lines of compromise and peace."

But the opinions on the subject are varied. Several ministers who were asked about the matter yesterday held that it was a move in the right direction and others thought it was an outrage.

Would Educate for Anarchy.

Bishop McLaren said: "If the public schools educate without the recognition of God they will educate the country for anarchy. Atheism is as sectarian as anything that I know of. The public school system is without God and is atheistical. I do not believe the public sentiment of this community is in favor of atheistical schools. It is not a question of the Bible but of theism."

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch agrees with Dr. Thomas in believing the book should not be introduced into the schools. He said he has taken that stand for three years. "There are a number of people who are against allowing Bible readings in the schools," said Dr. Hirsch. "If we get the Bible in, orthodox Jews might be opposed to passages from the New Testament and want a book of their own. It would be the same with the Catholics, Protestants, and atheists, and the best thing to do is to keep it out."

Says It Is a Shame.

Dr. P. S. Henson of the First Baptist Church said: "It seems to me it is a shame that the Book of Books should be banished. To ignore the great truths in the Bible is an outrage on our Christian civilization. Some books of the rankest tolerance are allowed in schools, but this book that has made us what we are must be placed under the ban. The principles of civilization and religious liberty are in the Bible. There is no sectarianism in it."

The Rev. John T. Christian of the La Salle Avenue Baptist Church said that while he was opposed to sectarianism of any kind he could not see that there was any in the Bible. He thought it a bad idea that it should not be used in the schools. "A person cannot consider himself well educated unless he has a knowledge of the things contained in the book," he said.

WOMAN DROWNS HERSELF IN THE LAKE AND THE POLICE FIND NO CLEW.

Leaps from the Twenty-second Street Breakwater and Perishes Before Help Can Arrive—Nothing on the Body to Lead to Identification.

An unidentified woman, well dressed and of refined appearance, committed suicide last evening by drowning herself in the lake off the Twenty-second street breakwater. She was seen to throw herself into the water and the body was recovered less than an hour later by the Cottage Grove avenue police.

No marks on the clothing of the dead woman could be found which would serve to identify her and no person of her description has been reported as missing. Destitution could not have been the motive for suicide, as her purse contained $10.

Frank Nearney, 2362 Cottage Grove avenue, saw the woman leap into the water. He was walking in Twenty-second street when she passed him and entered the premises of the Illinois Central railway. A moment later he noticed her again as she was half way across the stretch of tracks, walking rapidly toward the lake. Once she glanced behind and, seeing that Nearney was watching her, she quickened her pace.

Running to the top of the breakwater by means of a sloping plank the woman leaped into the water without a moment's hesitation. Nearney ran to the spot, but could see nothing of the woman. The police dragged the lake and found the body 100 yards from shore, taking it to Buffum & Perrigo's undertaking rooms in Wabash avenue near Sixteenth street.

The woman was about 30 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height, and weighed 130 pounds. He hair, eyes, and complexion were dark. She wore a red striped silk waist, a black satin skirt, a fur cape, and woolen underclothing. Her hat could not be found. On her left third finger was a gold ring and in the ears were gold earrings with emerald settings.

Martin Smith, a tailor, living at 315 Berlin street, committed suicide last evening by shooting himself through the temple. Business trouble is supposed to have caused him to commit the deed. He left a widow and three children.

FIRE CAUSES A PANIC AMONG PASSENGERS OF ELECTRIC STREET CAR.

Blaze Eats Through Floor in Trolley Coach on Evanston Line, Creating Consternation Among Occupants—Mrs. Eugene Walker Faints.

A street car on the Evanston line of the Union Traction company caught fire at Sherman avenue and Grove street shortly before 6 o'clock last evening and a panic ensued among the passengers. During the excitement several of the women lost their hats, others had their clothes torn, and one of the windows in the car was smashed.

When the cry of fire was raised Mrs. Eugene Walker of Wilmette made a rush to escape and fell in a swoon. Conductor Fred Munger carried her from the car to a residence near by, where she was revived. The appearance of the fire department apparatus on the scene added to the excitement. It arrived too late, however, as the flames had been quenched by a bucket brigade.

The passengers were transferred to another car and the disabled one taken to the car barns at Edgewater. The fire was started by the contact of one of the metal conductors with the woodwork in the bottom of the car.

DAKOTA CROWDS TO HEAR HANNA.

Senator Forced by Audiences to Make Three Speeches in Sioux Falls.

GOOD ORDER THE RULE.

Several Eggs Hurled at His Carriage, but They Hit the One Following Instead.

INCIDENTS OF THE TRIP.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Senator Hanna stirred up Sioux Falls and Minnehaha County tonight in a manner the community had never known before. Incidentally, some rotten eggs were thrown. They were, however, either not intended for Mr. Hanna or else the throwers were poor marksmen, as none of them came anywhere near him. They did, however, liberally bespatter the carriage behind the one in which he was riding, and which carried Victor Dolliver of Iowa and three residents of this city. As Mr. Dolliver has never done anything to offend any one in South Dakota more than to make some speeches in the State, and his three companions are locally popular, the presumption is the eggs were intended for Senator Hanna, and he is personally ignorant of the incident.

No Trouble Is Met With.

This city is Senator Pettigrew's home. All day there have been stories afloat of possible trouble tonight. It was stated Senator Pettigrew intended to attend the Hanna meeting and attempt to interrupt the latter. It was said he had hired a local attorney to arise in the meeting and make a threatening demand for $100 Senator Hanna was alleged to have owed some unknown client. The trouble, however, was confined to the egg throwing.

The crowd of people in Sioux Falls tonight exceeds anything known in the history of the city. How many thousands are in town none knows, but it is easily twice the population of the place, which the last census puts at 12,000. They all came to see what kind of a man Mark Hanna is and what he looks like.

A torchlight procession of 4,000 escorted him from the depot to the auditorium, where the main speech was to be made, but when Senator Hanna reached the building he could not get in. The streets around were jammed. The Senator was forced to go to the operahouse for his first speech, going to the auditorium after, and then to a third hall. The three of them together will hold 7,000 people, and they were all jammed. At all three places the Senator was warmly greeted and in none was he interrupted.

Gathers Indian Voters.

Senator Hanna took particular pains to make friends with the Sissetons at Webster, and the first thing he did today was to go many miles out of his way to speak at Flandreau, where 300 Sioux, all voters, came out to listen to him. John C. Eastman, their chief, was at their head and he sat alongside the Senator while he was talking, with his followers solemnly grouped behind him. Four years ago the Indian voters of South Dakota were all Democrats, but this year they are counted as Republicans.

The Senator was listened to without interruption, although there were many Populists and Democrats at all of the meetings; in fact, at all of them every one who could by any possibility get to look at the man they had heard so much about was present, and the gatherings were the largest ever known in the history of the State.

One Diversion at Artesian.

That there were no interruptions is not, however, exactly correct, as there was one at Artesian, a little town of strong Populistic tendencies. Every resident of the town was at the depot, and in the crowd was a jackass which would do for a model of the prototype of the Democratic party in any political cartoon. This jackass was roaming around at will and evidently took a strong dislike to the whole proceedings. It made three attempts to get into Senator Hanna's car, and was driven off by the porters. Then it strolled over to the speakers' stand and picked a quarrel with a broncho. It got the worst of this, and then, mingling with the crowd, began braying in a way in which if it did not break up the meeting certainly shortened it.

Mr. Dolliver, whom it interrupted, drew a comparison between that jackass and the party it is used as a type of, but he never feazed the brute. It just kept on braying.

No Need to Defend Roosevelt.

At Mitchell a great crowd had gathered, a part of it being a delegation from White Lake, headed by a cousin of Senator Hanna. Mitchell is the town from where was sent the story that Governor Roosevelt had been intoxicated while in South Dakota, and the Senator took it up. He started to defend Governor Roosevelt, and had only said: "Some of the slanderous speakers and newspapers of this State insulted you by saying that Governor Roosevelt was intoxicated while he was in South Dakota. That is an infernal lie. Governor Roosevelt is a—" "We know it's a lie," shouted back voices from all over the crowd. "You need not tell us about it."

Then the Senator made a reference to Bryan personally, saying: "I am sorry that those who are leading the opposition have so far forgotten the dignity which surrounds the high office of the Presidency of this great nation as to descend, as Mr. Bryan has, into personal abuse. I have no objections, because he is making votes for the Republican party every time he opens his mouth. But I say that it is an exhibition of a small appreciation of the high office to which he aspires to descend to public lying from the rostrum every day.

"Why, even I have not escaped him. A meek and lowly follower in the ranks of the Republican party, simply because that party chose to honor me with their confidence and place in my hands the responsibility of the conduct of this campaign, Bryan even descends to abuse me. Well, I can stand it, I can stand it; he may call me a labor-crusher, that is all right, but if he will ever find a laborer I have crushed I will resign tomorrow."

When the speaker referred to himself as a meek and lowly member of the Republican party he wore that smile which has provoked laughter and applause from every South Dakota audience, and his closing sentence brought forth a united yell from his audience.

EVANSTON FEARS THE EXPENSE

Committee Appointed to Work Against Adoption of New Registration Law.

At a largely attended meeting in Evanston last evening a committee consisting of Corporation Counsel Paden, Alderman Patton, and H. H. C. Miller was appointed to prepare a circular explaining why the Chicago registration law should not be adopted in Evanston. The city, it was said, is in debt as far as it should go at present, and it was claimed that if the new law should be adopted it would entail an additional burden of $500 for each registration day, $500 for each school election and for each Congressional election.

H. H. C. Miller was chairman of the meeting and addresses were made by Corporation Counsel Paden, G. B. Englehart, Mayor Bates, and the Rev. Dr. Little.

The proposition was brought to the attention of the people by the Young Men's Republican club, which circulated a petition asking that the question be voted upon at the coming election. The petition was granted several weeks ago by Judge Carter.

NINTH INDIANA A CLOSE DISTRICT.

Landis May Be Defeated Even with State in the McKinley Column.

MAJORITY NEVER LARGE.

Congressman Sure of Election Only if National Ticket Gets 15,000 Plurality.

HOT CONTEST NOW WAGED.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Frankfort, Ind., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Every political observer in Indiana has his eye fixed on this Congressional district. This is what is known as the Landis district, taking its name from the hustling young Congressman rather than from any large town. This may be because there are so many large towns in the district. It is quite certain that if Indiana gives McKinley this year only a small majority the Republicans will lose two, and perhaps three, members of Congress from this State. Even with a majority the same as in 1896, it would be possible to lose the Landis district and the Terre Haute district as well. With a McKinley majority of only 10,000 in the State the Terre Haute district would certainly go by the board, and Landis would have to scratch gravel to get back to Congress. With a McKinley majority of 5,000, not only would the two northern districts be captured by the Democrats, but in all probability the Evansville district as well, where Congressman Hemenway is a candidate for reëlection.

There is probably no district in the State of Indiana where the game of politics is played with such close odds as the Ninth District, and particularly right here in Clinton County. There is only one sure county in the whole district. The other six are uncomfortably close.

Even Children Talk Politics.

Most people in Indiana are politicians, but here, in the Ninth District, the children on the streets discuss election returns and make forecasts with all the confidence of old campaigners. Much of this state of affairs is due to the aggressive character of the Republican candidate, who is "Charley" Landis. He formerly conducted a Republican paper at Delphi, and no one within a radius of 100 miles of that town has the slightest doubt as to the political preferences of the paper. It was a rantankerous organ of the Republicans, and at the same time was honestly and aggressively in favor of the Indiana idea in politics, which, of course, is to get all there is out of it, and which naturally has no more use for civil service than the devil has for hard coal.

Landis is a good fighter, as every one knows, and he is believed by every one in the district. He is as popular in Indiana as he was in Washington, where his breezy speeches made the name for him soon after he arrived at the capital. This personal popularity, however, does not help much in a political campaign in Indiana, where the lines are drawn exceedingly close, and where, as a rule, the floating voter is a commodity and establishes his own market quotations.

A man cannot manage a slapdash Republican paper like the Delphi Journal without making many enemies. The result of this was that, whereas in 1896 McKinley carried the Ninth Congressional District by 407 majority, Landis had only 249. Two years ago much the same state of affairs was true, the State ticket having a plurality in the district of 1,302, as compared with 1,090 for Landis.

Little Change in Two Years.

In 1898, as well as in 1896, the majority in Indiana for the Republicans was in round numbers 18,000 votes. The difference in the [illegible] between the two years was only a little over 500. The lines were drawn so closely here in the Ninth District at both elections as to make it seem reasonably probable now that Landis will be reëlected beyond all doubt, provided McKinley's majority goes upwards of 15,000.

The Ninth Congressional District of Indiana is made up of the Counties of Hamilton, Montgomery, Clinton, Boone, Carroll, Fountain, and Tipton. In 1896 the Republican counties were Hamilton, with 1,696 plurality, and Montgomery, with 170. The Democratic counties were Clinton, with 140 plurality; Boone, 360; Carroll, 218; Fountain, 188, and Tipton, 533. In comparing these counties with 1898, the returns at once show a striking Republican gain in every one except Boone. The Republican pluralities in Hamilton and Montgomery Counties were pushed up to a total of 2,056, as compared with 1,866 two years before.

This increase in Republican counties in an off year can scarcely mean anything except the return of Republicans who went off after free silver in 1896. This is even more strikingly shown in the Democratic counties. In Carroll, Fountain, and Tipton the Democratic plurality was only one-third as large in 1898 as two years previous. There was a Democratic gain in Boone County from purely local causes. The most significant change was here in Clinton County. It reversed its form to such an extent as to turn a Democratic plurality of 140 into a Republican margin of 100.

Figures Small but Important.

These figures may seem rather petty to people in cities who are accustomed to dealing with large figures, but narrow margins are what make elections in Indiana, and as Landis, for instance, was elected by a plurality of only 250 four years ago, whereas the Prohibition vote in his district is normally a good deal larger than that, the importance of these close counties becomes apparent.

Here, in Clinton County, there were quite a number of Republican farmers who were stanch free silver men. They read Coin's book all winter and subscribed to a weekly paper in Chicago, which the leaders on both sides say did much to foment the silver idea, because the paper had always been considered a Republican organ. The returns may be taken as an indication that the farmers have certainly come back to the Republican party.

A glance at the map will show that the Landis district is almost exclusively an agricultural one. It runs into the edge of the gas belt at Noblesville and Tipton, but the gas is disappearing from that section, and to all intents and purposes the Landis district may be taken as a type of the agricultural counties of northern Indiana. It contains a number of really beautiful country towns, including Delphi, Frankfort, Crawfordsville, Lebanon, Tipton, and Noblesville. Each of these is surrounded by a splendid agricultural district, and it is this fact which leads to the belief that with any kind of a full vote Landis is certain of reëlection.

Why Roosevelt Did Not Stop.

They don't confine themselves entirely to national issues down in this political bear garden, but they take pretty much anything that comes to hand. For instance, the burning question propounded by the Democrats invariably is why Roosevelt refused to stop in Carroll County, in spite of all the efforts made, but went shooting along down to Frankfort, and even then studiously avoided mentioning the name of Mr. Landis. There is a story back of all this which the Democrats seized upon and have circulated in printed form from one end of the district to the other. It has not hurt Landis, so far as can be discovered, as the people down here do not mind such things, but it throws a curious side light upon the campaign in this vicinity.

Long years ago, for reasons best known to himself, the vigorous young editor, who always had the practical politician's instinct, took a dislike to civil service reform. He was never famous for hiding his views on any subject and has always had the habit of hitting a head whenever he saw it. It resulted, therefore, that Editor Landis, in the pride of his youthful antagonism, said some real mean things about Theodore Roosevelt, who was then only a Civil Service Commissioner. For instance, Mr. Landis said of Roosevelt in those nearly forgotten days: "He is a young dude. He is by nature a mugwump, and consequently a Democrat. There is not a pure drop of Republican blood in his body. By what right he is elevated to the dictatorship of the Republican party?"

This was quite a little while ago, but Landis has never let up on Roosevelt, and in April, 1897, just after McKinley's inauguration, Landis, then Congressman, pitched into Roosevelt because of his appointment as Assistant Secretary of the Navy by declaring that he was "a chronic office seeker and a spoilsman."

Editorial Denounces New-Yorker.

In the same article the editor-Congressman declared that "from Maine to California and from Canada to the gulf every county, township, and precinct may be searched, and no case of office itch half so bad as Teddy's own could be discovered. It is both chronic and acute."

The Democratic managers had these and other extracts printed, and they even went to the rather unusual extent of handing the pamphlets to Colonel Roosevelt himself on his private train, and even of mailing them to Mrs. Roosevelt. The facts would seem to justify the Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency in not stopping in Landis' county and failing to remember the Congressman's name while in the district.

The incident, while it has aroused an immense amount of fun, has not hurt Landis much, and he has taken the wisest possible course in ignoring the matter entirely.

To make up for the loss of Roosevelt in his home county, Landis secured a visit from Mark Hanna, who came down to Delphi and honored the young Congressman in his speech in a particularly gratifying way.

Opinion is greatly divided throughout the district as to whether Captain D. F. Allen, the Democratic candidate for Congress, is or is not a strong candidate. He is the Captain of a company of volunteers now in the Philippines and has made no attempt to come back to enter into the campaign. Quite a number of people, with the usual American ideas of fair play, are inclined to vote for Allen because he is away. His friends have set him up as a war hero who prefers to stay fighting the battles of his country. On the other hand, his letter of acceptance shows that he does not believe in the expansion theory, and apparently has no heart in the fighting. The members of his company in the Philippines passed a resolution indorsing him, and practically all of them are from this district.

Soldiers Not All His Friends.

On the other hand, THE TRIBUNE correspondent could, if it were necessary, put his hand on twenty-five or fifty letters written to parents and friends here by privates in Captain Allen's company, who say he would not get the votes of fifteen men. The letters represent that the rank and file are indignant at him for running on a platform which is a condemnation of the policy of the President of the United States, Captain Allen's superior officer.

These private soldiers feel that if Allen does not believe in the conquest of the Philippines he ought to resign, and that his campaign for Congress on the Democratic platform comes near to being treason. These men do not dare to have their letters published, as the Captain of a company in the army can make things exceedingly interesting for any private soldiers he takes a dislike to.

This is the dilemma which Captain Allen is said to face. It is claimed he would like to come home to express his real views, but he is afraid to resign, because then the members of his company would repudiate him publicly.

There is an old French proverb that "The absent are always wrong," but, aside from that, it is a noticeable fact that, while up in Delphi one could hear nothing against Landis personally, down here in Frankfort there is an abundance of neighborhood gossip against Allen. In the first place, he was a national bank President, which is not relished by the old-time Populistic element, and he has had a rather stormy career besides that. He was indicted once for killing a man, and escaped on the plea of insanity. Then, too, it is charged that he bought up stock in a whole string of independent telephone companies here in Indiana and then turned it over to the Bell monopoly.

Besides all this, Captain Allen has roused other animosities, and the Presbyterian Church here, in particular, is opposing his election for purely local reasons.

Makes Foes by His Appointments.

Congressman Landis, like many another man, is now reaping some of the crop he sowed in his opposition to civil service. He had the distribution of all the little postoffices and rural delivery routes in his district. This petty patronage scattered throughout the counties and in every little hamlet has done more than any one thing to injure Landis, as for every friend he has made by a postoffice appointment he has accumulated half a dozen bitter enemies. No one admits this fact more than the Republican leaders themselves.

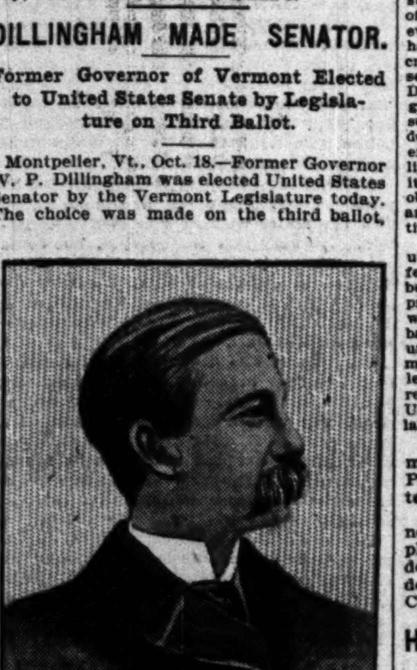
The general sentiment in the district, which, as explained, is entirely agricultural, is certainly for McKinley. There are several towns in this district, however, to say nothing of Frankfort itself, where the campaign is made or lost within the last forty-eight hours. As the matter now stands, McKinley and Landis would certainly carry this district, even on a vote no fuller than two years ago. If the Democrats dump a lot of money in here the day before election they could offset this normal Republican majority, and this is the thing that Republican leaders are endeavoring to provide against.

The campaign here is already hot, but it will be a good deal warmer on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, Nov. 3, 4, and 5.

DILLINGHAM MADE SENATOR.

Former Governor of Vermont Elected to United States Senate by Legislature on Third Ballot.

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 18.—Former Governor W. P. Dillingham was elected United States Senator by the Vermont Legislature today. The choice was made on the third ballot, C. A. Prouty, one of the four Republican candidates, having withdrawn, and the Democratic members who previously had voted for Seneca Hazelton having decided to support Dillingham.



WILLIAM P. DILLINGHAM.
[New Senator from Vermont.]

William Paul Dillingham has been Governor of Vermont, as was his father before him. He was born at Waterbury, Vt., in 1843, and after receiving an education in Vermont went to Wisconsin and read law for two years in the office of Senator Matt H. Carpenter. He was admitted to the bar of Vermont in 1867. His public life began in 1872, when he was elected State's Attorney. In 1874 he was appointed Secretary of Civil and Military Affairs by Governor Peck of Vermont, and in 1876 he was elected to the Legislature. From 1882 to 1888 he was State Tax Commissioner, and in 1888 was elected Governor of Vermont. He has always been prominent in the promotion of education and temperance.

Towne Concedes Wyoming to McKinley

Charles A. Towne came to Chicago yesterday and made admission that the Republicans will carry Wyoming. "There is not a State west of the Missouri River," he said, "that Mr. Bryan carried four years ago that he will not carry this year except Wyoming. I believe that State will go Republican. But I also believe the Democrats will get California."

Governor, After Speaking in Ohio Towns, Crosses to Another State.

FINDS SOME HOSTILITY.

Curtis Guild Jr. Takes Occasion to Make Plain Talk to Band of Disturbers.

CROWDS AT ALL MEETINGS.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Parkersburg, W. Va., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Governor Roosevelt crossed over from Ohio at noon today and began his work in West Virginia. Before quitting the Buckeye State the Governor spoke at Canton, the home of President McKinley, Akron, and Navarre. The entire day was a repetition of any one of the forty-one preceding which the Governor has spent on this record breaking campaign trip. The enthusiasm was unbounded everywhere and it seemed that the country emptied itself of its population, so great were the crowds that greeted the speaker at each town and hamlet.

The largest meeting of the day was that of Wheeling. There Governor Roosevelt spoke at the Fair Grounds to an audience which filled the amphitheater and the exhibit grounds in front. There was a parade, in which hundreds of the laboring men of the city marched.

After reaching West Virginia, Governor Roosevelt followed the line of argument he advanced in Kentucky, largely devoting himself to a plea for a free ballot and a fair count. All was orderly until the Town of St. Mary's was reached. St. Mary's is the only town in West Virginia where a negro is not allowed to reside. Negroes are not even permitted to get off the trains at that point by the inhabitants.

Plain Talk to Band of Disturbers.

A band of rowdies undertook by yelling for Bryan to break up the meeting while Governor Roosevelt was speaking. They got near the platform and kept up a continual howl. Roosevelt spoke briefly and was followed by Colonel Curtis Guild. Colonel Guild took a different tack with the rowdies from the one Governor Roosevelt had pursued, and quickly silenced them.

Colonel Guild said: "It is not extraordinary that the party which denies a free ballot in Kentucky and in North Carolina should deny free speech in West Virginia. We stand for law and order, for the right of every citizen entitled to vote by law to cast his vote as he pleases and to have it honestly counted.

"Shout for the flag of a Tagal bandit if you will. It is appropriate as the emblem of a party that encourages disorder in the United States and the burning at the stake of American prisoners in the Philippines."

Governor's Roosevelt's voice was in fair condition after his day's work, and it is thought by his medical adviser it will hold to the end of the campaign if he saves it a little. The Governor made eleven speeches today, counting the one in the wigwam at Parkersburg tonight. Tomorrow he will make ten speeches, finishing the West Virginia campaign with a night meeting at Hinton.

JONES ISSUES A STATEMENT.

He Charges the Republican Party with Having a Monopoly on Revolutionary Suggestions.

Chairman Jones of the Democratic National committee issued a statement last evening, in which he charges the Republicans with having a monopoly on revolutionary suggestions. The statement is as follows:

> It has been the fashion for the Republicans for some years to denounce Democrats as Anarchists, revolutionists, etc., but all fair-minded men will admit that at this time the Republican party seems to have a monopoly of revolutionary suggestions.
>
> We see a Secretary of the Treasury, in an effort to disturb the business of the country for political effect, suggesting that Mr. Bryan, in case of his election, would deliberately evade the law, with a purpose as unstatesmanlike and unpatriotic as his own in making these suggestions. Fortunately, Mr. Bryan has been before the public long enough for everyone to know that tricks and false pretenses are not among his weapons, and suggestions of this kind excite contempt.
>
> But worse than this is the fact that other men, who should despise such pretenses, affect to believe that in case Mr. Bryan is elected he will pack the Supreme Court for purposes of his own. Can it be possible that the men themselves actually contemplate such revolutionary methods in case Mr. McKinley is elected? If they do not find this danger in their own minds, it is difficult to conjecture where their distempered imaginations find a pretext for it. Certainly no such revolutionary schemes ever entered the mind of any Democrat. It has not been advocated, or even suggested, by any Democrat of whom I have ever heard. There is nothing in any Democratic platform, or in the utterances of any assemblage of Democrats, or of any single leading Democrat to suggest such an idea. These suggestions originate only with Republicans and seem to show that when once the party has abandoned the principles of the constitution, to what extraordinary lengths its extreme members are likely to go at once. This manifestation is of itself a strong argument for a return to a strict observance to the principles of the constitution and to the Democratic doctrine of a conservative and honest government.
>
> I repeat, that there is nothing in any Democratic utterance upon which this false pretense of a fear of "attack upon the Supreme Court" can be founded. The construction put upon the expressions in the Democratic platform of 1896, which were perverted and misconstrued as a basis for such charges, was unwarranted and untrue. No such purpose has ever entered the mind of any Democrat, but, on the contrary, the leading idea with Democrats everywhere is to return to the principles of the constitution of the United States and to faithfully administer the laws as written.

With reference to Chairman Jones' comment on the Supreme Court, Vice Chairman Payne of the Republican committee had this to say:

"All any person interested in this matter needs do will be simply to read the Chicago platform. He will learn in a perusal of that document whether the Democratic party under Bryan's leadership attacked the Supreme Court or not."

HAWAIIAN VOTERS REGISTER.

Books in the New Territory Closed on Oct. 9 with Good Showing.

HONOLULU, Oct. 11, via San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18.—[Correspondence.]—Registration for this Territory closed on Thursday night, the 9th. The total registration for the District of Oahu was 5,891. Returns have not been received from the other islands, but it is estimated that about 3,000 names have been enrolled on Hawaii, 2,000 on Maui, and 1,000 on Kauai. During the last few days preceding the close of registration there was a rush to the United States Judge to be naturalized. Close to 300 foreigners were declared citizens, but in some instances applications were refused on account of inability to read and write.

VOICE FROM GRAVE FOR BRYAN.

Epitaph on Tombstone of B. B. Norris of Mexico, Mo., Bears Peculiar Appeal.

Mexico, Mo., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Probably the oddest epitaph on record has been ordered on a monument to be made at a marble establishment in this city. It is to be erected at the grave of B. B. Norris, who died in Montgomery County in April. It reads as follows: "To the memory of B. B. Norris; died in April. Kind friends I've left behind, cast your vote for Jennings Bryan."

SAY MAYOR KNIFES BRYAN

HARRISON DENOUNCED AT MEETING OF SILVER DEMOCRATS.

Altgeld Men Declare That the Cook County Machine Is Preparing to Sell Out the Nebraska Candidate and Resolve to Have Watchers at the Polls to See That No Trading Is Done—Warm Praise for Former Governor, Who Is Called Real Leader.

Carter H. Harrison and the Cook County Democratic organization were roundly denounced last night at a meeting of the Chicago Platform Democratic club, held at room 240 Unity Building, to arrange for the selection of watchers at the polls on election day. It was even charged that the Mayor and his followers are preparing to sell out Bryan in Cook County.

The meeting was called by Nober Gottlieb, who presided. Three hundred members were present, and the statements concerning the alleged duplicity of the Democratic machine were received with enthusiasm.

The sentiment was voiced that an effort was to be made by the leaders of the machine to defeat Bryan, and it was unanimously decided that men be placed in every polling place to watch the Democratic judges and clerks of election.

The meeting was addressed by State Senator Joseph P. Mahoney, William J. Strong, Roman V. Lewis, Joseph S. Martin, and D. L. Cruice.

Senator Mahoney said:

"It is the duty of every Democrat to go out and voice to the world his distrust of the Cook County machine and of Carter H. Harrison in this election. The true Democrat is the one who follows the lines laid down by John P. Altgeld. Mayor Harrison is not and never was a Democrat. Two years ago on the floor of the State Senate I made that statement and I reaffirm it. He is not at the present time in favor of free silver and never has been. The election of William Jennings Bryan is not desired by Harrison or any of his crowd. Tell it to the world, and through shame or fear, drive them into line."

Imperialism in Chicago.

The remarks of Attorney William J. Strong were even more radical:

"We have imperialism right at home," he said, "and the Cook County machine is the worst imperialistic power in the country. But we will not be controlled by that kind of politicians. We do not trust them, and insist on having fair play in the count of the ballots.

"We are designated as soreheads who cannot get office for that reason and the 'man of destiny' boasts of the sore toes of those who have dared oppose him. Not one of those men hope for the election of Bryan, and we will see that no Lorimer trading will be done to help Harrison when his time comes."

Roman V. Lewis asserted that the clerks and judges of election of both parties were ignorant and corrupt politicians, and told of an assault on himself by Democratic officials. He feared for the safety of the watchers who would be sent into the polling places.

A committee was appointed to name the watchers, who will be selected at the meeting of the club at the Auditorium on Oct. 23.

Mayor Says He's Loyal.

"The statements that the Cook County leaders are hostile to Bryan are not only false but absurd," said Mayor Harrison last night, when told of the Altgeld meeting. "The utterances of the other speakers are scarcely worth consideration, but I am surprised at Senator Mahoney's remarks. Such statements in the midst of a campaign show bad generalship. It is supplying the enemy with ammunition when we should be forming a solid front against it. The leaders of the party and myself are loyal to William Jennings Bryan, and we are going to do all we can to elect him."

YATES CALLS UP THE PAST.

Quotes Extracts from State Register to Show That Democrats Abused Lincoln as They Do McKinley.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Paxton, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Within the last twenty-four hours Judge Yates has addressed four great gatherings in Greenville, Tuscola, Champaign, and in this city. The Greenville meeting began yesterday morning and ran until last night. The crowd could only be estimated by the acre.

At Tuscola this morning there were 5,000 people in the courthouse park awaiting Judge Yates and Senator Cullom. Judge Yates made an unusually strong address, in the course of which he read the following extracts from the Springfield State Register of Nov. 6, 1864:

> Lovers of liberty, sons of revolutionary sires, we call upon you in the name of everything you hold dear, to vote down Abraham Lincoln. If you do not, farewell to white men's freedom! Farewell to your ancient liberties! Farewell to free government!
>
> Remember that every vote given to Mr. Lincoln at the coming election is a distinct declaration that the giver believes the cause of the union to be identified with executive despotism and the destruction of constitutional liberty in America.

Judge Yates said the Democrats now made the same charges against President McKinley that they did against Mr. Lincoln thirty-six years ago. Continuing, he said of Bryan's false prophecies:

"The events of the last four years have justified the wisdom of the people's course in 1896. They have utterly contradicted every prediction made by W. J. Bryan in that year. He made many such as this one in his Minneapolis speech. (See page 559 of the book called 'The First Battle'):

> "The gold standard means dearer money; dearer money means cheaper property; cheaper property means harder times; harder times means more people out of work; more people out of work means more people destitute; more people destitute means more people desperate; more people desperate means more crime.

"All such predictions of 'dearer money,' 'cheaper property,' 'harder times,' 'destitute people,' 'desperate people,' and 'more crime,'" continued Judge Yates, "have proved absolutely false.

"If Mr. Bryan is elected President it will be his policy and his duty, under his convictions—or, at least, his declarations—to surround himself with a silver Cabinet—Allen, Bailey, Stone, Jones, Towne, Tillman, Croker, and Altgeld; to appoint a silver Supreme Court; to put at the head of every bureau in the Treasury department, and in every department related thereto, a free silver official."

Senator Cullom and Congressmen Warner and Prince also made addresses at Tuscola.

DEBATE THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE.

Members of the Sunset Club Discuss the Question at a Banquet Given at the Palmer House.

"What is the paramount issue in the national campaign?" was the question discussed last evening at the banquet given by the Sunset club at the Palmer House.

Charles F. Harding, chairman, introduced Fred A. Bangs and Edward Osgood Brown as the principal speakers. Mr. Bangs took the ground that the money question is the paramount issue of the campaign. Mr. Brown named imperialism as the issue. W. H. Banning, candidate for Congress in the Second District, said the vested rights is the principal issue of the campaign. J. H. Hill said that $1,000,000,000 was spent each year for intoxicating liquor and for this reason he thought the liquor question is the paramount issue. Mr. A. M. Simon, Socialist, said that imperialism is a subordinate issue to that of the rights of the laboring man.

ENDS DAY AT SYRACUSE.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 18.—William J. Bryan continued his tour of the Empire State today, traveling half way across it from east to west. He began his journey at Albany, and reached this point late in the afternoon. From here he made a run northward to the southern shore of Lake Ontario, and made a speech of half an hour's duration at Oswego. Returning to this city later, he spoke here tonight.

The other points at which he spoke during the day were Schenectady, Amsterdam, Fonda, Johnstown, Gloversville, Fort Plain, Little Falls, Herkimer, Ilion, Frankfort, Utica, Rome, Oneida, Canastota, Chittenango, and Dewitt. The attendance at the majority of the meetings was complimentary in size and some of the audiences were large. In comparatively few places was there marked enthusiasm. There was, however, close attention in every instance, and in no case was there any interruption worthy of note. The Oswego meeting was the best attended, and in other respects the most notable of the day.

Mr. Bryan spoke from a balcony in front of Stanwix Hall in Rome. Mr. Bryan said the large attendance could not be accounted for upon the ground of curiosity, because he had been in this city before, and the people there had had an opportunity to see and hear him. He accused the Republicans of avoidance of the real issues of the campaign.

Promises to Abolish Trusts.

Referring to the trusts in the Utica speech he said:

"If the Democratic party is intrusted with power it is pledged to put forth every effort to destroy private monopoly in nation, State, and city, and I think that even the Republicans now give me credit for being honest in my determination to carry out the platform. In fact a Senator said the other day that that was the great objection to me—that I was honest and therefore dangerous—an objection that cannot be made to some Republicans who have been in power. I have promised that my Attorney General will not come from New Jersey and I have promised that he will enforce the law."

Mr. Bryan made ten minute speeches at the four towns of Oneida, Canastota, Chittenango, and Dewitt.

The Oswego meeting was held in Washington Square, and the bandstand, which was utilized as a speakers' platform, was surrounded by a vast mass of humanity packed so closely together that it looked as if it would be impossible to get Mr. Bryan or other members of the party from the train. Mr. Bryan spoke for only about half an hour. He mounted a table so that all could see.

The return trip to Syracuse was made in an hour, and this city was reached at 8 o'clock.

SMALL CUT IN REGISTRATION.

Final Revision of the Lists Tomorrow Will Still Leave Over 400,000 Qualified Voters.

Registration figures may suffer a cutting down of less than 3,500 by the final revision to be made by the Board of Election Commissioners tomorrow night. With a deduction of the 1,500 women who registered, and all others counted out because of lack of qualification, the total of legal men voters after revision probably will be over 400,000. In 1896 the total net men's registration after revision was 373,981.

"The net men's registration after revision will be over 400,000," said Chief Clerk Isaac N. Powell. "The small number of notices to show qualification thus far sent out indicate that while the registration this year has been the greatest, the number of men registered found unqualified will be less than in 1896."

Notices to show qualifications given out by the 2,054 clerks yesterday, today, and tomorrow must be responded to between 6 and 10 p. m. tomorrow night or the person so notified will be adjudged as not qualified.

The Democratic committee as yet has made no charge of Republican stuffing of the registry. The charge circulated that Italians and Poles had been brought from the West to swell the Republican registration has as yet been brought to no formal complaint.

HILL WILL SPEAK TONIGHT.

Democratic Marching Club Will Escort Him to the Meeting in the Second Regiment Armory.

While the Democratic campaign managers do not expect as large a crowd to see and hear David B. Hill of New York tonight as Bourke Cockran drew, they will give him a warm and hearty reception. Mr. Hill will speak tonight at the Second Regiment Armory, Washington boulevard and Curtis street, under the auspices of the Cook County committee. Secretary Robert E. Burke has made all arrangements for it. The former Governor and United States Senator of the Empire State will be escorted from the Sherman House to the armory by Captain Farrell and 200 members of the Cook County Democracy Marching club. Mayor Harrison will act as chairman of the meeting and introduce the distinguished speaker.

SAYS MILITARISM IS IMPOSSIBLE

George E. Adams, in Speech at Cedarville, Ill., Declares It Cannot Exist.

Cedarville, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—George E. Adams of Chicago in a speech here addressed to the voters of Stephenson County said:

"Militarism in the United States is an impossibility. Whenever it becomes a real danger Congress will check it by refusing appropriations. No Congressman will dare to support it.

"You are represented in Congress by a man of national and even international influence. Mr. Hitt could fill with credit to himself and advantage to the country any position under the government. You are justly proud of him.

"Yet if Mr. Hitt voted to appropriate money for the support of militarism you would defeat him at the next election."

BARROWS IS FOR M'KINLEY.

Republican Press Bureau Issues a Letter from Him Strongly Urging the President's Re-election.

President John H. Barrows of Oberlin College has issued a letter strongly urging the reëlection of McKinley. Copies of the letter were issued for publication by the Republican National Press bureau yesterday. In part he says: "The reëlection of McKinley is demanded on the grounds of patriotism, good sense, and national honor. He is the best equipped man in America for the Presidency. He has gained in public estimation, and grown in wisdom much after the manner of Abraham Lincoln."

YOUTSEY TRIAL GOES ON.

DYING MAN SUBJECTED TO FORM OF LEGAL FICTION.

tives were not allowed access to him. The privilege of a trained nurse was first granted and then his wife was given permission to go to him.

Rules Laid Down to Jury.

The instructions of Judge Cantrill today were as follows:

First—If the jury believes that defendant shot Goebel or aided or abetted Jim Howard, Berry Howard, Dick Combs, or any one of them, in the shooting, then he is guilty of murder.

Second—That the testimony of accomplices alone must not be relied on to convict.

Third—The jury must believe the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt before they ought to convict.

Fourth—The jury has the right to disregard the testimony of any witness who they believe willfully and maliciously testified falsely.

Lawyers Create a Scene.

During the progress of the arguments Judge Askew closed at 9 o'clock and Colonel Campbell began for the prosecution. He said he believed the counsel for defense put Mrs. Stamper on the stand knowing her story was untrue. When he said this Judge Askew said: "That's untrue."

The Judge rapped for order. Colonel Campbell repeated his statement. "That's untrue," again said Askew.

"Do you mean to say that we knew Mrs. Stamper was going to tell an untruth?" interposed Colonel Nelson.

"I said that as plainly as I could," replied Campbell.

"Then I say you state what is absolutely false," said Nelson angrily.

"Mr. Clerk, enter a fine of $20 against Colonel Nelson," said Judge Cantrill.

A personal encounter was imminent, but was averted by the prompt action of Judge Cantrill and the Sheriffs.

The friends of the murdered Goebel make merciless accusations against Youtsey, and the realization that proof was becoming conclusive caused his collapse.

His family declare he has been done to death by conspiracy, and say that, even if released, he cannot live two weeks.

JONES IS AGAINST EXPANSION.

Pastor of All Souls' Church Says That Prosperity and the Full Dinner Pail Are All Wrong.

At Rosalie Hall, Hyde Park, the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones last evening explained to an audience of 600 people why he could not approve of the expansion policy of the national administration. The meeting was called to order by Edwin Burrit Smith, who presided and introduced the Rev. Mr. Jones as the principal speaker of the evening. In part he said:

> There is no issue equal to liberty and progress, and I declare that Mark Hanna's argument of the full dinner pail is an insult to the workingmen who have shown themselves ready to die for others in the past and who are ready to continue doing so in the future.
>
> The "prosperity" argument, thrust forward at this time over the graves of 30,000 men, is a ghastly indication of the degeneracy of public ideals. Governments have been based on the idea that there is an academic element in statesmanship, implying a breadth of vision and a grasp of principle which does not often come from the manipulation of bonds, the clipping of coupons, or the computations of business. So far has the degeneracy gone that I am inclined to excuse McKinley and his adjuncts. They are effects, not the causes, in the present situation. The administration has confounded divinity and the dollar. It is worshiping the dollar.

BEVERIDGE TO THE YOUNG MEN.

Indiana's Junior Senator Addresses First Voters at Indianapolis and Ridicules Militarism.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Senator Beveridge spoke to a large audience of young men in this city tonight. He addressed himself particularly to the first voters, saying: "Can the young men of this nation be frightened by the words 'imperialism,' 'militarism,' and all such shibboleths of fear? Who can establish an empire, young men of America, without your consent? Where will come the soldiers who will set their bayonets at the throat of our free institutions if you, young men of America, yourselves do not become those soldiers?

"Militarism! Imperialism! Young men of America, will you strike your colors to a fear, and that fear a fear of yourselves? Your future is in your own hands. Your fate is in your own hands. There can be no standing army which you yourselves do not provide from among yourselves."

CROKER ABUSES GOV. ROOSEVELT.

Tammany Chief Says the Republican Lies About Him and the Ice Trust.

GROWS ANGRY IN TALKING

Insists Vice-Presidential Candidate Is Trying to Make Capital Out of His Name.

STATE FOR BRYAN, HE ADDS.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Oct. 18.

Croker Says Roosevelt Lies About Him.

Richard Croker talked for publication again this evening. The scene was the Democratic club and Governor Roosevelt was the victim of the Tammany leader's wrath. "That fellow Roosevelt," said Mr. Croker angrily, "is going around the country lying about me. When he says I am hiring a lawyer to prevent the prosecution of the ice trust he lies and he knows he lies. I say that this fellow Roosevelt is insincere. Why don't he talk about the Republican politicians who are stockholders and officers of the ice trust? Why don't he talk about Frank Platt and J. Sloat Fassett? They are in the ice trust and Fassett is on the stump whooping things up for the 'grand old party.'

"And Roosevelt is going around the country just like a clown in a circus. He is cutting up a lot of capers. He is trying to make political capital out of me, but he keeps mighty quiet about Tom Platt. He forgets that the ice trust is controlled by Republicans and that all the officers of the trust are Republicans and will vote for McKinley and Roosevelt."

Mr. Croker then said that Bryan was receiving a great ovation in his trip through the State.

"Do you think he will carry the State?" he was asked.

"He is going to carry the State," replied Mr. Croker, "and I don't say this because of the immense crowds that turn out to hear him. The silent vote is for Bryan. I tell you the Republicans are frightened about this State. They are only bluffing when they say that McKinley will have 100,000 plurality."

Savage Tells of His English Grand Opera Venture.

Henry W. Savage said today regarding the experiment of grand opera in English: "While it is premature to draw conclusions from the operatic doings of less than three weeks, I must say that the public support accorded to the new enterprise has been extremely gratifying. In fact, the box office figures for the two complete weeks were so good as to mightily surprise Mr. Grau, whom I have kept informed of the progress of our joint venture. We are working, moreover, for the future as well as the present. What I am trying now to accomplish is the quickest possible acquaintance of our public with what we have to offer. The public must indicate to us which programs it likes best, and also as to whether prices are right. We bring forward new singers; we are not interested in pushing any particular artists; if the public likes them, well and good; if not, we must give them others. In short, there is elasticity in our scheme and we are closely watching the tension exerted by the public."

Miss Gast Continues Her Wonderful Bicycle Ride.

The remarkable woman bicyclist, Marguerite Gast, who has been riding for twelve successive days, rounded up her twenty-sixth century on the course at Valley Stream, L. I., at 7:30 o'clock tonight. All obstacles toward completion of the 3,000 mile journey have been overcome so far by the little woman, who confidently expects to finish her task early on Saturday evening. Her physical condition has improved wonderfully since the 2,000 miles were completed and all the road records for the distance cast in the shade.

Before that she sprinkled red pepper in her stockings so the pain would keep her awake. Now the stiffness of joints and soreness of muscles prevalent during the early part of the ride have disappeared. Miss Gast's appetite has returned, there is a brightness to her eyes, and a healthful glow on her cheeks. The new champion does not ride like a tired woman, and throughout the day has followed pace in remarkably good style.

She secures now about seven hours' rest in every twenty-four, and to this is attributed in a measure her physical improvement.

Until she finished 2,000 miles four hours in the twenty-four were considered sufficient for rest, for until that mark was reached she had a record to break. Every mile she rides now is a record in itself, and the time will be comparatively slow until she reaches the 3,000 mark which she has set as the limit.

The Nassau County authorities have no intention of interfering with the ride.

Millionaire Miner Faces Two Breach-of-Promise Suits.

"Sam" Strong, millionaire gold miner of Cripple Creek, and one of the most widely known men in Colorado, has had the happiness of his honeymoon alloyed by too many breach of promise suits, he says. He has spent the last four months in Europe, where, with his bride, he has visited the Riviera, traversed the Alps, and drifted in gondolas through Venetian canals. Now that he has returned he has a rough journey through the courts before him, for two Western girls, who allege that the millionaire miner gave them cause to believe they would be the future Mrs. Strong, have strewn his way with legal bowlders aggregating $400,000.

"I didn't know how popular I was until I got married," said Mr. Strong. "I never was a 'ladies' man,' although I liked to talk to them, but when it came to 'popping the question,' I didn't do it. These suits are the penalties a man pays when he gets a little money. Everybody wants his pocketbook. Other people put these notions in the girls' heads."

"Sam told me before we were married," said Mrs. Strong, "that he expected to be bothered by some women. I have perfect faith in him. He can manage his own affairs."

Hammerstein to Begin Work on His Eighth Theater.

Oscar Hammerstein, the most indefatigable theater builder in the world, will immediately begin the construction of his eighth playhouse. This afternoon he signed contracts with the Whiting Manufacturing company for the purchase of a plat of ground 200x125 feet, situated on the north side of Thirty-fourth street, 120 feet west of its intersection with Eighth avenue. The passing of the deed will take place within a week. The site embraces ten lots.

On the property Mr. Hammerstein will build what he says will be the largest theater in this country. It will be named the Drury Lane, because in some respects it will be modeled after that famous old London playhouse. The seating capacity will be 4,000. There will be four tiers or balconies, and the stage will measure 80x125 feet. The cost, it is estimated, will be between $600,000 and $700,000.

Ireland Talks of Our Triumphs at Paris.

The results of America's participation in the Paris exposition will be increased commerce with foreign nations, increased investments of foreign capital in her mines, railroads, and industrial enterprises, and last, but certainly not least in value, increased esteem in which she will be held by foreign nations," said Archbishop Ireland today. The prelate has just returned from a long visit to Europe, and is enthusiastic over the showing made by his compatriots at Paris.

"Already, as I heard from exhibiters, a strong demand has set in for the products of our fields and workshops," continued the Archbishop, "and the profits accruing from such demand more than cover the expense of participation in the exposition.

"A new era has set in for us in our commercial and diplomatic relations. With the opening of the twentieth century America steps into the front rank of nations, and there are none who refuse her the place to which she is entitled. For all this a large award of praise must be allotted to her part in the Paris exposition and to the men who were her agents in the exposition."

Farm in Russell Sage's Name Sold for Taxes.

A fine hundred-acre farm, near Nyack, standing in the name of Russell Sage, was sold at auction today because Mr. Sage refused to pay the taxes. The amount due was only $150, and the farm is worth $7,500. The sale took place at New City, the Rockland Count seat, and was made by County Treasurer Randolph. When the crowd learned that Russell Sage was the owner and that he was letting the farm go for $150 not a bidder opened his mouth. They suspected that the title must be full of holes or that there was some other hidden defect about the place, else why should the sagacious financier let property worth $7,500 go for $150?

Vainly Mr. Randolph tried to coax a bid out of the crowd, and finally he was forced to buy it in for the county for $150.

Mr. Sage was seen tonight at his home on Fifth avenue. "I always pay my taxes," said Mr. Sage. "That couldn't have been any land owned by me."

Mr. Sage turned away as if his business sagacity had been mortally insulted.

Preparing Monster Reception to Roosevelt.

The attention of the Republican organization is being concentrated upon the reception to be given to Governor Roosevelt at Madison Square Garden on the evening of Oct. 26. The subject was debated at a meeting of the Executive committee of the County committee for four hours this afternoon, and was resumed in the evening at a meeting of the General County committee, which reaffirmed the action of the Executive committee as to the details already worked out. Marshal Halpin said that he had decided upon the list of deputies, which would be ready by tomorrow, and that all the details would be completed by Monday.

"I will have more than 60,000 people out on the evening of the 26th," he continued, "and they will be people living in the County of New York, with the exception of the delegation from Richmond.

"We will fill the garden with people, and the overflow will be so great that we have arranged for the construction of a dozen stands about the garden, from which addresses will be delivered.

"I believe the meeting will bring out a larger crowd of people and be far more enthusiastic than the Bryan demonstration."

Kipling Files Voluminous Deposition in His Suit.

One of the biggest depositions on record was officially opened in the United States Circuit Court today when Rudyard Kipling's testimony, taken in London on Oct. 5, in his suit against G. P. Putnam's Sons, D. Appleton & Co., the Doubleday-McClure company, Charles Scribner & Sons, and the Century company, was filed. Olin & Rives are the lawyers for the various publishing houses, and Augustus T. Gueritz for Rudyard Kipling. Their consent had to be obtained before the immense envelope containing the deposition could be legally opened.

The document contains hundreds and hundreds of typewritten pages that have been corrected in Mr. Kipling's own handwriting. Wherever he made a correction or interlineation he signed his initials to show that it had been made by himself.

Judge Lacombe decided that the deposition should not be made public until the case came to trial, which will be in January next.

Kipling has brought suit against the publishing houses for having issued unauthorized editions of his works.

Experts Testify in Rice Forgery Case.

Experts in handwriting, of whom nineteen have been engaged by counsel for the relatives, were the chief witnesses in the Rice forgery examination before Magistrate Brann today. Only two of the experts testified. William J. Kinsley was called first. He was shown the disputed signatures on two checks and two which were admitted to be good, and declared that they were not written by the same hand. He described the disputed signatures as showing a halting, hesitating movement of the pen which was not held in the manner indicated by the genuine signatures.

Mr. Carvalho being called testified that the signatures on the $25,000 and $65,000 checks were both forgeries. He said that a gold, fine pointed pen was used in tracing the original.

"Are you sure it was a tracing?" asked the court.

"I am sure of it."

Mr. Carvalho said the signatures were the work of an unskilled forger. Mr. Carvalho also pronounced the Fifth Avenue Trust company checks presented by Patrick to be forgeries.

Mrs. Potter Palmer Will Winter in New York.

Letters received in this city today from Mrs. Potter Palmer, whose social success in Paris has been gratifying to friends, announced that she will make her home in this city next winter and will give a series of social entertainments which promise to be the most notable she has ever attempted. Mrs. Palmer writes she has leased Beaulieu, W. W. Astor's villa at Newport, where she passed the summer two years ago. She is already planning for a series of big summer entertainments.

Mrs. Palmer is negotiating for a winter house in Fifth avenue. She wants one already furnished, as she does not care to bring any furniture from Chicago.

While Charles T. Yerkes was in Paris she tried to obtain his house, but Mr. Yerkes was not ready to give her an answer until he returned to New York. Mrs. Palmer also tried to rent the house which Howard Gould has taken for the season.

Weber and Fields Burlesque Thomas' "Arizona."

Weber and Fields turned the X rays of burlesque on "Arizona" tonight and made Augustus Thomas' particularly good melodrama writhe for for an hour under the shaft of ridicule, while the music hall audience enjoyed some excellent if not wildly hilarious entertainment. There was more than a feast for the eye, for the lines were brighter and wittier than those of any other of the season's travesties.

De Wolf Hopper was the ranchman, Canby, renamed Canned Beef. He owned a cow and a daughter. The daughter was the wife of the cavalry Colonel, and had been basely led into the cigaret smoking habit by Captain Hogman, a villainous Captain, from which she was eventually saved by Lieutenant Tention, the Beau Brummel officer of the regiment.

Lillian Russell played the part of the daughter. She surprised her audience by acting her rôle in a highly humorous spirit.

The cow, which was the total of live stock on the Canned Beef Ranch, was much in evidence. When it laughed at one of David Warfield's army jokes De Wolf Hopper remarked:

"Ever since the Cuban war every fresh beef has a laugh on the army."

Man Struck Down in Wife's Presence; May Die.

Charles Shaffhauer, a produce merchant living at 1027 De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, was the victim of a murderous assault tonight while returning with his wife and two children from a visit to friends. John Brown, 26 years old, a brother of the woman whom the Shaffhauers had been visiting, was arrested after a long chase, and when confronted by Mrs. Shaffhauer was identified as her husband's assailant.

The police believe that the assault was made for the purpose of robbery, as Mrs. Shaffhauer had displayed a sum of money in Brown's presence.

Shaffhauer's skull was fractured by the blow, and at St. Mary's Hospital, where he was taken, the physicians say his condition is serious.

Brown, it is said, was released from an insane asylum recently.

HITCH IN FINAL STRIKE TERMS.

Miners Object to Balancing Powder Reduction Against Raise in Pay.

OPERATORS POST NOTICE.

Add Explanation That New Rate of Wages Will Run for Not Less than Six Months.

LEADERS ARE IN DOUBT.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Hazelton, Pa., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—The coal companies made a sudden move today that caused dismay at strike headquarters and may delay a settlement of the strike. They announced, after a conference at Scranton, that the 10 per cent advance offered, though it would be on a fixed basis and continued six months, would be given in part in a reduction in the price of powder. After the sweeping action of the Reading company the strikers had great hopes of a speedy settlement, but today's action threatens delay.

The conference added the following to its settlement notices already posted:

"In further explanation of the above notice, this company desires to say that it is its intention to pay the advance in wages above noted until April 1, 1901, and thereafter until further notice."

Count in Powder Reduction.

The following statement in explanation was issued to the press:

"The representatives of the larger coal companies after their meeting this afternoon stated in reply to inquiries that they had offered their men a 10 per cent advance, as indicated by the notices they had posted; that this notice specifically stated that the reduction of powder from $2.75 to $1.50 would be considered in arriving at the wages of their contract miners.

"It was expected when the notices were posted that the offer was to stand until April 1, and indefinitely thereafter, but inasmuch as there seems to be some misunderstanding in this matter they have agreed to add to their notice a clause to the effect that it is their intention to pay the advance in wages until April 1, 1901, and thereafter until further notice."

Miners Again Object.

Many miners declare they will not accept such an advance. President Mitchell says he cannot order the strikers to return to work under such conditions, as they are contrary to the demands of the Scranton convention. Wherefore there is a talk tonight of a second convention. If the operators cling to the powder clause it is possible such action will become necessary, though the strike leaders do not relish the idea. With thousands of miners in need of help they do not want to spend money for delegates' transportation.

In this region the two Pardee companies and the Lehigh Valley posted notice of the advance today, all basing it on a reduction in powder. In the Scranton region the action was more general. After a meeting of representatives of all the big mining companies the notices were posted throughout the Lackawanna and Wheeling districts. Among the corporations taking such action were the Pennsylvania railway and Pennsylvania companies, the D., L. and W., Susquehanna and Temple Iron and Coal company.

President Mitchell would not discuss the situation today further than to repeat that the strike was not over. The new development in the situation, however, is not relished at headquarters. It was reported this afternoon that a meeting of the national officials of the mine workers would hold a meeting tomorrow, but the statement was denied at headquarters. Such a meeting will probably be held soon, and the chief subject to be taken up will be the powder question.

If the National board decides it has the power to accept the offer of the employers the strike may be ended in a few days, or President Mitchell may experience a change of heart and conclude to accept what he can get.

Men Returning to Work.

From throughout this region come reports today that more men are returning to work. The desertions from the strikers' ranks are not large, but they are encouraging the operators to believe the strikers will all be back at work soon, with or without the formality of orders from headquarters.

Another march is in contemplation tonight, Panther Creek Valley is again the announced destination, but either Jeddo or Cranberry may be raided instead. The Markle company has made no offer of any kind to the strikers, and the latter probably would rather stop work at Jeddo than anywhere else.

Had it not been for a tardy train the 4,000 strikers who raided the Panther Creek region would have been made prisoners. It was General Gobin's plan to surround them in the mountain roads and capture the entire force, but his troops did not reach Tamaqua till the strikers had passed. What the General would have done with his 4,000 captives is not clearly understood.

Fixes Convention Dates.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 18.—After the announcement of the practical settlement of the anthracite strike Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson of the United Mine Workers of America made the first public announcement of the date of the next convention of the organization, which will begin in Indianapolis Jan. 21, 1901. Nominations for officers should reach his office not later than Nov. 21, 1900.

UNION GLASS BLOWER SHOT.

Trouble at Eaton, Ind., Between Labor Factions Results in Serious Street Fight.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 18.—The expected conflict between the union and non-union glass workers took place tonight at Eaton. One non-union blower was knocked down, and his assailant was shot. Men from Hartford City and Muncie are hurrying to the scene to take sides in the quarrel.

The resumption of the Bauer factory with independent workmen was the cause. Robert Cowan, a blower from Alexandria, who yesterday brought three Burns men from Anderson and put them to work in the factory, was met on the street by a crowd of Burns men, and a heated discussion of the situation was on, when Lewis Wilhelm struck Cowan and knocked him down twice. As he struck the second time Cowan pulled his pistol and shot Wilhelm in the back, inflicting a serious wound.

Cowan was secreted in a place of safety while Sheriff Starr and his deputies were sent for from Muncie.

ACCORD CREDIT TO HANNA.

Republicans Regard Him as Big Factor in Settlement of the Coal Strike.

At Republican national headquarters everybody rejoiced because the strike of the coal miners had been settled. It was the general opinion that Chairman Hanna had been largely instrumental in bringing about the settlement.

"I will neither deny nor affirm any report," said Vice Chairman Payne, "as to Mr. Hanna's action in that affair. He is able to speak for himself and I have no doubt that he will. I would not undertake to venture an opinion as to what effect the settlement will have on the campaign. So far as I am able to observe there is not likely to be much of a change.

"The Democratic claim that the miners were fighting a trust is not true. The miners in that section there are not in the trust. It was necessary to get the operators together before an agreement could be made."

ART FOR THE PUBLIC.

Detroit Museum of Art

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 15.—(Editor of The Tribune.)—In the regular Sunday lecture given by Director A. H. Griffith at the Art Museum here yesterday, he took occasion to hold up a copy of the colored print after a painting by Carl Weber, which you issued with Sunday's "Tribune," and made the following comment:

"Every now and then some one comes to me and says: 'It is all very well for you to teach the higher ideals in art, but you forget that many, like myself, have not the means to buy the better things. We may admire and love them and wish to possess them, but they cost money and we cannot afford them.' I hold in my hand one of the very latest products of the American artisan of today, a mechanical reproduction, but so full of that subtle beauty that it brings into this room a glimpse of nature; refined in color, pleasing in composition, with artistic qualities of no small merit. You had far better have one such as this in your homes than fifty of the lurid colored things I find in many houses even of those that can afford the best, and it costs but five cents. It is not dollars and cents value that you must look for, but the qualities of real beauty and merit—the wayside flower, fresh with dew of early morning, not the hothouse plant that may cost a fortune and yet be lacking in the very thing that makes it lovable."

We thought you might be interested to know this, and today there is not a "Chicago Tribune" of Sunday to be bought in the city. Respectfully,

W. E. Brodish

Assistant Director.

Chairman Jones of the Democratic committee had this to say:

"The settlement of the strike indicates clearly to my mind the fact that the trusts are beginning to have a wholesome regard for public opinion. They would not have yielded to the demands of the men except from a fear that the consequences might be disastrous to the administration, which is the friend of the trusts."

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

Lecture by Burton Holmes.

Judging by the manner of the reception given his opening lecture, "The Edge of China," last night at Central Music Hall, Burton Holmes is not in any danger of losing his popularity in this, his eighth season before the public. The subject was timely and its development interesting.

Although Mr. Holmes did not visit China the present year, his material was fresh and gained by himself. While on his way to the Philippines last year he stopped off at Hongkong, and after a brief residence in that British-Chinese city proceeded up the river to Macao and Canton, taking pictures liberally en route. A few of the views he used in his Philippine lecture, notably some of those showing Hongkong and its harbor, but in the main the pictures flashed upon the canvas had never been seen there before.

Mr. Holmes took his hearers by ocean steamer westward from Vancouver to Hongkong, and under his guidance they visited the spots of interest in both the Downside and the Topside towns—as the sea level and hill portions of the city are called. Two motion pictures, one of a busy corner and the other of a British-Chinese regiment at bayonet drill, were among the most diverting features of the illustrated descriptions.

From Hongkong the lecturer transferred the setting of his vivid story to Macao, a one-time Portuguese colony of wealth, showing how colonial decadence looks in an old land strong enough to outlive a new civilization. No moral was spoken.

Canton was a prolific source of diversion. Mr. Holmes contrasted on canvas the foreign concession, with its European appearance and the native town, one of the most congested spots on earth. Motion pictures were particularly plentiful in the lecture, though it scarcely needed their insertion to keep dullness away. The lecture itself was one of literary merit and was delivered in polished fashion.

DR. HIRSCH TALKS OF CHARITY.

Delivers the Annual Address at the Meeting of the West Side Associated Bodies.

The annual meeting of the West Side District of the Bureau of Charities was held at the Lewis Institute yesterday evening. District Superintendent C. F. Weller delivered a stereopticon lecture illustrating the work of the bureau in the river wards and the Italian quarter and showing what had been done in the outing camps of the bureau. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch delivered the annual address, taking as his subject, "The Bridge Across the Chasm." Among other things Dr. Hirsch said: "It is often said that today charity is exhausted by red tape, that too much money is spent in salaries. Every pauper is a danger to the community so that self-interest and sociology warn us that each man must be his brother's keeper. Society (not only the individual) is affected, and society must deal with charity. In the old days imposters reaped a great harvest; the old system encouraged pauperism. Money spent in salaries is well spent."

GETTYSBURG HERO IS DEAD.

General J. W. Fisher, Whose Bravery Did Much Toward Winning Battle, Dies at Age of 86.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—General J. W. Fisher, one of the heroes of the battle of Gettysburg, died at noon today, aged 86 years. General Fisher entered the war of the rebellion as a private and was discharged a Major General.

At the battle of Gettysburg, Fisher, then a Colonel, noted a large force of Southern troops intrenching Little Round Top. Without waiting for orders, Fisher commanded his regiment to charge, and captured the position, the gallant move turning what seemed to be defeat into victory. He was praised and promoted.

For ten years General Fisher served as Chief Justice of the Wyoming Territorial Court. Three sons—one at Seattle, one at Pueblo, Colo., and one in this city—and a daughter survive him.

OBITUARY.

T. H. SWARTWOUT, the oil merchant, who died on Tuesday, after an illness of five months, will be buried today in Oakwood Cemetery. The funeral services will be conducted by Hesperia Lodge No. 411, A. F. and A. M., of which he was a member. Mr. Swartwout was a veteran of the civil war and his comrades of George H. Thomas Post No. 5 will turn out to do honor to his memory. Mr. Swartwout was born in Orleans County, N. Y., on Dec. 25, 1837, and came to Cook County in 1853. In 1880 he established himself in business in Chicago. His wife and a daughter survive him.

MRS. R. A. LETOURNEAU, Thirty-sixth street and Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, died suddenly on Tuesday in Mercy Hospital and was buried yesterday afternoon in Kankakee, mass having been said in the Holy Angels' Church, in Oakwood boulevard. Mrs. Letourneau was Miss Margery Lowenstein of Lucerne, Switzerland; she was married four years ago to Dr. Letourneau, and had resided since that time in this city.

CRISIS IN TRADERS' WAR.

BUCKET SHOP INJUNCTION CASE WILL BE DECIDED TODAY.

Final Battle in the Contest Made by the Board Against Use of Its Quotations by Outsiders and the Directors Expect a Victory—Many of the Concerns Have Been Forced to Retire from Business—Only One Still Using Chicago Quotations.

Board of Trade officials will enter today on what they consider the last skirmish in a winning battle against Chicago bucket-shops. Of twenty-seven of these concerns in operation on Aug. 1 or since, thirteen have been obliged to close their doors and thirteen more have at last given up their fight to secure the Board of Trade market quotations by roundabout or surreptitious means.

One concern only, McHie's Central Stock and Grain Exchange, in the Rookery Building, is still using the quotations, under protection of a temporary injunction, but this case comes up before Judge Vail in the Circuit Court today, when counsel for the Board of Trade will present arguments for its dissolution.

In view of Judge Kohlsaat's decision of a similar case in the board's favor, enjoining a number of local bucket-shops from using their quotations, the directors expect another victory.

Concerns That Have Closed.

Following are the bucket-shops which have closed their doors since Aug. 1:

Traders' Exchange	Rear 262 Clark street
Oliver Cleave	Dexter Building
Frank Schwartz	225 Unity Building
W. S. Nohe & Co.	85 Lake street
F. C. Nohe & Co.	17 Lyric Theater Building
Wilson & Co.	85 Lake street
The Imperial Grain and Stock Exchange	1002 Mallers Building
Moody & Co.	19-20-21 Rialto Building
Fidelity Commission Co.	210 Opera-House Block
Wallace & Co.	37 Dearborn steet
Chicago Grain and Stock Exchange	Commerce Building
Magoon & Co.	119 La Salle street
F. L. Mackay	Auditorium

Use New York Quotations.

The following concerns were running yesterday on New York Stock Exchange quotations, but making no effort to supply Board of Trade quotations:

Edward Rock	28 Pacific avenue
Gunsalos & Co.	Rialto Building
Morris & Co.	Adams Express Building
Brown & Co.	7 Exchange place
F. J. Holzapfel & Co.	185 La Salle street
J. J. Murphy	10, 157 La Salle street
J. A. Royall	Traders' Building
Frank L. Mackay	208-210-211 Unity Building
Unity Investment and Commission company	157 La Salle street
Epply & Stockton	196 La Salle street
E. A. Wirschling	Rialto Building
National Commission company	Brevoort House
National Commission company	Morrison Hotel

A few of the firms still doing business have tried for several days to retain their grain customers by posting the quotations of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, a comparatively small market, but the results, it is understood, have not been satisfactory and the effort will be given up. The bucket shops in Milwaukee, which were running on quotations of the local board, secured through Moody & Co., one of the Chicago firms now out of business, have had to abandon their use. This is another victory for the Board of Trade, although its petition for an injunction restraining the Milwaukee bucket shops from using the quotations had not yet been granted. The case is still pending in the United States Circuit Court of that district.

POLICE FIND REST OF BODY.

Head and Arms of George Bailey, Supposedly Murdered, Taken from Pond Where Weighted Down.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Lynn policemen late this afternoon found the missing head and arms of George E. Bailey, the murdered North Sagus farmer, in Glenmere pond. The head, which had apparently been chopped off with several blows from an ax, was at the bottom of the pond in a meal sack, and with it was a heavy stone to keep the sack under water. Twenty feet away, also held on the bottom of the pond by a heavy stone, the searchers found Bailey's arms. They had been chopped from his body close to the shoulders.

John H. Best, who is under arrest for the murder of Bailey, it being known that he was intensely jealous of the favor with which Bailey was regarded by Susie L. Young, was taken to the morgue, but refused to say whether or not the hand had been that of Bailey.

The Lynn police claim there is no doubt they will be able to convict Best for the murder. They claim the motive for the crime was Best's infatuation for Susie L. Young, a young woman for whom Bailey deserted his wife at Wiscasset, Me., four years ago. Miss Young will testify against Best.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1900.

Mr. Bryan Defines the "Business-Man."

Mr. Bryan is displeased because Republicans, according to him, "so limit the definition of a 'business-man' that few are included." It seems intolerable to Mr. Bryan that the farmer who works all day long or the laboring man, who converts raw material into a finished product, should not be called a "business-man," while he who makes money on the Board of Trade "betting on the price of what the farmer raises" or he who "trades in what the producer produces" is classed as a "business-man." In the opinion of Mr. Bryan "every man who by his muscle or his brain adds to the greatness, the wealth, or the glory of this nation is a business-man." This is a specimen of that drivel which flows from Mr. Bryan when he seeks to make it appear that he thinks more highly of the farmer or laboring man than Republicans do, and will always stand up for them when an attempt is made to belittle them. Neither political party nor Presidential candidate has power to change the accepted definition of a word or a phrase. Common use determines the meaning of a word, and dictionary definitions are efforts to record that meaning briefly and clearly. When people speak of a "business-man" they have in mind one engaged in some employment "requiring knowledge of accounts and financial methods" or "conducting trade or monetary transactions of any kind." They never have in mind a laboring man or a farmer. If Mr. Bryan thinks it all wrong that members of those two classes should not be called "business-men," he should find fault not with the Republicans but with the millions of people who use the English language to convey thought. That is a purpose for which Mr. Bryan seldom uses it.

How They Are Killing Watchmen.

The regular and dreadful monotony of the grade crossing death lists was varied yesterday by the killing of an old crossing watchman while engaged in trying to keep a carriage from getting in front of an approaching train at the Chase avenue crossing of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road in Rogers Park. The watchman, who was a soldier 75 years old and crippled in one arm, was placed at the crossing only six weeks ago, after the agitation in favor of forcing the elevation of railroad tracks was well under way. His death under the wheels of an engine is sufficient demonstration of the fact that to leave the crossing entirely unprotected, as was done prior to the appointment of the man killed, was a constant menace to the lives of the citizens who were compelled to cross it on their way to and from their homes. It also furnishes fresh proof of the fact that the policy of the railroad companies in appointing old, crippled, and infirm men to positions as grade crossing watchmen is a mistaken and dangerous one. It is no doubt true that the railroads are actuated by kindly motives in giving places as crossing watchmen to employés who have grown old or have been crippled in the service. But it is also true that the position of guard at a railroad crossing is one which requires a quick eye and considerable strength. In the case of the man killed on Wednesday it is reported that he tried in vain to lower the gates and that it was because of his inability to do so that he stepped out on the tracks to stop an approaching team and was himself struck by a train coming in the opposite direction. That railroad companies seek to take care of old and feeble employés in positions where the work is not arduous does them credit, but they have no right to imperil the lives of a considerable number of people by appointing to positions as grade crossing watchmen men so old that their eyesight is poor and their physical strength insufficient for the demands made upon it in cases of emergency. John Scott, who was killed on Wednesday, did the best that a man 75 years old and crippled in one arm could reasonably be expected to do. The lesson of his death is one for railroad managers to take to heart.

Art for the Public.

The letter from Mr. W. W. Brodish, assistant director of the Detroit Museum of Art, telling of the praise bestowed by the director, A. H. Griffith, of the museum upon the colored prints given away with THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, is gratifying to this newspaper, but it also contains suggestions that should be impressed upon every person. In his letter Mr. Brodish said:

> In the regular Sunday lecture given by Director A. H. Griffith at the Art Museum here yesterday he took occasion to hold up a copy of the colored print after a painting by Carl Weber, which you issued with Sunday's "Tribune," and made the following comment:
>
> "Every now and then some one comes to me and says: It is all very well for you to teach the higher ideals in art, but you forget than many, like myself, have not the means to buy the better things. We may admire and love them and wish to possess them, but they cost money and we cannot afford them. I hold in my hand one of the very latest products of the American artisan of today, a mechanical reproduction, but so full of that subtle beauty that it brings into this room a glimpse of nature; refined in color, pleasing in composition, with artistic qualities of no small merit. You had far better have one such as this in your homes than fifty of the lurid colored things I find in many houses, even of those that can afford the best, and it costs but five cents. It is not dollars and cents value that you must look for, but the qualities of real beauty and merit—the wayside flower, fresh with dew of early morning, not the hothouse plant that may cost a fortune and yet be lacking in the very thing that makes it lovable."
> We thought you might be interested to know this, and today there is not a "Chicago Tribune" of Sunday to be bought in the city.

The point made by Director Griffith is that mechanical processes have made possible the reproduction of the best of the world's art, so that it is within reach of the poorest people. It is customary to say that the great painter's work is not for the masses. That his paintings are bought by the millionaire and hidden from public view, or, at best, put in an art gallery inaccessible to the great majority or visited only by those whose taste for art does not need cultivation. But modern invention has changed this. Fac similes of the great masterpieces are reproduced at prices so cheap that the humble homes are adorned with the works of the best artists. These preserve the spirit and beauty of the original, or, in the words of Director French, a mechanical reproduction can be so full of subtle beauty that it brings into a room a glimpse of nature refined in color, pleasing in composition, and with artistic qualities of no small merit."

The appreciation of these pictures has been pleasing to THE TRIBUNE, not alone because of the increased circulation that has followed the demand for them, but because that demand is in itself an evidence that the American people appreciate true art and can discriminate between that and "lurid colored things."

"THE CRAZE FOR CRANKS."

This week Senator Depew made a speech at New Haven, in which he said: "I have known all the Presidents since my time. Cleveland was a good President. Some day or other the Democratic party will get over its craze for cranks and will nominate a man who is not to be scared. Cleveland is such a man."

Certainly no one will accuse Mr. Cleveland of being a crank. The charge most often made against him is that he is ponderous and obstinate. But his obstinacy has been felicitous sometimes, as when he doggedly defied his party during his last term and maintained the gold standard and the credit of the government.

The tactics resorted to in 1892 to secure the election of Mr. Cleveland are, however, largely responsible for that "craze for cranks" which for over four years has addled the brains of the Democratic party. In that year, partly to get Electoral votes for Mr. Cleveland and partly to deprive General Harrison of some which he would otherwise have had, there was a Democratic-Populist fusion in nine Western States. To it Weaver was indebted for the Electoral votes of Kansas and the other States carried for him.

Then it was that the Democratic party was inoculated with Populist principles and the craze for cranks and crankery began. The virus worked. In 1895 the free silver craze began taking possession of the Democratic party. In 1896 a national convention, where mentally debauched Democrats were in the majority, made the crank from Nebraska the candidate of the party. He and his party were defeated, but the latter, not cured of its Populist mania, has again nominated him and has reiterated its approval of Populist doctrines.

While the Democratic party is momentarily insane the majority of the voters are not. They have defeated once the crank candidate of a political organization and they intend doing so again. The American people have not always put their ablest men in the Presidential chair, but they never have put a crank there and never will. Probably they will not be asked to do so four years hence, for there are indications that the unfortunate Democratic party has passed through the acutest stage of its painful disease of Populist crankery and that before another Presidential election comes around it will be healed like the afflicted man told of in the scriptures, out of whom the devils departed and who finally was found by his friends "clothed and in his right mind." When the Bryans and Altgelds have been cast out the Democratic party will become sane and peaceful.

THE ISSUE FOR BUSINESS-MEN.

In his address in Central Music Hall on Wednesday evening Joseph Beifeld stated that the paramount issue in this campaign was the prosperity of the workingman. The great audience of Chicago business-men and employés showed by its applause that it agreed with him. The McKinley administration has brought prosperity to the workingmen and to the men who employ labor. Mr. Bryan and the Democratic platform stand for things which every thinking man knows will bring disaster to American industries. Even the Democratic leaders admit in private that the election of Bryan would be followed by the closing of factories and the failure of merchants, though they pretend to believe that this would be because Republican manufacturers and merchants would voluntarily destroy their own enterprises in order to injure Bryan's administration. The pretense is foolish on its face, but what difference would it make to the idle workingmen why the factories were closed, so long as they were out of work?

Mr. Beifeld is correct in saying that the paramount issue is the continued employment of labor at good wages. He is also right in holding that the interests of employer and employé are exactly the same in this case. He is himself not a politician, but a business-man, and he frankly states that he is fighting the election of Bryan because it would impoverish the workingmen and would thus injure his business enterprise. By destroying the national credit and forcing dishonest money upon the workingmen Bryan would bring ruin to capital and labor alike. The interests of the two cannot be separated, and the attempts of Bryan to set the one against the other is one of the worst features of his campaign.

"Whoever teaches that the interests of the merchant and workingman are antagonistic," says Mr. Beifeld, "is a dangerous fool or a vicious demagogue." He speaks strongly because he sees how closely his own welfare is bound up in that of the workingmen. He manufactures cloaks and other garments for women. His product is largely consumed by the wives and daughters of workingmen. When there is plenty of employment for labor his business thrives, but when the workingmen are idle their wives have to make the old clothes last an extra season, and the manufacturer's business suffers. The same thing is true in all other industries. This is why the great class of business-men, for whom Mr. Beifeld so ably speaks, is unanimously against the ruinous political nostrums of the Democratic party. Bryan can get the support of men like Croker, he cannot get men at the head of business enterprises to take the stump for him.

Mr. Beifeld showed that it would not be necessary for Mr. Bryan to get free silver legislation in order to put the country on a silver basis if he were President. He could order his Secretary of the Treasury to pay all government obligations in silver and to stop the exchange of silver coin or certificates for gold. This would successfully destroy the parity between the two kinds of money and at once cause the hoarding of gold. But the coming of disaster and panic would not wait for this. The trouble would begin the moment the election of Bryan became certain. It rests largely with the workingmen of the country to decide whether they will have disaster or prosperity for the next four years. They will make no mistake if they once realize how absolutely identical their own interests are with those of their employers.

CLOSING THE KINDERGARTENS.

The plan of the Board of Education to economize by keeping the kindergarten schools closed through November and December has aroused strong protests from the persons affected. Petitions signed by many hundreds of parents have been presented to the board. The teachers whose income would be reduced are naturally opposed to the closing of these schools. There are ninety-three public kindergartens in Chicago, with 196 teachers and 5,000 children in attendance. With so many persons vitally interested in the matter it is not surprising that the board is bombarded with protests.

The shortage in funds which confronts the School board this year must be met with retrenchment in some quarter, but it is contended that the taxpayers do not want the kindergarten schools to be the ones to suffer. Probably there would be similar protests against retrenchment in any other quarter. The argument in favor of the kindergartens is of a three-fold kind, being made on behalf of the teachers, the children, and the parents. It is said that the loss of salary would be a hardship and injustice to the teachers, who get only nine months' pay at best. On behalf of the children it is contended that the kindergarten is of great importance in preparing them for the graded schools. But perhaps the most potent argument in causing parents to sign petitions against closing the kindergartens is that expressed by a mother, who said that she believed the board would find funds somewhere if its members could realize what it meant to a woman who had to do the washing, ironing, and baking to have her child cared for and instructed during the busy hours.

The plea of the busy and overworked mother is one which is easily understood, but it does not strictly apply to the case. It is natural that mothers should be glad to have their children under 6 years of age cared for at the public expense during the day, but the affording of relief to tired mothers is not a part of the School board's work. It is not an educational object, which is the only kind the board is authorized to promote. The plea of the teachers is proper enough because the board is expected to look after their interests. If it can be shown that closing these schools for two months would be an injury to the little pupils, that will also be a valid argument. But the argument on which the petitioners seem chiefly to depend is outside of the School board's province. The question is one which the trustees must decide on educational and not on philanthropic grounds.

EDUCATION IN THE SOUTH.

The recent statistics of college finances and benefactions published by President Thwing of Western Reserve College, upon which THE TRIBUNE has already commented, have furnished another opportunity for the South to make its periodical complaint of the neglect of educational institutions in that section by wealthy donors. THE TRIBUNE has more than once answered this complaint and explained why the greater part of the donations of Northern men go to Northern institutions and why each State in this section takes pride in looking after its own institutions.

It is unnecessary to repeat the statement of causes which have led up to this discrimination. They lie upon the surface so conspicuously that they cannot be overlooked. The Atlanta Constitution, however, frankly and courageously states one of these causes, which it would hardly have been courteous for a Northern newspaper to suggest, and it is the first Southern newspaper which has had the candor to do so. It says the Southern people are thrown into competition with the Northern people, "and if we do not make an effort to keep up with the procession nothing is more certain than that our children will become the serfs of those of other States. It is idle to talk of progress in which we can bear no part because of the ignorance of our people." In seeking for the cause of this ignorance it has the courage to go to the root of the matter, and, doing so, it finds that in Georgia, and that State is not exceptional, the people "are doomed to ignorance by the State government and neglected by the well-to-do, who should take pleasure in the endowment of educational institutions."

The Constitution has read a useful lesson to the people of the South. The record of educational beneficence for the present year, running far into the millions, contains but a single donation of any consequence made to a Southern college by Southerners—viz.: the handsome gift of a quarter of a million, made by the Duke family of Durham, N. C., to Trinity College at that place. Two women have left by will generous remembrances to Washington and Lee University and Vanderbilt University, and that completes the record of Southern beneficence to education. "The gods help those who help themselves." So long as the wealthy people of the South manifest no interest in their educational institutions, why should the wealthy people of the North be expected to?

POLITICS OF THE COLLEGES.

President Eliot of Harvard and President Hadley of Yale have come out finally for McKinley. They do so grudgingly, and the former, who is one of the original mugwumps, couples with the announcement of his intention to vote for McKinley some irritable and unjust criticism of that candidate. Perhaps a person at the head of a university does not deem it consistent with his dignity and high standing to admit that there is any one of whose conduct he can altogether approve.

President Eliot, with all his unfriendly criticising, is compelled to acknowledge that "at this moment the great cause of sound currency is practically defended by the Republican party alone." He has to acknowledge also that "President McKinley is now surrounded by Cabinet officers of capacity and experience; and he has put good men at the head of affairs in Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines; while in case of a change in the Presidency nobody can tell to what sort of persons the great offices of the government would be intrusted." Furthermore, the Democratic party having "absolutely thrown away its low tariff position," the only opening for liberal tariff legislation seems to him to be afforded by the reciprocity doctrine of the Republicans.

President Hadley says that he does not wish for imperialism, but "if we are to have imperialism at all, I would much rather see it brought about by Mr. McKinley and his Cabinet, with such men as Hay and Root, than by any men that Mr. Bryan can gather around him." It will be seen that college Presidents have that wholesome horror of Mr. Bryan's friends which all business-men entertain. The thought of Altgeld in the State department and of a representative of Mr. Croker in the Treasury department does not delight them.

These two Presidents of New England universities are going to vote for McKinley under protest, as it were. Not so the professors and instructors in their own and other New England educational institutions. A poll of those institutions shows for McKinley—without any "ifs" or "buts"—271, for Bryan 20, for Woolley 2, and "undecided" 38. The Harvard-Yale vote is McKinley 126, Bryan 15.

The college boys of the United States are not troubled by any of the doubts and scruples which made Presidents Hadley and Eliot so slow in coming to a conclusion. A poll of the students at the Chicago University, taken this week, shows 339 Republicans to 41 Democrats. This is fairly representative of the collegiate vote generally. The young students of the United States made up their minds long ago. They saw much to attract them in Mr. McKinley and nothing to attract them in Mr. Bryan. President Hadley says he has "high personal respect" for that candidate. The youth of the country did not have much respect for him at any time. It has had none since his alliance with Croker. Youth has high ideals, and the spectacle of a political Lazarus in Croker's bosom jars on their feelings.

HOW TRUSTS CURE THEIR OWN EVILS.

It is the fashion among Democratic spellbinders to describe every combination of capital as a conspiracy to make a few men enormously rich at the expense of the many. Every man who owns stock in a so-called "trust" is held up to both scorn and envy as a "money baron" whose pockets are stuffed with cash. An attempt is made to make it appear that the "trusts" are practically the creation of the government; that they are artificial monsters so vast and powerful as to defy not only man-made laws but those unwritten laws of trade which govern other business enterprises.

The fact is that more than half the so-called "trusts" are failures from a financial standpoint. Instead of making vast profits for their architects and promoters, sixteen out of thirty of the largest in the country represent an actual loss on the money invested in them. Many of these "trusts," it is true, were greatly overcapitalized when they were formed, and in most cases every original purchaser of a share of preferred stock was given a share of common stock as a bonus. For the two shares together the usual price paid was $100. The quotations of these stocks printed regularly in the newspapers show that the market price in sixteen instances is now below par, the loss ranging from 1 to 74 per cent. In other words, instead of becoming rapidly rich as the result of forming a trust, considerably more than half of the so-called "trust magnates" are worse off today than they were when they bought their stock. By the operation of a purely natural trade law the water has been squeezed out of these stocks, the present market value representing the earning value of the stocks. It is in such ways as this that a large share of trust evils will be righted, and it is sure that whenever promoters find that the formation of trusts is not profitable that minute will they stop forming them.

Democratic orators, however, who have patent nostrums for the cure of every social and political evil, have neither time nor inclination to consider the working of the fixed principles which in the long run control and govern all forms of human activity. They are too busy with wild theories to pay much attention to facts.

BRYAN AND THE SUGAR TRUST.

A correspondent asks whether Mr. Bryan, who was in the House of Representatives at the time of the passage of the Wilson-Gorman tariff act of 1894, voted for that measure in the shape in which it finally passed, with the Senate amendment which put so much money in the Treasury of the sugar trust. The tariff bill as it originally passed the House put both raw and refined sugar on the free list. The Democratic Senatorial friends of the sugar trust amended the bill by imposing a duty on raw sugar and a duty on refined sugar which was so much higher that, according to Mr. Wilson, the trust was given excessive protection. Furthermore, this change in the bill and the delays incident to its passage enabled the trust to import duty free millions of pounds of raw sugar, which it sold when refined at about the price it would have asked if it had paid duties on that sugar. The trust pocketed about $20,000,000 of excessive profit, which should have gone into the National Treasury.

On the 13th of August, 1894, Mr. Bryan voted with the other members of his party to concur in this Senate amendment, designed to benefit the sugar trust. He and his associates set out to smash that concern and they ended by voting it a liberal donation. Mr. Bryan may plead in defense of his change of front that he acted under the advice of President Cleveland. He told the House Democrats that it would be better for them to back down, as otherwise the bill would fail, and nothing would be done toward "tariff reform." Mr. Bryan may say that if he was unable to get free sugar and crush the sugar trust, he was at least able to get free wool and play smash with the wool-growers of the Rocky Mountain States.

Mr. Bryan would prefer to have nothing said about the vote cast by him on the 13th of August, 1894. He is at this moment posing as the bitter enemy of all the "trusts." He does not care to be reminded of the fact that six years ago, influenced by considerations of expediency, he voted to prolong the life of the sugar trust and give it a large bonus. There was a majority of sixty-two for concurrence in the Senate amendments. Mr. Bryan could have voted in the negative and been consistent without endangering the passage of the tariff bill, but he swallowed his anti-"trust" scruples and voted for the Havemeyers. Would he, if elected President, be any more of a "trust" smasher than he was in 1894?

Getting Ready for the Horse Show.

With the opening of the Chicago horse show only ten days off, there is every indication that New York will be obliged to look to its laurels in this direction. Fashionable tailors report a greatly increased demand for polka dot vests and coaching topcoats and milliners and modistes are working overtime in order to complete the work on hand before the competition opens in those classes. Incidentally it is reported that the entries of horses are large and interesting. It is promised that the competition in the class for heavyweight carrying hunters will be almost as close as in that for tan colored topcoats creased down the back. In recognition of his acknowledged preëminence in all the sartorial classes Alderman Coughlin of the First Ward has been declared hors concours. His entries will not be refused, but if he expects to wear any ribbons he will be obliged to bring them with him. Arrangements for the exhibition of the entries are completed. Those in the equine classes will occupy a tan bark oval in the center of the building, while the more interesting exhibits in the sartorial and millinery classes will pass for inspection around a wide promenade immediately surrounding it. The date of the show, Oct. 29 to Nov. 3, is particularly fortunate, as it will doubtless serve to distract the public mind from too continuous and confining attention to politics.

WE betray no confidence in saying that the Democrats have not paid any such sum as $125,000 to secure the services of the Hon. Web Davis.

OPIE READ, the widely-known Arkansaw traveling man, is another who is reported to have come out strong for McKinley.

FOR a conspicuous example of the manner in which the infamous trusts are crushing out the young man see Croker Jr.

UNCLE SAM himself, being much alive, can have no place in his own Hall of Fame.

THE HON. JOHN P. ALTGELD, having duly sworn at it, avers and declares that the registration list contains 40,000 names fraudulently inserted therein by the Republicans. When the Hon. John P. is sufficiently angry he can see 400,000 as easily as 40,000.

CAPTAIN STREETER has been found not guilty of conspiring to commit murder, but there are several other chances for trouble and distinction just ahead of him.

IT is conceded by the audiences that Actor Herne is much less effective when he abandons his lines and goes to talking for Bryan in his own proper person.

IF in doubt as to how you ought to vote, read Mr. Bryan's Eastern speeches and compare them with President McKinley's letter of acceptance.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Still Insists.

"How does it happen?" asked the aged statesman, jeeringly, "that you are not in the Hall of Fame? Surely you have been dead long enough!"

But Liberty merely yawned and said:

"Vest, you make me excessively tired. Ring off."

Puzzle: Find the Democrat.

It chanced that the two men who were amusing themselves by going up and down the country taking straw votes of the inhabitants thereof found themselves in the immediate neighborhood of what seemed a walled city.

"Why, this is the Joliet penitentiary!" exclaimed one of the two. "Let us go inside and take a vote of the Presidential preferences of the inmates."

"No," said the other, turning red. "It wouldn't be of any practical use. They are not voters."

Glaring Contrast.

In overhauling the moldy, worm-eaten trunk they found a newspaper 100 years old.

"Yellow," they said, wonderingly, as they looked at it, "but respectable! How extremely old-fashioned!"

Miserably Incomplete.

"Call it a Hall of Fame!" sniffed Miss Susan Banthony, contemptuously. "And not one woman in it!"

Fatal Mistake.

"Fellow-citizens," said Mr. Bryan, raising his hand high above his head and bringing it down hard on the improvised desk before him, "if anybody asks you why we don't spend time discussing the issues of 1896 you tell them——"

"Let me get out of here!" gasped a Boston man in the audience, making his way hurriedly to the open air.

Side Lights on History.

"It was a lucky thing for me, perhaps," remarked Daniel, referring to the matter some time afterward, "that it was only a piece of rather blind handwriting that Belshazzar wanted me to decipher. If it had been a physician's prescription I believe it would have floored me."

Another Trust Crusher.

"You could have got here half an hour sooner if you had taken the direct line by way of Bumstead street, and it would have saved you the trouble of making a transfer."

"I know it, but it didn't cost any more to come the other way, and I believe in getting as much as you can for your money out of these blamed monopolies."

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL.

AT THE CROKER-BRYAN FEAST.

New York, which would have none of him when he was brave, will have none of him now that he has become a coward. But it was a glorious night for the Hon. Richard Croker.—New York Sun.

The appearance of Bryan at the Croker dinner in the Moorish room is the climax of his spectacular career. It celebrates the subjugation of Bryanism to Tammanyism. It is at such feasts that the admonitory handwriting usually appears upon the wall.—New York Mail and Express.

Mr. Bryan sat at the head of the table sandwiched in between Mayor Van Wyck, President of the ice trust, and Richard Croker, the most unscrupulous political blackmailer in the world. It must have been flattering to Mr. Bryan, but this morning he is doubtless asking himself in a dazed sort of way, "What profiteth it?"—Detroit Journal.

Is it quite fitting, is it altogether appropriate, for Mr. Bryan, who is tilting against the trusts, to take the silver dollar snack in the company of Mayor Van Wyck, who sits "in an inlaid chair brought from Arabia," and of Mr. Richard Croker, who is at present the foremost representative of politics as a gainful occupation?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

It was an exhibition of which the Republicans need have no fear. The larger the crowd and the hoarser the cry that greets Bryan, the firmer and more general the determination grows that he must be overwhelmingly defeated. The reasoning, order-loving, conservative classes are in a majority and they need only to be awakened to show their power.—Philadelphia Press.

We await without apprehension, but not with exultation, the recoil of the United States from the congestive and repulsive consequences of the administration of Bryanism as an evoking emetic to Tammanyism in Manhattan. If our people are ever at a loss what to choose, their instincts can be trusted to tell them what to avoid. The Tammanyization of the United States is what they will avoid. That can be depended on.—Brooklyn Eagle.

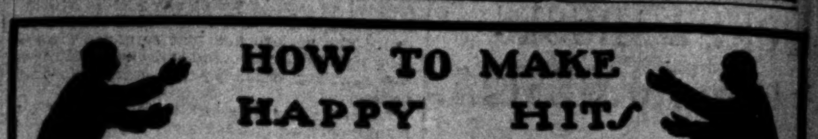
Time after time the Democratic candidate repeated his praise of the Tammany boss and his machine; and, with every repetition of that praise, he gave the lie to his words against imperialism. The most real and menacing form of imperialism that this nation has ever known is that of the Tammany chieftain, the great autocrat of New York. "Great is Tammany, and Croker is its prophet," said Mr. Bryan, and he said it in praise, not in apprehension, of the great evil. He must be presumed to mean all that he says in praise of Tammany; and it cannot be that he knows less of this vicious institution than the public generally knows.—Indianapolis Press.

No one who knows anything about Richard Croker would ever believe for a minute that he has reversed his attitude of hostility towards Bryan, which he stoutly maintained a year ago, to one of active support and unqualified indorsement, or that he is exerting himself to his utmost and employing all the power of the great political machine which he controls in New York for the benefit of Mr. Bryan, without having definitely settled in advance just what there is in it for Croker. In other words, that Mr. Bryan has made promises to Croker and given assurances of his favor in case of his election no one can doubt for a moment.—Minneapolis Journal.

Conservative Democrats throughout the country who have been led to give their support to Bryan because of their fear of "imperialism" and their antipathy to the "trusts," are not likely to have their faith in the righteousness of their course strengthened by the spectacle in New York. Every voter of intelligence in the United States knows that Tammany Hall, under the leadership of the man who has publicly testified that he "works for his own pocket all the time," is a menace to decent government and a paid protector of vice and law-breaking. The strongest denunciations aimed by Republicans at Tammany corruption have been equaled by the attacks which prominent Democrats of unimpeachable party orthodoxy have made upon that organization.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Under the circumstances Mr. Bryan's opening declaration at Madison Square Garden that he drew a line between honest wealth and predatory wealth was invested with a sad significance to thousands of his worshipers who have believed, with all their hearts, that Mr. Bryan was not as other men. "Get thee behind me, Satan!" should have been the stern mandate of Mr. Bryan to Mr. Croker. But it is not recorded that Mr. Bryan made a single protest. He did not even show a sign of trepidation as he adjusted his legs under the mahogany. Perhaps the lavish display of silver enthralled him, but how could he avoid seeing the fashionable cards at each plate, upon which the names of the guests were printed in gold letters at an expense greater than many a poor man can afford to pay for a meal?—Kansas City Star.

Croker "runs" his party to a degree never before equaled by any boss, because no other at the same time absolutely ruled a great city, dictated the course of his party in his State, and was recognized by a Presidential candidate as the leader in the chief commonwealth of the union. Not only is this true, but it is perceived to be true throughout the country. It could not well be otherwise, for Croker has thrust his personality upon the attention of the nation. He not only wants to wield influence, but he wants the people to see how powerful he is. It is altogether likely, too, that there is truth in the theory that he aspires to national office, at a time when such men as Addicks of Delaware and Clark of Montana try to force their way into the Senate, and that he consequently thinks it well to come to the front when the Presidential candidate of his party visits New York.—New York Evening Post

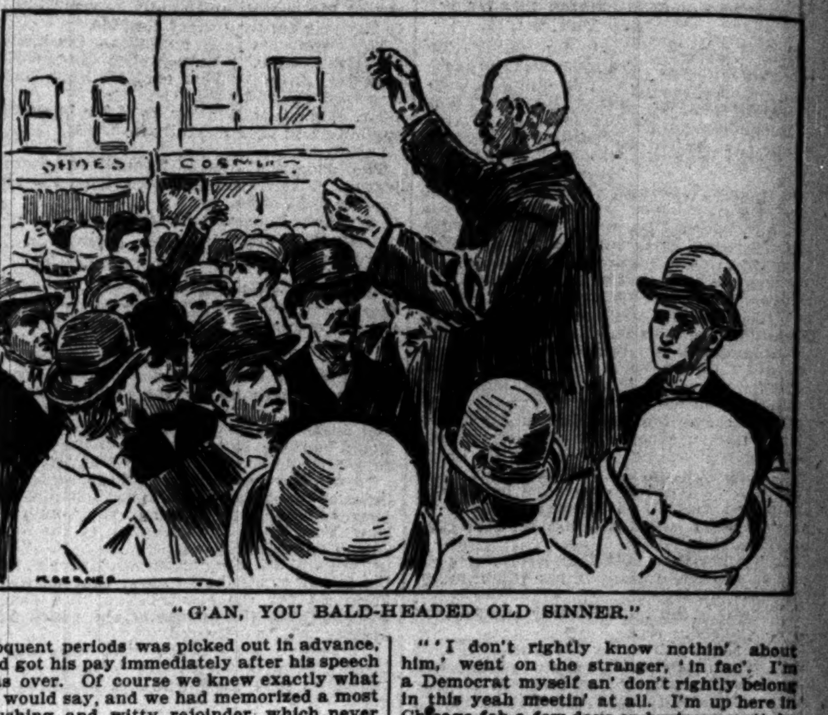


HOW TO MAKE HAPPY HITS

"I SUPPOSE it's too late to do the boys any good this fall," said the old campaigner, as he lit a reminiscent cigar. "Besides, it isn't as easy to do as it used to be ten years ago. That was before spellbinders were discovered. We were nothing but plain political speakers in those days. Just the same, we had a few schemes that ought to do even now. Of course, if you're one of the main guys, traveling in a special train, with a lot of reporters for the big city papers along, you can't work it. But for the everyday Pullman car or day coach spellbinder who speaks at the fair grounds or the skating rink in towns of from 3,000 to 10,000 inhabitants I don't know anything better.

"You'll all admit that the speaker who can give a quick and witty answer to a man in the crowd who interrupts him will go further than the most scholarly and polished orator in the country. Your great orator may get his piece printed in the papers where nobody reads it, but every auditor will talk for a week about a speaker who 'turned down' somebody who tried to stump him with an impertinent question.

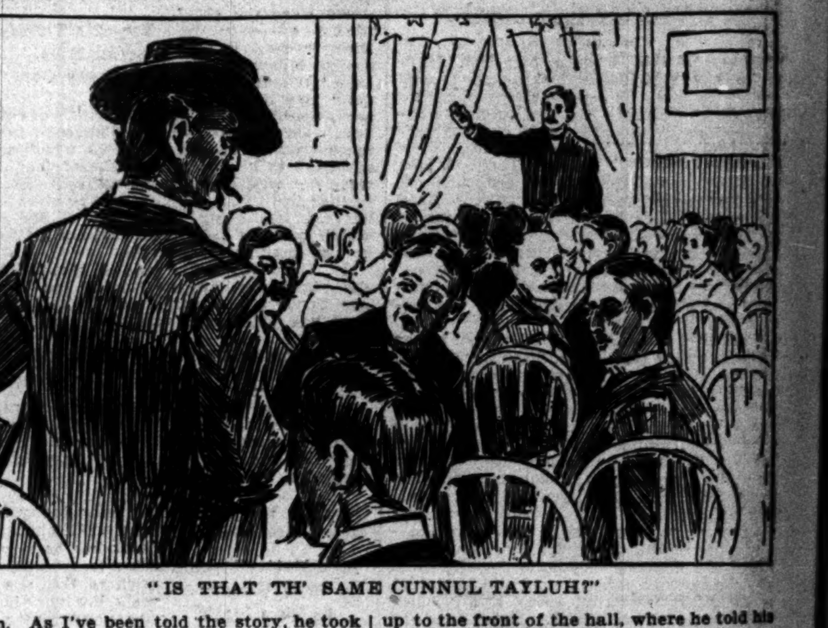
"In the old days we never started out on a speaking trip without having everything fixed up. The fellow whose job it was to get up and interrupt in the midst of our most eloquent periods was picked out in advance, and got his pay immediately after his speech was over. Of course we knew exactly what he would say, and we had memorized a most crushing and witty rejoinder, which never failed to bring down the house.



"G'AN, YOU BALD-HEADED OLD SINNER."

"Of course, I ain't telling tales out of school even now. But I may tell you one or two tales I've heard where they can't do a bit of harm. They'll do to illustrate the truth of the general proposition I lay down, that the stump speaker who goes out with his guns loaded and his targets located is likely to do more execution than the man who depends entirely on snap shots.

"Perhaps you know Congressman Cooper of the Racine, Wis., district. For a good many years his hair has not been exactly luxuriant. In fact, people have been heard to remark that he is bald-headed. Ten years ago—two years before he went to Congress—he was stumping the district. He is a big, fine-looking fellow and a good stump speaker. In that district a good many meetings were held in the open air, where the sun had a good chance to shine on Cooper's bald head. On one occasion a rough in the crowd about the speakers' stand yelled out some disrespectful allusion to that prominent feature of Cooper's personal appearance, and for a minute he was terribly embarrassed. Finally he made some retort or other and finished up the meeting as best he could. But he was too good a campaigner ever to let it happen again. As I've been told the story, he took the best way in the world to prevent it. I heard him make a speech at Beloit a few days afterwards, and I'll tell you what happened there.



"IS THAT TH' SAME CUNNUL TAYLUH?"

"There is a sort of public square in Beloit, at one corner of which stands the principal hotel in the town. At that corner the speakers' stand had been built. The meeting was held late in the afternoon, and the square was packed with people. The chairman had made his opening address and had introduced Cooper to the crowd. He had started at once into a rattling campaign speech.

"'My friends,' he was saying at the top of his voice, 'the tariff is the foundation of our national prosperity. If we take the duty off——'

"Just then there came a wild shout from somewhere far out in the crowd of 5,000 people.

"'G'an, you bald-headed old sinner!' somebody yelled in a high-pitched voice.

"Cooper stopped as if he had been shot. For an instant dead silence prevailed in the big crowd, which before had been moving about more or less as all out-of-doors crowds do. Then Cooper answered, lowering his voice from the high oratorical pitch to a conversational tone.

"'My friend,' he said, 'you allude to my bald head. I beg to remind you that the most luxuriant vegetation grows out of the rankest muck heaps. If you want to find the pure and virgin gold you must go to the bald and shining peaks of the Sierras.'

"You can imagine what happened. The crowd simply went wild. They gave three cheers for Cooper, told him he was all right half a dozen times in chorus, and gave the closest possible attention to the remainder of his speech. As for the man who had interrupted, he slunk away in the crowd and nobody was ever able to identify him. And if anybody else had been thinking about interrupting the speaker further that retort was enough to make him keep quiet. I heard afterwards that somebody was foolish enough to call Cooper a 'bald-headed old sinner' in every town he visited that campaign, and on every occasion the same retort settled his case. Of course, I don't know what it cost to hire a man to do the interrupting, but you'll all admit that it was a pretty good scheme as campaign schemes go.

"You remember Colonel Abner Taylor, who used to represent the South Town of Chicago in Congress? He was one of the Chicago men who built the great State Capitol of Texas in return for a grant of land. During one of his campaigns for Congress he had a hard fight on his hands. Somebody had made a campaign charge that non-union labor had been employed in a certain part of the work on the Texas Capitol, and whether true or false, his opponents were making considerable capital out of it. This is how the charge was answered, so effectively that the men who were fighting him were glad to drop it long before the campaign was over.

"The first time I heard the answer was far out on the South Side at a small meeting at which Colonel Taylor was not even present. Some prosy speaker was doing his best to stir the crowd up and was succeeding poorly. In the midst of one of his most elegant periods a roughly dressed man stood up in the center of the hall and interrupted the speaker.

"'Yes, that's all right,' he said, 'but tell us, didn't "Ab" Taylor hire scabs to build that Capitol building down in Texas? That's what we want to know about.'

"The speaker seemed to be badly rattled. He stopped, hesitated for a moment, and then tried to explain.

"'Really, sir,' he said, 'I don't know anything about that. I don't know anything about Colonel Taylor's business career.'

"There was a dead silence in the hall for a moment. Then men began to stir about and guy the speaker. It looked as if the meeting called in Colonel Taylor's interest was about to break up in disorder, after doing his cause more harm than good. Finally from one of the rear chairs a tall figure lifted itself up. The man was more than six feet tall. He wore a long black coat, a gray goatee and mustache, a low cut vest, and a white shirt, with a turn-down collar.

"'Mistah Cha'mun,' he said in a Southern drawl, 'ah you all taulkin' about the same Cunnel Tayluh what built the Capitol buildin' down in ouah State uv Texas?'

"'That's the same man,' answered the speaker, apparently much relieved. 'What do you know about him?'

"'I don't rightly know nothin' about him,' went on the stranger, 'in fac', I'm a Democrat myself an' don't rightly belong in this yeah meetin' at all. I'm up here in Chicago foh a few days on business mattahs an' I was strollin' aroun' this evenin' when I saw something was agoing on in heah. So I jes' dropped in to see what it was. I nevah been introduced to Cunnel Tayluh in my life an' I nevah seen the gentlemun but once in mah life. That was one day down in the ole Capitol buildin' in ouah State of Texas. The Guvenah of the State was theah an' the Secretary of State an' a man they tole me was Cunnel Tayluh, who was buildin' the new Capitol buildin'—ah you suah this is the same man what built the new Capitol in ouah State? I heard the Guvenah say to Cunnel Tayluh, "Why don't you get down to business an' lay off them union stone cutters you've got workin' on the Capitol buildin'? You can get men that don't belong to a union to work for 25 per cent less an' they'll do the work jes' as well." Cunnel Tayluh, he raised up his fist an' he hit the Guvenah's desk a wallop an' he answered an' said, "Suh; by the Eternal I'll give up the whole contract and leave the State befouh I'll have a scab workin' foh me." Uv course I don't know whether that's the same Cunnel Tayluh you all ah taulkin' about——'

"Then the crowd got up on its hind legs and cheered for Taylor and for the Texan and made the man from the Lone Star State come up to the front of the hall, where he told his story again to the reporters.

"The queer part of it all was that at almost every Taylor meeting held during that campaign there was always a man present to interrupt the speaker, and always the tall Texan was somewhere in the back of the hall to explain that he had just happened to drop in to express his doubts whether it was the same 'Cunnel Tayluh you all is taulkin' about.'"

Not of the Sort to Bet On.

One of the largest and best-known bookmakers in the city attended the Madison Square Garden demonstration and drifted over to the Hoffman House before Mr. Bryan concluded his speech.

"It was a marvelous demonstration," said he, "but it was not the sort of demonstration to bet on. I don't like the character. It was Tammany Hall all through. We have in Tammany at least 100,000 voters that we can bet on to vote the Democratic ticket every time, but their enthusiasm is that of a well-drilled mob. There is too much that is perfunctory in the sort of a show we had tonight, superb as it was. What I want to see is a crowd of men who are not sure to vote one way.

"We didn't see them tonight. Only Tammany men and people who went to see Bryan out of curiosity. I was in the thick of the crowd and kept my eyes and ears open. Tammany man and Bryan man as I am, I can't bet my money on that sort of a demonstration."—New York Times.

Democracy's Only Hope in Indiana.

Tom Taggart, the Democratic boss of Indiana, is highly elated over his success in obtaining money from the National committee to spread among the floating voters of Indiana. He comes back to Indianapolis with victory in his grasp, as he thinks. It is upon this process of corruption that the Democrats base their only hopes of carrying the State.—South Bend Tribune.

If Virginia Has a Fair Chance.

Republican observers say that if a fair count could be secured Virginia would be as doubtful a State as Kentucky this year. Virginia came within 1,500 votes of going Republican in 1888, and conditions certainly are much more favorable than they were then.—Buffalo Express.

TALKS PLAINLY TO CLUB WOMEN.

Mrs. Pennoyer Sherman Warns Federation Against Neglect of Home.

TREND OF SOCIAL LIFE.

Mrs. Elia W. Peattie Tells of Some of the Failings of the Sex.

CONTEST OVER PRESIDENCY.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—The club women in session at the meeting of the Illinois Federation of Clubs listened this afternoon to a severe criticism of themselves delivered by Mrs. Pennoyer Sherman. Mrs. Sherman had nothing to say against club women, but recited some of the stories that are being told by those who oppose women's clubs.

"A kindergarten teacher in Chicago," she said, "declares that she has been hearing two little children say their prayers at night and otherwise caring for them as a mother should that their parents might board at a fashionable hotel and spend their evenings in gayety.

"A certain mother in Chicago is said to be neglecting her children to cultivate the arts of swimming and climbing at the Athletic club.

"Other clubs are said to be responsible for like neglect of the home."

Mrs. Sherman then said she simply wished to call the attention of the women to these statements that in their club work they might devote such attention to the home that every woman would be reminded of her duties in that direction.

MRS. SEELY PERRY.
[Nominated for President in opposition to Mrs. Stanwood.]

The members of the federation applauded the remarks, but framed no other reply to the indirect criticisms.

Mrs. Peattie Talks Frankly.

Mrs. Elia W. Peattie, in talking on "The Trend of American Social Life," spoke frankly to the club women of some of their failings. She told them their clubs are good, and then she added:

"Still the fact remains that some women with young children go to the Chicago Woman's club in the morning early and remain till late in the afternoon. There are not many of us like Selma. Few of us are even so misguided as to desire to repeat, as Selma did on all public occasions: 'O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?'

"I am free to admit, however, that I have known club women who made a specialty of talking about motherhood who were not true to their maternal obligation. I have seen club women exploit an amount of parliamentary knowledge which was abomination.

"But, on the other hand, I have tried to remember that a large part of the women who join the clubs exercise in them for the first time the power of initiative, standing for the first time in their full personality and power. Moreover, I have seen whole communities of women developed into comparatively clear thinkers and reasonably good students along limited lines by the existence of well conducted clubs.

"The restless American woman, with her aspirations and achievements, her independence and ability, presents the most serious social problem of the day. Our philosophers, whether they be writers of fictions, or ecclesiastic, or editors of papers, or essayists, are puzzled to understand her reason for being or to prophesy her destiny."

MRS. THADDEUS STANWOOD.

Once More the Color Line.

The question of admitting colored delegates to the federation, which so exercised the biennial meeting at Milwaukee last spring, is before the Illinois federation. Mrs. Celia Parker Woolley announced this afternoon that she would offer resolutions tomorrow morning on the subject, refuting the action of the Milwaukee convention. She made a speech in favor of admitting colored women's clubs to the State federation.

"It is the old question of slavery," she said, "and the women should not take an attitude that will mark a backward step. The action of the Milwaukee meeting has been regrettable, and, while we have no responsibility as a federation, in that we should take a different stand."

Mrs. Woolley told the women they had a right to make distinctions among the women whom they invited to their houses or to their social affairs. She said it was natural they should have clubs in which the color line is drawn, but she protested against making a discrimination in a political body and an organization founded upon a basis of State boundaries and qualifications other than this social distinction.

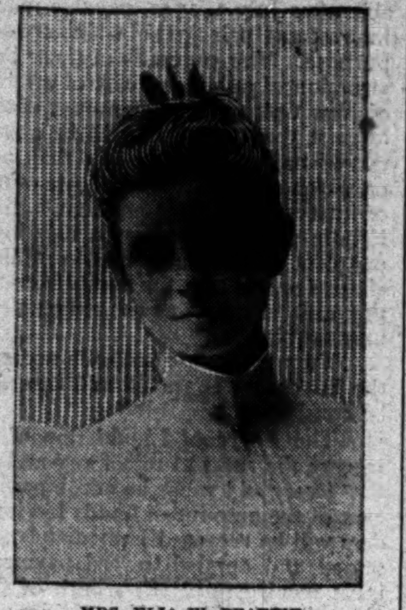
Excluded from Men's Clubs.

The discussion was started by Mrs. Elia W. Peattie, who took the other side of the question. Mrs. Peattie declared that a reconsideration of the decision of the National federation meant that body would be disorganized. She declared there was not a man's club except political that admitted colored members, and she urged that, rather than being a matter of choice with the men, it was simply a recognition of a natural division which neither side could cross, and to destroy which would benefit neither one.

Dr. Frances Dickenson will oppose the resolutions on the color question tomorrow on the ground that they should have no place in the proceedings of the federation, where there is no excuse for them. So long as the colored women's clubs of the State are not seeking admission to the State federation and say they do not want to come in, she, with others, will oppose embroiling the federation in the question.

Contest for the Presidency.

The election of a President of the federation will take place this morning and a stormy scene is expected. The Nominating committee brought in its report yesterday, naming Mrs. Stanwood of Evanston as head of the ticket. This was expected, but the opposition which immediately developed was surprising to those who had made the nomination.



MRS. ELIA W. PEATTIE.
[Who scored smart society in an address before Women's federation.]

The talk of a "ring" was heard openly on every side, and it was merely a question with the independents as to whom they should unite on.

Mrs. Seely Perry of Rockford will be nominated from the floor to represent this constituency, and her election is confidently predicted. Prominent members of the Chicago Woman's club are working for her, many of the delegates from the country are coming to her support, and, while Mrs. Edward Parker of Quincy is still a candidate, there is some talk of her resignation in favor of Mrs. Perry.

The Nominating committee announced the following slate:

President—Mrs. Thaddeus P. Stanwood, Evanston.
Vice President-at-Large—Mrs. Seely Perry, Rockford.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Sadie Cox, Hudson.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Susan Tibbels, Quincy.
Treasurer—Mrs. Edward C. Lambert, Jacksonville.

Take Up Routine Work.

The federation today for the first time accomplished some actual business. Mrs. George Watkins' resolution that the federation take under advisement the inaugurating of a movement for an act of Legislature to pension all teachers who have taught twenty consecutive years in one county, was referred to the Committee on Legislation, with orders to report at the next meeting. After some debate the word "county" was changed to "the State of Illinois," and in this form it went to the committee.

The federation was called upon to decide whether it would enter the field of State politics by a resolution proposing that a candidate of the federation be appointed for a place as school trustee. Definite action was not taken, but the matter was referred to a committee of three, with the understanding that it will be discussed by the clubs during the coming year.

A resolution by Dr. Dickenson, proposing that all members of the federation must vote for school trustee was carried, and Mrs. Farson suggested that the resolution be carried out by the members as unanimously as it had been carried.

HORSE SHOW ENTRIES SWELLED

Nearly Six Hundred Equines Are Now Promised for the Coliseum Display.

It was the original purpose to close the entries to the Horse Show on last Monday night, but in view of the fact there was a delay in getting out the advanced premium lists it was deemed advisable by the management to extend the time to last night. The wisdom of this was abundantly demonstrated in the large number of entries received during the intervening time both by mail and wire.

As late as last night many entries were made by wire, one exhibiter alone, A. E. Ashbrook of Kansas City, sending in forty entries, made up for the greater part of polo ponies and jumpers.

Another entry received by wire from Kansas City was that of the famous "high school" horse Limestone Bell, the property of E. R. Sims. He also entered some hunting ponies and polo tandems.

Many other entries were received, bringing the total up to nearly 600, in which all the various classes are well represented.

Sharp contests are promised in many classes, and this is especially true of class 14, for park horses of 15 hands 1 inch high. The entries include four champions, in Whirl of the Town, owned by W. H. Barnard of New York, who also exhibits Kitchener; Lady of Quality, owned by M. H. Tichenor & Co. of Chicago; and The Babe, formerly Turk, owned by J. H. Moore of Chicago. Lady of Quality won the first prize in the high stepper class at the Philadelphia show this year.

Keen competition is also promised in the four-in-hand class among the Chicago owners. James Hobart Moore, Montgomery Ward, Walter H. Dupee, and M. H. Tichenor & Co. have made entries.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

TWO PEOPLE AND A PARROT

"Bid me, indeed, to be—
Open your heart and take us in,
Love—love and me!"
—E. J. Henley.

EDGAR MARSTON had never seen the woman whom he longed to ask to share his life. And he was 30 years old. But as autumn came with its robes of russet splendor and maples burning like to the bush the prophet saw in the scriptural past a strange sense of dissatisfaction grew upon him. He looked around his luxuriously furnished bachelor apartments almost with resentment.

Other men had homes—homes where it was pleasant to sit in the fireshine, if only there was some one across the hearth. He looked over at a vacant chair. And as he smoked and meditated it seemed to him the chair was occupied. Through the blue wreaths of smoke he seemed to see a gown—a gown of a soft rose hue, with narrow rows of gold braid encircling the collar and a broader band of the glittering material girdling a slender waist. Then there was a face against the chair back—a merry, mignonne face, with a serene white brow and the square-cut lips which betoken laughter.

When had he seen it—where? Of late—that was sure. And it had haunted him. But he could not recall having ever met——

"Bad—bad—bad! C-r-rr! Lemme go! Good-day—good-day—good-day! Bad!" The shrill squawk assailing his ears grew louder. "Maisie—Maisie—come! B-a-d! Lemme—go!"

The final piercing and discordant appeal brought Marston angrily erect.

"Confound that parrot! If there's a beastly bird in existence it's one of those chattering, diabolical, mimicking things! I wish every one had its neck wrung! I wish——"

"Jab — jab — jab! Maise—Maisie! Lemme——"

Now, Marston was not a malicious fellow. He and vindictiveness had never even a bowing acquaintance with one another. But it isn't the pleasantest thing in the world to be wrenched body and mind out of a delicious day dream—and by the tortured cries of a blatant bird at that. The third protesting torrent of chatter was, however, too much for Marston. He flung around to the window—the next instant was out of his apartments, dashing down the short flight of marble steps, and across the street.

"Hello, there!" he cried to the group of youngsters who were plucking green and scarlet feathers from the body of a protesting parrot. "What are you up to? Where did you get it? How the deuce can you act like that, anyhow?"

A shrill babel of responses rose in reply.

"It's lost!" "It don't belong to nobody." "It just flew out here——"

"Well, supposing it did! Is that any reason you should torment it—you infantile boxers, you! Even if it doesn't belong to anybody——"

"But it does!" cried a young, excited voice. 'O, it does! It's—it's mine!"

Then Edgar Marston had turned—was looking down on a girl with a merry, mignonne face—a girl in a soft rose gown with a tracery of gold at the neck and a girdle of gold at the round young waist.

Ah! Now he remembered. She and the parrot were part and parcel of the people who had moved into the suite over his in the St. Stevernus Flats. But the face of his smoke-framed dreams was not merry now. Indeed, it was distinctly distressed. The blue eyes were tearful and the lips had quite a piteous curve.

"The housemaid left the window open and it—it flew out. I wouldn't have lost it for anything!" This with most desperate earnestness. "I've had it since a seacaptain brought it to me when I was a little girl—O, ever so long ago!"

"I don't believe," quizzically, "that that was so long ago!"

Marston was placing the rescued bird in her arms.

"It was—ages ago! And those dreadful boys! How good you were to rescue Medora—yes, that's her name, the seacaptain said. He was always reading Byron. How," glancing up at the bareheaded young gentleman at whom the dispersing boys looked malevolently back, "how can I ever repay you?"

"I'm a fellow-tenant of yours," he said, smiling. "I have the first floor suite. My name is Marston. And yours——" He paused tentatively.

"Maisie!" shrilled the rejoicing bird in her arms. "M-a-i-s-i-e!"

"That's it!" She laughed, nodding and caressing her ruffled and bedraggled pet.

"Don't you think it's a beautiful bird?"

Marston looked down on the little lumpy, half-plucked, quivering heap in the shelter of a rose-robed arm upon which a slim white hand rested. Then his eyes met those of confident appeal uplifted to his. He pulled himself together for a plunge.

"Beautiful!" he echoed. "I've seen a good many parrots, but I have never seen one like that—never!"

Maisie Allison fairly glowed with pleasure.

"I'm so glad! It is not every one who can really appreciate Medora."

They were walking back across the street to the apartment building.

"I hope," ventured Marston, as they separated in the tessellated hall before the office, "that Medora will not be the worse for the recent ordeal through which she has passed. May I come up to inquire?"

"Y—es. But here is papa—O, papa!"

Then Mr. Allison, portly and pink, with the ponderosity begotten of prime roast beef and rosy with the glow of unimpeachable Madeira, listened interestedly to his daughter's account of her companion's humanity and asked him to come up after dinner for a smoke.

Marston went—that goes without saying. Medora, recuperating in grateful silence, was more to be admired in her moments of repose than in those of animation. And Maisie—well, when Marston got back to his easy chair he could see the form opposite him distinctly—much more distinctly than ever.

And——

To be brief, the cage in which Medora resides hangs in the window of the flat below the Allisons today. And—regarding the transcendent beauties and perfections of that bird, Marston perjures himself daily.

Marquise de Fontenoy Letter

Copyright, 1900, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.

PRINCE LUIGI, Duke of the Abruzzi, in spite of all the reports to the contrary, has no intention whatsoever of undertaking another arctic expedition just at present, and his return to Norway has not been as stated to organize jointly with Dr. Nansen a new voyage of exploration next spring, but to sell his ship, the Stella Polare, to arrange for the transport of his scientific collections to Italy, and to obtain the payment of the insurance money for the three members of the expedition who perished. The insurance companies have been trying to evade the payment of the money on account of the suggestion that the three men may still be alive. The Duke and his companions will be judicially interrogated on the subject, and will declare their conviction that the lost men cannot have survived, since they would otherwise have been discovered during the minute search carried out over the whole region where they disappeared. The men consist of two Italians and of a Norwegian.

The Duke expresses the hope of undertaking at some future day another expedition to the arctic regions, but this is merely the utterance of a vague and indefinite wish, and nothing of the kind is contemplated for the present.

Engine driving is a favorite form of amusement among the members of the English aristocracy. There are many members of the British nobility who are expert engineers, and the feat of young Lord Milton, the newly elected member of Parliament for Wakefield, in bringing up two loads of supplies from the base of the army in south Africa to the front over a particularly dangerous piece of railroad track does not excite so much surprise as might otherwise be the case. Lord Milton is the grandson and heir of the aged Earl of Fitzwilliam, and in spite of his youth has already had the strange privilege of reading his own obituaries in print.

The young Marquis of Downshire is so devoted to railroad mechanics that he has a complete railroad about three miles in length laid down in the grounds of Hillsbrough Castle, one of his country seats in County Down. The engine alone has cost $8,000 and is driven by Lord Downshire, who is also his own stoker. The train consists of one passenger car and one freight car. Along the line which intersects the carriage drive leading up to the castle are the usual signal boxes, sidings, and other trimmings of a well conducted railroad.

The present Duke of Sutherland, like his father before him, is fond of engine driving, and when staying at Dunrobin Castle, his principal place in the north, is accustomed himself to drive the engine of his special train conveying his distinguished guests from the junction on the main line over the thirty miles of his own railroad which separates it from Dunrobin Castle.

I always remember hearing a couple of laboring men discussing their Duke with pride as his special rushed by with himself at the throttle and a royal Princess in the principal car.

The impending marriage of Viscount Kelburne, eldest son and heir of Lord Glasgow, serves to recall to mind the amusing charge of plagiarism which was brought against his father just about the time of the latter's appointment as Governor of New Zealand.

While still Lord Kelburne he had delivered a non-political address on some subject or other which subsequently as Earl of Glasgow he redelivered again in the antipodes. Some individual who read the speech in print was struck by its analogy to an address of the same kind that he had read before, and, after much search, finally discovered that the same speech delivered by the Earl of Glasgow had been delivered some years previously by a Viscount Kelburne. In happy ignorance of the fact that the Viscount and the Earl were one and the same person, he proceeded at once to make a violent attack on the Earl, charging him with plagiarism, and incidentally attacking the home authorities for sending out as Governors to the colonies peers who did not even have the brains to compose their own speeches but were obliged to pilfer them from others.

Needless to say that the laugh was turned against himself in short order and that the Earl was exonerated of the charge.

The Onslows, let me add, trace back their descent to the reign of King Henry III., and one of its members achieved fame during the parliamentary wars as one of the supporters of Oliver Cromwell, whom, in the course of a memorable speech in Parliament, he urged to assume the title of King as the fitting accompaniment of the supreme authority which he enjoyed. The peerage came to the family through Sir Richard Onslow, who was Speaker of the House of Commons and Chancellor of the Exchequer in the reign of King George I., and there are at least five other Onslows who figure in history as having held the office of Speaker.

One of Lord Onslow's sons, by the bye, who was born in New Zealand, although a godson of the Queen, was christened with the outlandish name of Hula, by which he is exclusively known. Hula is the name of a great New Zealand warrior and also of the sacred bird, a beautiful black creature with its feathers tipped with snow, and which is now almost extinct. The compliment thus paid by the Earl to the native population of New Zealand was warmly appreciated, and before the boy was a year old he was definitely inaugurated with all sorts of quaint and queer ceremonies as a Maori chief. Among these was the rubbing of his tiny nose against those of five aged Maori chiefs, whose tattooed faces and strongly marked features were enough to have scared any ordinary baby out of its senses.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

ROOSEVELT'S ESSAYS AND ADDRESSES IN VOLUME FORM.

With the Title, "The Strenuous Life," Thirteen of His Speeches and Magazine Articles Written in the Last Year and a Half Are Now Issued as a Book—Author's Rugged and Wholesome Ideals of Life Expressed in Excellent Literary Style.

THIRTEEN recent essays and addresses by Theodore Roosevelt have been issued in volume form by the Century company under the title, "The Strenuous Life." It was in Mr. Roosevelt's speech before the Hamilton club of Chicago in April, 1899, that he used the phrase which has since come into popular use to designate the vigorous philosophy of the man who believes in doing things. This address now appropriately gives its title to the whole volume. Though the papers are on widely different subjects, they are all imbued with the healthful "doctrine of the strenuous life, the life of toil and effort, of labor and strife."

No man has a better right to preach the strenuous life than Mr. Roosevelt, and none has done it more gracefully or forcibly. It is impossible for any unprejudiced person to read this book without being impressed with the high literary merit as well as the sterling good sense of its utterances. The author's style is clear, dignified, and unaffected. His sympathy for men and things of good report is as deep and genuine as his dislike for what is "mushy" or openly evil. He has denunciation for "the silly, mock humanitarianism of the prattlers who sit at home in peace" and encourage the shedding of American soldiers' blood in the Philippines. He has no patience with "the strutting vanity of the professional impracticables." But there is no man in public life with broader sympathies than Mr. Roosevelt, and he speaks with conviction when he says: "It is this capacity for sympathy, for fellow-feeling and mutual understanding, which must lie at the basis of all really successful movements for good government."

There is a moral ozone pervading every page of Governor Roosevelt's writings. The spirit of honest and stubborn endeavor by which this nation has conquered the primeval wilderness breathes through all his utterances. It is not assumed. The response it elicits from every wholesome nature is proof of its genuineness. Nor was Mr. Roosevelt indulging in a mere form of words when he called Chicagoans "men of the greatest city of the West, men of the State which gave to the country Lincoln and Grant, men who preëminently and distinctly embody all that is most American in the American character." The strenuous life of the West has always appealed to him irresistibly.

"The great group of wealthy and powerful States about the upper Mississippi, the Ohio, the Missouri, and the tributaries," he says in this volume, "will have far more weight than any other section in deciding the fate of the republic in the centuries that are opening." It is the confident and expansive spirit of the West that will shape the destiny of the nation. This spirit Governor Roosevelt has voiced more sanely and more inspiringly than any other man of his time.

That Mr. Roosevelt is no mean master of literary expression is proved more thoroughly than ever in this volume of essays. Though written for transient occasions, they have remarkable elements of permanency in them. They are full of sound epigrams, as the following examples, culled at random, will testify:

> Far better is it to dare mighty things, to win glorious triumphs, even though checkered by failure, than to take rank with those poor spirits who neither enjoy much nor suffer much, because they live in the gray light that knows not victory nor defeat.
>
> We cannot, if we would, play the part of China and be content to rot by inches in ignoble ease within our borders.
>
> Fundamentally the cause of expansion is the cause of peace.
>
> It is impossible for democracy to endure if the political lines are drawn to coincide with class lines.
>
> If a man permits largeness of heart to degenerate into softness of head he inevitably becomes a nuisance in any relation of life.
>
> A life of slothful ease, a life of that peace which springs merely from lack either of desire or of power to strive after great things, is as little worthy of a nation as of an individual.
>
> No one of us can make the world move very far, but it moves at all only when each one of a large number does his duty.
>
> A man is worthless unless he has in him a lofty devotion to an ideal, and he is worthless also unless he strives to realize this ideal by practical methods.
>
> In life, as in a football game, the principle to follow is: Hit the line hard; don't foul and don't shirk, but hit the line hard.
> Part of Grant's great strength lay in the fact that he faced facts as they were, and not as he wished they might be.

Besides the address on "The Strenuous Life," this volume contains Mr. Roosevelt's articles on "Expansion and Peace," "Latitude and Longitude Among Reformers," "Fellow-Feeling as a Political Factor," "Civic Helpfulness," "Character and Success," "The Best and the Good," "Military Unpreparedness," his speeches on Dewey and on Grant, and a few minor pieces. All are worthy of preservation in book form.

Dr. Ainsworth R. Spofford, former Librarian of Congress, has written "A Book for All Readers" (Putnam), which is well fitted to inspire a new respect for books. The author has made books seem like living things, to which we owe duty and deference, and woe to him who has been guilty of such acts of desecration as the turning down of leaves, the placing of a book on its face, or the defiling of the pages with notes and comments!

The book mainly appeals to librarians, the public custodians of books. For these there are chapters about bookbinding, about the restoration and reclamation of books, and the qualifications of librarians. But there are chapters also that will interest the general reader and that will aid him in the selection of proper bindings and in the preservation of the same. The author prefers red books because of their cheerfulness and durability, and it is his opinion that every cloth-bound book must be put sooner or later into a leather jacket. The chapter devoted to the enemies of books is instructive, for even the most humble collector of books has felt the responsibility of keeping his volumes free from dampness and dust. Of course in public libraries there are enemies in human form who are most inhuman in their treatment of books. Some of these will frequently tear out whole pages or will give in marginal comment such wise criticisms as these: "This book ends badly," or "I think Becky is horrid." The author tells how to deal with such foes and how to treat books that have been defaced.

TRACTION STOCK WEAK.

REPORT RECEIVER IS SOUGHT CAUSES DEPRESSION.

General Samuel Thomas of New York, After Examining Company's Affairs, Abandons His Intention of Going Into Court—Earnings of Chicago National Banks Compared with New York and Philadelphia Institutions—Sales on the Local Exchange.

Union Traction stock was weakened on the local exchange yesterday by a report that application would be made for a receiver for the road. The basis for the report lies in an old matter. Samuel Thomas of New York, a prominent stockholder largely interested in the company, became dissatisfied with his investment several weeks ago and decided to ask the courts to put the property in the hands of a receiver. A bill for that purpose was drawn up and presented to a meeting of some of the directors of the traction company in New York by Henry Crawford, formerly attorney for the company here. The condition of the business was gone into thoroughly for General Thomas' benefit. After the conference General Thomas came to Chicago and made a careful examination of all the affairs of the company, including the accounting and the operating departments. He was here last week, and at the end of his visit he is said to have expressed his satisfaction with the management. He let officials of the company here understand that he had abandoned his intention. No steps have been taken in court, although the papers were ready for filing several weeks ago.

An official of the company said that it had no fear of suits of the kind rumored. "The rumor relates to an old case," he said. "The Union Traction company has not failed to meet its obligations and is not afraid of a suit for a receiver."

The preferred stock lost 2 points on the report, selling down to 47. The common declined to 10½.

Earnings of Banks.

Statistics have been compiled by the New York Financier showing the earnings of the national banks of New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia for the fiscal year ended Sept. 5. They are interesting as showing the average profit of the financial institutions of the three cities. New York leads in the matter of additions to surplus, the gain for the year having been $10,150,600, or 16.16 per cent. Philadelphia is a close second. The national banks of Chicago did not make gains approaching these figures, the additions to surplus having been only $1,330,510, or less than 8 per cent of the capital of the banks. Only six New York banks failed to earn their dividends; two in Philadelphia paid out more than the profits earned, while the Chicago banks, without exception, had something left out of the year's earnings, after deducting the average dividend declared. It is a surprising feature that the Chicago banks are not earning more money. Probably now that Western accounts are flowing to Chicago in increasing volume, the financial institutions will benefit in proportion. The Financier has compiled a table showing the increase in the surplus together with the percentage of gain, exclusive of dividends. The earning power of the institutions cannot be fixed definitely by adding the dividends declared to the surplus gain, for the reason that the dividend periods do not fall regularly with the dates of comparison used, but, assuming that each twelve months fills the annual dividend disbursements, an approximate idea may be had. The change in capitalization of the First National and the Corn Exchange National renders final calculations useless. The table follows:

	Capital.	An. div. rate.	Profits Sept., 1900.	Inc.

Financial Topics.

The foreign exchange market was a shade firmer yesterday, and it is believed that importations of gold from Europe have been arrested for the time being. The strength of the market is attributed to the marked falling off in offerings of cotton bills. Most of the bills now coming forward are against all contracts. Another feature of the market is the heavy buying of long bills for investment purposes. This buying is being continued on a small scale, and was partly responsible for the firmness of the market yesterday.

The National Starch company has declared a dividend of 1½ per cent on its preferred stock, payable on Nov. 1 on exchange of interim for permanent certificates at the United States Mortgage and Trust company, New York.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on West Chicago stock, guaranteed by the Union Traction company, is payable on Nov. 15. Books close on Nov. 5.

The Pennsylvania railroad announces that the semi-annual dividend is payable to holders as registered on Oct. 31.

The National Salt company has declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock, payable on Nov. 1. Books close on Oct. 25 and reopen on Nov. 1.

MARKET SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Both in Point of Price and Transactions Stocks Gather Strength Under Favorable Conditions.

[BY E. W. HARDEN.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Today's stock market was an improvement over that of yesterday, both in point of transactions and in the strength shown in the active stocks. Nearly all of the securities today closed at an advance from yesterday's prices. An increase was shown in the demand for high-class investment stocks and nearly all of the commission houses reported a fair amount of business being transacted for investment purposes.

New York Central led the advance in the high-class railroad stocks. There was a gain of more than 2 points from the low to the high price, the closing quotation of 132⅞ representing a net gain of 1⅞ points. The advance in this stock was reflected in the other railroad issues, nearly all of which improved in today's trading, though some sold off. The weak stocks among the active railroad issues were Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and Baltimore and Ohio. All of these issues closed below yesterday's final prices.

There were no further engagements of gold today, but it is considered probable that there will be more engaged during the remaining days of this week. The inflow of cotton bills, which has been interrupted for a time has begun again and there is every reason to expect that it will continue for some time. Foreign exchange houses look for a further decline in sterling rates, which will make further gold imports practically certain.

The reports of the Bank of England and Bank of France today were received with considerable interest and there was surprise manifested at the small change shown in the reserves of the two institutions. The Bank of England lost a little over $600,000, while the decrease in the gold reserve of the Bank of France was a little under $1,000,000. As a greater amount than this has been engaged for shipment to New York, it follows that considerable interior gains have been made. In the case of both the banks, however, the interior movement of money is not sufficient to account for the discrepancy in the figures shown.

People's Gas today closed unchanged from yesterday, with transactions of 23,000 shares. There was a sharp decline in the early trading, followed by an advance which put the stock above yesterday's closing, but this advance was subsequently lost and the close was on a parity with yesterday's final price. Practically all the news that is received in New York regarding People's Gas comes from Chicago. Those in New York who are familiar with conditions decline to discuss the situation.

IN THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash and Securities in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The movement of prices of stocks became exceedingly varied and irregular today under the operations of conflicting speculative forces. These forces were largely professional traders in stocks, and they conducted their operations with a free hand and on a large scale. So far as the surface of events showed, a large and influential bear party inaugurated an unsuccessful campaign for a decline today. There was open selling by an interest which has long persisted on the long side of the market and for whose account there was large selling today, not only in stocks in which there has been open buying for some time past, but in other stocks all around the room. On the other hand, there was resistance offered to the decline by the manipulation of various special stocks with resulting sharp advances.

The first notable rally was in the iron and steel stocks, which were suddenly advanced all around by rapid steps from 1 to 2¼. Prices of the group then fell back, but points of strength developed elsewhere. The movement in New York Central and in stocks of allied companies which are expected to come into closer relation was a notable one. There were substantial gains in all of the New York, Chicago, and St. Louis stocks, the first preferred selling up 6 points on a single sale and closing 8 points higher bid. The Lake Erie and Western stocks and Canada Southern rose from 1 to 3 points. Chicago and Northwestern, the Denver and Rio Grande stocks, and a few less conspicuous railroad stocks also came into late movement, which spread throughout the list. Sugar rallied sharply 2¼ points, and the closing was firm and at recoveries. Power was conspicuous for a slump of 9¼ points on the execution of a small selling order.

Transfers of currency through the Subtreasury rose to $325,000 today, but New York exchange at Chicago recovered from 40 cents discount to 25 cents discount. The bond market continued irregular on a fair volume of business. Total sales, par value, $1,715,000. U. S. new 4s advanced ¼ per cent on the last call.

Money on call firm at 3@4 per cent; last loan, 3. Prime mercantile paper, 5@6 per cent. Sterling exchange strong, with actual business in bankers' bills at 484¼@484⅜ for demand and at 481¼@481⅜ for 60 days; posted rates, 482@482½ and 485½. Commercial bills, 480¼@481. Silver certificates, 62¼@64. Bar silver, 63⅛. Mexican dollars, 49¼. Government bonds strong. State bonds weak. Railroad bonds irregular.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash and Securities at the Hub.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—The local stock market was characterized today chiefly by professional operations in a few of the specialties. Some were advanced and others declined under heavy selling pressure. The features of the greatest strength were the Federal Steel issues, both of which advanced over 1 per cent. At one time 1 per cent was bid to call 1,000 Federal Steel common at 42 for thirty days. Sugar was sold down 1¼ to 118¾ in the morning. Later it advanced to 120½.

American Telephone was sold down ⅝ to 143¼ by two-dollar brokers. It was believed that the decline was due to professional operations by the New York end of the Erie Telephone crowd and that their object was to get cheap stock. Home railroads were dull and a shade heavier. Some new pressure to sell Gas and Coke 5s sent the price down 1 to 63. Half of this loss was later recovered.

In the coppers the tables were turned on Tamarack and Montana, both being pressed by realizing sales. The former lost 4 to 256 and the latter 3 to 334, touching 332 at the lowest. Calumet sold 3 higher at 765 and Bingham gained ¼ to 12⅝ on unusually heavy transactions. Isle Royale added another ⅝ to 31⅝. Massachusetts was up ¼ to 9 and Parrot gained ¼ to 43⅝.

Call loans, 3@4 per cent. Time loans, collateral, 4½@6 per cent. Time loans, mercantile paper, 5@6 per cent. Clearing-house loans, 2½ per cent.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash and Securities in London, Berlin, and Paris.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram: The markets here were depressed today on foolish talk of European intervention in the Transvaal on Kruger's arrival. London took profits in Americans moderately. New York sent considerable selling orders early, but in the afternoon the market rallied. New York opening better than was expected here. Paris is still selling Spanish bonds and Tintos on the fall of 15 shillings in metal.

The bank lost £21,000 gold in bars and £90,000 in French coin. The latter was taken at a small loss. The purchase of bars was a surprise, as the bank's price is 3 farthings higher than that in the open market, which is 77s 11½d.

Money rates were unchanged in the absence of a rise in the bank rate. The East is buying silver. It is rumored that the Russo-Chinese Bank is the purchaser. The Bank of Bengal has decreased its discount rate from 5 to 4 per cent.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The smart rally in New York exchange rates and the knowledge that the United States was obtaining gold elsewhere weakened discount rates here today. Another factor in this direction was the buying of bills here on continental account. Business on the Stock Exchange was dull, though the lessened fear of dear money hardened consols at first. The closing was weak owing to the information received that gold was going to France and the south African situation. Americans opened below parity in sympathy with the New York market, and closed weak on profit-taking. Nevertheless, there was a strong undertone, especially in Readings. Kaffirs were flat on the unsatisfactory condition of affairs in the Transvaal and rumors of a big Boer political campaign in Europe.

Consols for money, 98⅜; do account, 98⅝; Atchison, 29⅞; Canadian Pacific, 88⅞; St. Paul, 116⅞; Illinois Central, 121½; Louisville, 75⅝; Union Pacific preferred, 77¼; New York Central, 134½; Erie, 12⅛; Pennsylvania, 68⅞; Reading, 8⅞; Erie first preferred, 35½; Northern Pacific preferred, 73; Grand Trunk, 6⅝; Anaconda, 9⅜; Rand Mines, 41⅛. Bar silver firm, 29 5-16d per ounce. Money, 1½ per cent. The rates of discount in the open market for short bills is 3¾@3 13-16 per cent; do three months' bills, 3⅞@3⅞.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes: Total reserve, increase, £262,000; circulation, decrease £388,000; bullion, decrease £126,354; other securities, decrease, £326,000; other deposits, decrease £562,000; public deposits, increase £1,191,000; notes, reserve, increase £113,000; government securities, increase £700,000. The proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to liability is 43.24 per cent. Last week it was 43.22 per cent. Rate of discount unchanged at 4 per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—There were fresh realizations on the bourse today, especially in Spanish 4s, which depressed the whole list. Later there was an improvement, but toward the end Spanish 4s, Rio Tintos, and Kaffirs reacted, and at the close prices all round were weak.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes: Notes in circulation, increase 27,475,000 francs; treasury accounts, current, increase 12,800,000 francs; gold in hand, decrease 4,550,000 francs; bills discounted, increase 80,875,000 francs; silver in hand, decrease 1,450,000 francs.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Home funds were firm on the boerse today. Americans and Canadian Pacifics were maintained. Local shares fluctuated, and then sharply recovered on supporting purchases.

Today's receipts are estimated at 2,500 cattle, 23,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep.

Droves of packing hogs, averaging 275@296 lbs., cost $4.55@4.64, and 166@173 lbs. $4.75. Armour bought 7,000; Anglo-American, 3,000; Boyd & Lunham, 1,400; Continental, 600; Lipton, 1,300; Hammond, 500; Morris, 2,600; Swift, 6,000; and butchers, 1,200. Total, 23,600, leaving 8,000 in the pens.

Eleven markets received 71,000 hogs, against 70,000 a week ago, and 69,000 the corresponding Thursday a year ago. Total thus far this week, 304,000, against 317,000 a week ago, and 301,000 the corresponding four days a year ago.

Cattle—The general cattle market was active and prices ruled strong to 10c higher. "Handy" and good heavy natives generally sold 5@10c higher, and most of the Texas and grass Westerns sold 10c higher. Receipts were below all expectations, the number being estimated at 7,000, including 1,400 Texans and about 500 Westerns. Native steers sold at $4.35@5.80; bulk, $5.15@5.65; corn-fed Westerns, $4.90@5.65; distillery steers, 1,396 lbs, $5.30; grass Western steers, $3.60@4.60; Western cows and heifers, $3.10@4.25, and Texas steers, $3.35@3.80. Native canning stock, $1.75@2.60; butcher stock, $2.75@4.25, and stockers and feeders, $2.50@4.45.

Hogs—There was another decline of fully 10c, making 50c decline since last Friday. Prices have declined about 10c each day since last Friday, and the market yesterday closed decidedly weak, with 8,000 left in the pens. It is surprising how easily prices have declined. Present prices are the lowest since the middle of last January, and $1.00@1.10 lower than the high time this year. Quotations are only 35c higher than a year ago, being the nearest they have been together in about a year. Packers bought sparingly and are still bearish in their talk, but it would seem as though prices have touched bottom for a while. Shipping orders were moderately large. A few early sales of 185@245-lb averages were made early at $4.82½@4.85, but later $4.80 was practically the top. Fair to good heavy packers sold late at $4.50@4.60. Most of the selected lights sold at $4.75, with little pigs largely at $3.75. Sales were at the following quotations:

Bulk of sales	$4.55@4.75
Selected butchers' 220@270 lbs	4.70@4.85
Selected bacon, 150@190 lbs	4.60@4.82½
Mixed grades, 180@240 lbs	4.50@4.70
Heavy shipping, 250@350 lbs	4.65@4.82½
Heavy packing, 280@400 lbs	4.55@4.65
Rough heavy grades	4.40@4.50
Poor to choice pigs	3.40@4.35

Sheep—The demand for lambs was active and prices ruled strong to 10c higher, with good sheep steady and common to fair grades weak to 10c lower. WHEAT BREAK CONTINUES

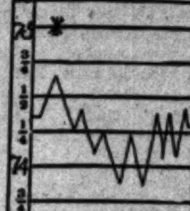
SHARP SLUMP EARLY, REACTION SLIGHT.

Weak Liverpool Market the Chief Factor, the Day's Statistics Being More Encouraging—Buying Fair on the Decline—October Corn Loses Over One Cent on Selling by Bull Leader, but Enormous Cash Business Is Reported—October Ribs Weak.



December wheat range.

There was another serious slump in wheat values yesterday, a loss of 1⅛c in the first hour of trading, but at the decline a new demand sprang up, shorts covered, and a small reaction followed, the close being only ⅝-¾c lower for December at 74¼@74⅜c. The best price at the opening was 74⅝c, a loss of ⅜c from the previous close, and there was a rapid mark-down sale to 73⅞c, a slow recovery, with one or two setsback, to 74⅜c. Liquidation on the break was enormous, its moving cause a decline of ⅛d at Liverpool, which market had given the bulls temporary encouragement the day before by a small advance. Commission house selling was heavy on the decline, but around 74c for December there was good commission buying, and local plungers who had fought the market from the start turned to and helped bull it, on the old theory that there had been break enough for a smart reaction. After a rally to 74⅜c liberal offerings by Phillips turned the market weak and there was another panicky decline of ½c, but the demand was still good at 74c, and buying by Cudahy brokers turned the tide up again. A feature of the trade, which was the heaviest in some days, was the weakness of October, which sold ⅝c under November and closed ½-⅝c lower at 73-⅛c, with the market nearly two-thirds gone. There was some improvement in the export demand at the seaboard, 360,000 bu being taken, while local sales were 225,000 bu, including 100,000 bu No. 1 Northern. Domestic statistics were rather more helpful for the bulls. The Northwest had 539 cars, 39 more than the week before, but 314 less than last year. Primary receipts, though making 4,800,000 bu for four days, showed a marked decrease for the day, 875,324 bu, compared with 1,298,582 bu last year. Shipments were 763,046 bu, compared with 372,368 bu last year. Clearances were large at 503,726 bu. It was estimated stocks in the Northwest would increase 1,100,000 bu and the visible supply 1,000,000 bu, about the same as last year. The foreign flour demand was reported slow but a fair domestic business doing both here and at the seaboard. There was a Paris cable reporting damage to Argentine wheat by rains, a bearish one from Rosario, stating "weather has turned for the better." India was heard from with a Broomhall cable, saying: "Reports from India state that wheat prospects in Province of Bombay are deteriorating." Liverpool cabled, "offerings liberal, market depressed," which was evident from the decline in futures. Spot was steady to ½d lower, London ½-¾d lower, Paris unchanged to ¼c lower, and Antwerp unchanged. Other domestic markets, which were stronger than Chicago on Wednesday, were weaker yesterday, Minneapolis and Duluth ⅞c lower and St. Louis ¾@⅞c lower. The heaviest commision selling was by Canby, McReynolds, Milmine-Bodman, Richardson, and Logan. On the break there was good buying by Bartlett-Frazier, Counselman, Wrenn, and Finley Barrell.

Big Cash Corn Business.

A break of 1½c in October corn, with a recovery of only ⅜c, and a big shipping and export business on the decline—1,000,000 bu worked here and 1,736,000 bu at the seaboard—were the features of the corn market. There was free selling of October and November through brokers, which the crowd attributed to Patten, figuring that the fine weather west and increased movement had made the bull leader tired of his position and willing to edge out of it. The offerings of October were not heavy, but found a sick demand. It opened a shade higher, at 40⅝c, sagged down to 40c on a break of ⅜c in November, and then was carried down by the weight of stop-loss orders to 39⅜c. The rally to 39⅝c, a net loss of 1⅛c, was helped by the big cash business. There was a big trade in December and May, provision houses selling, with what looked like Patten buying of December. The new crop futures were steady in spite of the break, December ⅛c lower, May a split lower. Local receipts were 567 cars, with 550 estimated for today. Primary receipts were 616,101 bu, compared with 730,295 bu last year. Clearances were heavy, at 1,084,874 bu. Liverpool came ⅛-⅜d lower, with spot unchanged.

October ribs slipped off ½c a lb yesterday, selling from $6.75 down to $6.25, recovering 25c at the close. A long line, which the crowd thought the property of Patten, came out and found the demand extremely dull. The Anglo-American took most of the output. December lard was picked up by Cudahy brokers. Hogs were 10c lower, but outside of ribs there was not much liquidation, and packers were disposed to support the market. Deferred futures of ribs only lost 2½-5c, lard was 2½c lower to 5c higher, pork 5c higher for November, and January a shade lower. There was nothing doing in October pork. Cash trade was reported fair, shipments of lard were light—1,342,000 lbs, compared with 1,847,000 lbs last year. The outgo of meats was 1,815,000 lbs, compared with 1,920,000 last year. The West had 64,300 hogs, compared with 61,400 last year. Packing for the week was estimated at 435,000, compared with 405,000 last year.

Wednesday's prices were hardly sustained in the deferred deliveries of oats, although October and November held up to full former prices. The range anywhere did not exceed ¼c, and from this fact may be judged the interest in the market. About the only demand came from the oatmeal crowd, represented by the Continental Packing and Geddes. Selling was scattered. Receipts were moderate, at 233 cars, with 235 cars estimated for today. The seaboard cleared 235,200 bu.

Some stop-loss orders came out in rye early in the session, which broke May from 50c to 49½c. Except in this delivery nothing was done. October was nominally 1c under December.

Barley supplies were larger than the trade expected, but all offerings of the better grade of seed were well taken. Poor grades were quiet and about unchanged in price. High-grade barley was firmer and nominally higher, 58c being bid for some choice seed without getting it. The general range on malting grades was 45@55c. Feed ranged around 41@42c.

Offerings of timothy seed were light, but the demand was so tame that little was done. For October $4.20 was bid without bringing out a car. Clover seed was more freely offered, but the demand was decidedly slack. Contract seed was nominally $10.50.

Flaxseed showed moderate activity and some improvement in price. October opened at $1.78, sold at $1.77, and then firmed up to $1.80 bid toward the end of the session. Deferred deliveries were slightly easier. A little December was traded in at $1.67 and May at $1.68. No. 1 Northwestern ranged from $1.80 to $1.81½, closing $1.81. October closed $1.81 bid, November $1.72, December $1.67 asked, and May $1.68 bid, with sellers at $1.69. Receipts were 50 cars here, 85 at Duluth, and 110 at Minneapolis.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

Estimated receipts today: Wheat, 210 cars; corn, 550 cars; oats, 235 cars; hogs, 22,000.

Lake rates are steady and the demand for boats good at 1¼c for corn and 1⅜c for wheat to Buffalo. Charters were for 100,000 bu wheat, 500,000 bu corn, and 150,000 bu oats.

It looked like the beginning of the end of the October corn corner in the pit yesterday, with a break of 1½c and a recovery of ⅜c only. The crowd thought there was selling by Patten, the big holder, of both October and November. The fine weather West, the increased movement, and the fact that new corn arriving here is grading No. 3 all tended to make a holder uneasy. On the break a tremendous cash business was worked, 1,000,000 bu here and 2,400,000 bu at the seaboard, according to some reports. Most of the seaboard business was said to be new corn for December shipment. A feature of the cash situation is the heavy demand for new corn, which at the discount is evidently considered better worth the money than old corn. The country is selling new No. 2 corn freely, to arrive early in December, and all these things helped make the old corn situation look sick, in spite of the lack of cash business. All waiting buying orders were caught on the decline.

The membership of Charles J. Singer was posted for transfer yesterday. "Charley" Singer does not look like an old-timer yet, but his active operations on the floor date back to 1875, and from 1877 to late in the '80s he was a prominent speculator and one of the forceful coterie called the "Big Four," the others being John Cudahy, Norman B. Ream, and Nat Jones. Since 1890 Mr. Singer has not been active in speculation, dividing his time principally between Paris and Washington, but still calling Chicago his home. "I have thought of selling my membership for some time," said Mr. Singer, "only withheld by the sentimental consideration that it seemed like parting with an old friend. The price seemed right and I offered it yesterday. I felt sorry when the offer was accepted, but could not back out, and so I am no longer a member of the Board of Trade."

All Chicago bucket-shops with one exception have closed or are no longer posting Board of Trade quotations. The one exception is McHie's Central Grain and Stock Exchange, which is still protected by injunctions. The case will be called for trial before Judge Vail in the Circuit Court today for a dissolution of the injunction.

The Warehouse committee, William N. Eckhardt chairman, was in session most of the afternoon hearing witnesses on the complaint brought before the directors by A. O. Slaughter & Co. against the inspection of the State Grain Inspection department. Samples of the cargo bought of Armour & Co. as No. 1 Northern wheat, and passed as such by the State inspectors and private inspectors for A. O. Slaughter & Co., were submitted to the committee. They were samples which Chief State Inspector Smilie declared were not contract grade. Harry B. Slaughter, F. E. Hotchkiss, Samuel Scotten, Rudolph Desjardins, and Grain Inspectors Peter Reed, Bert Waare, Con McMahon, and George Tanner were examined by the committee. Samples of another lot of wheat besides that referred to in the Slaughter complaint were submitted. The purchaser of the wheat was given certificates calling for "new No. 1 Northern" wheat, but various expert handlers on seeing the sample declared it a mixture of hard winter and No. 3 spring, which would not grade better than No. 3 spring, and the wheat was resold in the pit instead of being taken out of store for shipment. The committee will hold another meeting today. There is some expectation in the trade it will recommend a supervision of the work of the State Grain Inspection department by the Board of Trade, in compliance with the Slaughter petition.

The Duluth Commercial Record says: "An inquiry started from here regarding Kansas and Oklahoma wheat, and sent to people in Kansas City, who are probably as well posted as any, says that not over 40 per cent of the Kansas and Oklahoma crop has been marketed, and after providing for local mills and seed there is a full 40,000,000 bu still to come from that section."

MODERATE TRADE IN FARM PRODUCE

Retailers Not Taking Large Quantities and Conditions Generally Easy.

Business in produce lines is becoming a little slack. Yesterday it was at low ebb all around, with only inconsequential changes in prices. Peach receipts are running light, and the quality is so poor that only small quantities are wanted. The trade is practically over for the season. Demand keeps good for articles in the dairy list. Potatoes are still in oversupply.

Closing Quotations at the Leading Trade Centers of the Country.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Flour—Receipts, 27,477 brls; exports, 6,282 brls; sales, 7,400 pkgs. Weak and 5@15c lower, without attracting buyers, who held off expecting further declines in wheat. Winter straights, $3.45@3.60; Minnesota patent, $4.10@4.40.

Wheat—Receipts, 126,250 bu; exports, 96,082 bu; sales, 3,960,000 bu futures, 240,000 bu spot. Spot weak; No. 2 red, 78⅝c f. o. b., afloat, and 76⅝c elevator; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 84⅝c f. o. b., afloat; No. 1 hard, Duluth, 86⅝c f. o. b., afloat. Options experienced a day of heaviness under renewed liquidation, disappointing cables, fine weather, bearish Argentine crop news again, small export demand, and lack of outside support. The only demand came from scattered shorts. Closed weak, at ⅛@⅜c net decline. March, 82@82 9-16c, closed 82⅝c; May, 82 3-16@82 11-16c, closed 82½c; October, 77@77 3-16c, closed 77c; December, 78 11-16@79 3-16c, closed 79c.

Corn—Receipts, 107,250 bu; exports, 116,716 bu; sales, 210,000 bu futures, 1,600,000 bu spot. Spot weak; No. 2, 45⅝c elevator and 46c f. o. b., afloat. Options weak and lower, especially the nearby options, which reflected heaviness in spot property and active liquidation, notwithstanding another big export demand. Weather was fine and cables lower. Closed weak, at ¼@1c net decline. May, 41¼@41½c, closed 41⅜c; October, 45@46c, closed 45¼c; December, 41⅞@42⅛c, closed 41⅞c.

Oats—Receipts, 150,800 bu; exports, 6,955 bu; sales, 90,000 bu spot. Spot quiet; No. 2, 25c; No. 3, 24⅝c; No. 2 white, 27⅛c; No. 3 white, 26½c; track mixed Western, 24½@26½c; track white, Western and State, 26@33c. Options dull and weak.

Coffee—Spot Rio dull; No. 7 invoice, 8¼c. Mild quiet; Cordova, 9⅝@14c. Futures opened steady at a decline of 5 points, and ruled easy much of the session, in the absence of speculative support and following weakness in foreign markets. Large Brazilian receipts and apathy in spot department, added to reluctance of buyers to take hold, were factors. Late in the day light covering caused reaction, but the market in general was narrow and uneventful. Closed steady, with prices unchanged to 5 points lower. Total sales, 22,000 bags, including: October, 7c; November, 7.05c; December, 7.15c; January, 7.20c; March, 7.30c; May, 7.40c; July, 7.50c.

Sugar—Raw steady; fair refining, 4¼c; centrifugal, 96 test, 4¾c. Molasses sugar, 4c. Refined quiet.

Cotton—The market opened steady, with prices 5@8 points higher. Liverpool showed strength at the time of our opening, and was in excess of ideas based on yesterday's rise here and became the motive for hasty covering on the part of local shorts. Foreign buying orders and investment support also were prominent. The buying did not cease with the adjournment of the call, and the tone of the market improved accordingly. The bulls bought the winter months with great confidence.

Before the close of the first hour, however, there was a marked change for the worse, and in much less time than they had advanced, prices declined 15 points under a rush to sell by nearly every branch of the trade. The decline was due to a sudden reaction in Liverpool due to contradictions from this side of frost reports.

Special telegrams from Washington stated that heavy frost had made its appearance last night in several parts of the Carolinas, and it was this news that gave the market strength which held sway pretty much during the rest of the session. Just before the close a spurt of local selling carried down several points. The market closed barely steady at a net loss of 3@11 points, the latter on October only.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 9 15-16c; middling gulf, 10 3-16c; sales, 200 bales.

Futures closed barely steady. October, 9.34c; November, 9.25c; December, 9.23c; January, 9.22c; February, 9.21c; March, 9.21c; April, 9.21c; May, 9.21c; June, 9.20c; July, 9.15c; August, 9.05c.

Metals—A further decline of £3 in tin at London, making a total loss of £5 for two days, served to create a weak undertone here, and a drop of 50 points was apparent at the close, with sellers at $27.60 for spot. Copper also experienced another drop in London of 12s 6d, but the local situation was not materially changed, closing dull at $16.75@17.00. Lead and spelter ruled dull at $4.37½ and $4.10@4.15 respectively; and pig iron warrants were extremely dull. The brokers' price for lead was $4.00 and for copper $16.87½.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 18.—Wheat—Lower. No. 2 red, cash, elevator, 72c; track, 72⅝@73⅝c; October, 71⅞c; December, 72⅝@72¾c; May, 76⅞c; No. 2 hard, 69@69½c. Corn—Lower. No. 2 cash, 37½c; track, 39½c old; 37½c new; October, 37½c; December, 33⅞@34c; May, 35⅛c. Oats—Lower. No. 2 cash, 22¼c; track, 22c; October, 22¼c; December, 22½@22⅝c; May, 24⅜c; No. 2 white, 25½c. Lead—Dull, $4.20. Spelter—Steady, $4.05.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 18.—Wheat was weak today, the market losing a cent before the first hour had expired. There was but little change in the market after noon. December wheat closed at 75¼@75⅜c; May at 78¼@78⅜c, a decline of ⅞c from yesterday. Some No. 1 cash Northern brought 1¼c over December price.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 18.—Close—Wheat—December, 65⅝@65⅞c; May, 70¼@70⅜c; cash No. 2 hard, 65½@68c; No. 3, 62¼@67¼c; No. 2 red, 68¼@69c; No. 3, 63@68c. Corn—December, 32⅝c; May, 33¼@34c; cash, No. 2, 34½c; No. 2 white, 37½c; No. 3, 36½@37c. Oats—No. 2 white, 24¼@25c.

INSURANCE AFFAIRS.

The hearing of the application of a policy-holder for the removal of Stewart Goodrell from the receivership of the Northwestern Life Assurance company of Chicago was begun before Judge Chetlain yesterday morning. Objection was raised at the beginning of the session to the allowing of claimants of the company joining in the suit of Mrs. Emma Franke on the ground that such contestants would want Mr. Goodrell removed and a new appointment made. Attorney Merritt Starr of the insurance company made the contention that the objectors to the receivership had no standing in court, and by failing to prove their claims had exhausted the remedy of the law.

Several persons have already been granted permission to join in the suit, among them being Christian Wiehe, represented by Attorney Jacob Newman, and Elizabeth Curtis, who appears by her counsel, former Judge W. E. Church. Attorney Jacob Newman protested against the barring out of the claims and insisted that the court should permit another claimant, B. Gardner of Chippewa Falls, Wis., to join in the suit. Argument on the motion for the removal of Receiver Stewart Goodrell will follow the ruling of the court on the preliminary motion.

Fire losses throughout the Western field, which showed a marked decrease during the last six weeks, are again at a high daily average. Local insurance officials and agents are inclined to doubt the truth of the report from Cincinnati that attorneys in that city have discovered an organized gang of firebugs, with connections in other Western cities, engaged in incendiarism and defrauding of companies.

The Western Assurance company of Toronto has brought suit in the United States Court at Columbus, O., against Auditor W. H. Halliday and Treasurer Nelson Sims enjoining them from placing a charge of $16,000 against the company for taxes on securities owned by the company and deposited with the State Treasurer, as required by the Ohio insurance laws. Previously these securities have escaped the attention of the tax collectors. When only United States bonds were deposited there was no opportunity to tax them, but Ohio officials approved the use of municipal bonds for security deposits. The latter are liable to become unpopular with insurance companies if the Western should be compelled to pay four years' back taxes charged up against it. The securities it holds amount to $100,000, equally divided in Toledo and Columbus city bonds.

BROWN MEN CONFIDENT.

EXPECT TO DEFEAT THE MAROONS TOMORROW.

Stagg Gives His Players a Long Secret Practice in Anticipation of the Severest Test of the Year—Providence Players Arrive in Good Condition and Bring a Little Money to Bet on Points—Local Odds Favor Brunonians at 7 to 5.

Brown University's football team, twenty-one strong, arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon, and will be in good condition to meet the maroon team at Marshall Field tomorrow in what will probably be the hardest fought game in this city this season.

The visitors are somewhat confident of victory. Coach Robinson conservatively says he thinks the chances are about even, possibly in Chicago's favor; but it is apparent that down in his heart he expects more than that. Manager Linden thinks the odds should be 3 to 2 on Brown.

Down at the campus and around the university there was no boasting yesterday. The disastrous showing at Minneapolis took all of this spirit out of the followers of the maroons, who now are willing to fall back on a spirit of loyalty and declare that they are not yet ready to believe Stagg's team is by any means a failure and will stick to it until it has been decisively defeated.

At the university the general opinion is that the odds on tomorrow's game should be even money. Brown's coach brought along some money to bet at 2 to 1 that Chicago would not score more than one more touchdown than Brown.

Judging from the opinions expressed by college alumni about town, who keep a close watch on football, the betting on tomorrow's game should favor the Eastern team at odds of at least 7 to 5. It is not believed Minnesota has improved so vastly as to be able to hold an eleven capable of making anything like a good showing against Pennsylvania, as did Brown in Philadelphia last Saturday. On the other hand, it is conceded that Stagg can do a great deal with a team even in one week, and that future contests may show Minnesota to be much stronger than it is given credit for, as was the case last fall with the Iowa team, which so dampened the enthusiasm of the maroon followers by playing the Chicago players to a standstill about this season of the year.

At the mass-meeting held yesterday morning Coach Stagg made a rousing speech to the students. He said:

"Last year we had the champion team of the West, and this season everybody remembered our success last year, and, forgetting that a number of the old men are gone, took it for granted the team would be as good this year. Although we haven't the material they have just said confidently, 'Watch them go.' But the team hasn't proved as strong as was expected, and now we have arrived at the most critical moment of the season. The team will go into the game on Saturday prepared to put up the best fight it can, and will go for every inch there is in it."

It was long after dark before Stagg let the men quit practice yesterday, starting them in at punting, followed by a practice game and signal work. The plays went smoother and the defense was better, but the men failed to make the gains against the scrubs that they ought to have done. Feil showed an improvement in his work and hit the line better. Pettit was tried at end again and he will go in the game on Saturday. Ervin is not a great success at tackle, as he is too slow. The men all put life and spirit in their work and are going to put up a game fight.

The Brown team had some difficulty in securing a field for practice, and was not able to get to work till almost dark. One of their footballs had been left on the train, so they were obliged to get along the best they could with one football and a headgear. Coach Robinson says the men have gained about five pounds in flesh on their trip, and that will have to be worked off. Wheeler and Wade, who have exchanged places at quarter and center, have only had three days for practice at their new positions, and their strength is somewhat problematical.

The weight of the two teams is the same, both averaging 173 pounds. The Brown coaches are banking a great deal on the showing made against Pennsylvania last Saturday, and while declaring that Pennsylvania has the strongest team in the United States, say Brown would have prevented it from scoring if it had not had a green center playing in the first half. Brown's defense in the second half was perfect, and it expects to put up the same front against Chicago. The style of play of the two teams will be somewhat similar, as both are light and play a fast game, with frequent attempts at end runs. All but four of the Brown men are regular last year's players, and two of the four were subs last season. Both elevens will be given secret practice tomorrow before the final test.

The lineup will be as follows:

Poor Kickers at Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—The Badgers' weakness in drop kicking was decidedly in evidence at today's practice when Coach King lined the varsity up against the scrubs on the twenty-five yard line for ten minutes' practice at kicking goals. Schreiber was the first man tried, but he was unable to get his kicks off in time, and even when he did they were wide of the goal posts and too short. Tratt was then given a trial, but was not much better. Finally Juneau was called back from right end and did about the best work of the three, although his kicks seemed decidedly poor compared with some of Pat O'Day. It is quite evident Wisconsin cannot count on doing any scoring in goals from the field this year, unless the place kick is worked up.

Are Encouraged at Champaign.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—The varsity continued its good work tonight and played snappy ball against the scrubs. The latter also put up a stiff game and battered several good gains out of the regulars. Brown was tried on the varsity and showed up well. Diener was at quarter back again, but may not be in shape to play against Northwestern. Jutton at end did good work, as did Weihmeier and Noble, the two new men on the scrubs. The varsity's offense and defense near the goal line was the evening's program and from the looks of everything it seems as if the Northwestern people next Saturday will not prove a proposition that cannot be solved.

Practice Defense at Michigan.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Varsity defense, the point that has been the go-by so far, according to Coach Lea's methods, was worked in this afternoon's secret practice for all there was in it. Lea fears the strong team from Purdue and is guarding against its place kicking prowess with a large line of defensive punting. The scrubs were given the ball on the varsity's goal line and told to look for holes. A good supply was discovered by the reserve men, who plunged through repeatedly, even after the nature of the play was known to the regulars. Captain Snow lined up with his injured head protected with special armor, and will be in Saturday's game.

ACCIDENTS MAR BICYCLE RACES.

Punctures Spoil McDuffee-Fisher Match at Coliseum.

Punctured tires interfered considerably with the quality of last night's cycle racing program at the Coliseum. In the fifteen-mile paced match between Eddie McDuffee and John T. Fisher, McDuffee used up two wheels before he had completed eleven miles, and was compelled to abandon the race. The first time he punctured a tire was at the beginning of the seventh mile, and the Boston lad lost four laps in remounting. At the end of eleven and a half miles the rear tire of his second mount went down, and before he could stop McDuffee slipped off the track on the turn and fell, but without injury.

This was expected to be a close match, and fulfilled expectations until accidents intervened. McDuffee missed his pacing machine on the start, and Fisher gained a lead of a quarter of a lap, which he held at an even pace for the first mile. In the second mile Fisher drew away a little and at its finish had a lead of half a lap. McDuffee began sprinting in the next mile, and cut down his rival's lead by half, and in the fourth mile the Boston boy kept gaining slightly until the distance that separated the flyers was only twenty-five yards at its finish.

Fisher then began to draw away again until at the close of the sixth mile he had opened a gap of an even half lap. On the second lap of the seventh mile McDuffee punctured the front tire of his wheel and was compelled to change mounts. Before he had got well under way again he was four and a half laps behind, but he set to work to make a game finish in spite of the handicap. For three miles and a half things ran smoothly and Fisher still maintained his lead. Then, as Fisher finished ten miles and a half, McDuffee was seen to leave his pace again and on the next turn fell from his wheel, and it was found that his rear tire was flat. He abandoned the race and Fisher finished the remaining three and a half miles alone.

Johnny Lake of New York and Orlando Weber of Milwaukee were carded to meet in the five-mile motor paced match for amateurs, but Weber was unable to compete on account of his fall on Wednesday night, and Ralph Wheaton of Chicago was substituted. It was Wheaton's first race behind motor pace, and he rode a plucky race, but was beaten by nearly a lap and a half, holding the pace well until the last mile of the five, when Lake spurted and passed him easily.

Jimmie Michael in his mile exhibition came one second nearer his world's record of 1:40, covering the distance last night in 1:41 flat. The evening's program was varied by an exhibition of trick riding by Herbert Butzow of Chicago.

Tonight's match race will bring together Eddie McDuffee and Charles W. Miller for fifteen miles, motor paced. There will be another attempt by Michael to beat his indoor mark, and the amateurs will have their usual share of the card.

Tomorrow night Michael and McDuffee will race for fifteen miles behind pace. The week's carnival will close on Sunday, when there will be a matinee of special races, with a strong card in the evening, including the fifteen-mile match, motor paced, between Jimmie Michael and Johnnie Nelson.

BROOKLYN CLINCHES THE SERIES.

Proves Easily Superior to Pittsburg in the Post-Season Games.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—The agony is over. Brooklyn is possessor of the beautiful $500 trophy cup, and carries away one-half the gate receipts of the four games necessary to decide the supremacy over Pittsburg. The champions demonstrated throughout the series that they were deserving of the league pennant by playing better ball in every way than their opponents, who finished second in the race. Yesterday's victory so encouraged the Pittsburg players and the local fans that the 2,335 people who attended the game today really expected to see the victory repeated.

The Pittsburg men went at their work with great determination and every point was worked to the limit by both sides up to the fourth inning, when three hits and a fumble by Leever netted three runs to Brooklyn. After that the locals seemed to lose their snap, and while they played hard to win, it was conceded by the spectators that the home team was outclassed. Waddell was put in the box as a forlorn hope, but the handicap was too great. McGinnity won his second game in the series by keeping the hits well scattered and by receiving the finest kind of support. Lave Cross was especially effective in spoiling hits by getting in the way of numerous balls speeding toward left field and making wonderfully fast throws to Jennings.

The cup will be presented to Brooklyn players at the Alvin Theater tomorrow night by Mayor Diehl. Score:

Give Cup to McGinnity.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—As a mark of appreciation and acknowledgment that to his brilliant pitching the success of the club was largely due, the Brooklyn team by unanimous consent decided to turn over to Pitcher McGinnity the handsome trophy cup, it to be his personal property forever. The twirler was greatly surprised. The Brooklyn management gave McGinnity $100 extra for his good work.

Conference with Players Postponed.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—President Charles Zimmer of the Players' union thought he had everything arranged to have the conference with the National league's committee held at Cleveland on Oct. 22, but today he received word from Attorney Taylor that another date must be fixed. The cause given for the change is that John I. Rogers of Philadelphia, a member of the league's committee, is kept at home by the serious sickness of his sister. Zimmer is disappointed, but says the union must wait patiently for an opportunity to present its grievances. Zimmer does not think that, if the league grants a three-year reserve, it will insist on a scale of wages.

Grant Defeated in Canada.

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Twenty-five thousand people today witnessed the start and finish of the Thanksgiving day cross-country run, distance 19 miles 168 yards. John Caffery, St. Patrick's Athletic club, Hamilton, won easily in 1:51:52, establishing a world's record and beating William Sherring's record of last year by a little more than two minutes. Sherring was second, and Davis, an Indian, third. Dick Grant, the famous long distance runner of the United States, dropped out after covering fifteen miles.

Morningstar Wins by a Big Run.

New York, Oct. 18.—Tom Gallagher, the veteran shortstop, and Ora Morningstar, the young Western billiardist, faced each other tonight in the fourth match of the handicap series at Maurice Daly's academy, for a purse of $200. Morningstar won, the final score being 250 to 232.

Gallagher was in superb stroke and in the seventh inning he gathered a cluster of 57 buttons. He speedily forged ahead of his handicap of 150 points with runs of 21, 78, and 47, all on brilliant nursing. Morningstar made a run of 33 in the tenth inning and then went up in the air, missing the easiest sort of shots. But he came up strong at the finish with a sensational run of 73 and won.

BAD LUCK OF J. F. SCHORR

SCHECK WINS FORDHAM HANDICAP AND IS DISQUALIFIED.

Jockey Burns Is Found to Be Under Weight When the Jockeys Weigh Out—Owner Loses $14,000 in Bets—Fighting Finishes Enliven the Sport at Harlem—Chappaqua Surprises the Betting Men by Defeating the Sprinting Talent at Six Furlongs.

New York, Oct. 18.—Alard Scheck won the Fordham Highweight Handicap at Morris Park today by a neck before Belle of Troy and was then disqualified, as his jockey, Burns, was two pounds under weight. The horse was heavily played from 8 to 6 to 1, and his owner, John F. Schorr, figured up that the disqualification cost him just $14,400 outside of the stake.

It was an unfortunate occurrence, as Alard Scheck showed himself a high-class colt. He was giving weight to everything in the race. The event was at seven furlongs, and eight horses faced the starter, with Vulcain favorite. It was a pretty race. Lady Uncas, Musette, and Belle of Lexington made the running, heads apart, to the stretch, when the trailers closed, and the whole field came down the stretch like a line of cavalry. At the last furlong pole Alard Sheck and Belle of Troy drew away and fought it out to the wire. Charentus was third, three lengths back, a head before Kinnikinnick.

The Ramapo Handicap was the other fixture, and Killashandra, an odds-on favorite at 3 to 5, made all the running, and won cleverly from Gonfalon and First Whip, who finished heads apart in that order.

The balance of the racing was interesting. The Amazon won the first race easily from Alsike; Little Daisy, played by a few for a killing, won the second, ridden out, from Fleetwing; Asquith took the fifth, Turner scoring his second win of the day, and Bangor beat the odds-on favorite, Intrusive, three lengths, in the last race, which was a two-horse affair.

The weather was clear and bright, the track fast, and the attendance large.

It developed today that "Kid" McCoy had left owing the "layers" about $5,000. It is said "Eddie" Burke, the bookmaker, who is accused by Mrs. Corbett and Mrs. McCoy of having engineered the alleged "fake" between McCoy and Corbett, is the heaviest sufferer.

When McCoy had bet "markers" (bets on credit) until he owed many bookmakers, he sent word that he would not make good, knowing that they could not collect by law.

McCoy is now in England and is supposed to be on his way to south Africa, where, it is said, he owns mining property of some value.

FIGHTING FINISHES AT HARLEM.

Chappaqua Defeats Mint Sauce in a Six-Furlong Sprint.

Fighting finishes and victories for "good things" enlivened the racing at Harlem yesterday and enabled the public to separate the layers of odds from a bale or two of bank notes.

Another of those 2-year-old good things won the first race, then the men who make the quotations valued the Eastern horse Kenilworth at 3 to 1 and the public kept on purchasing tickets until the market went down to 7 to 5, after which Kenilworth won. But the silver lining of the bookmakers' cloud came when Mint Sauce was beaten after a desperate struggle and the public rendered back unto Cæsar the things that were Cæsar's.

The sensational race of the afternoon was the fifth—the Mint Sauce race. Now Mint Sauce has been winning and winning and the speculators have been cashing regularly with every start, but the speculators, greedily trying to get some spring lamb to go with it, forgot that all of Mint Sauce's recent races have been won over long journeys and insisted on playing just the same and pounded down the price from even money to 7 to 10, and then kept on betting.

Mint Sauce went out to win, with Algaretta, lightly weighted, chasing him hard, and, when Algaretta fell away Dolly Weithoff pushed Cowser's entry. The favorite led into the stretch, but, straightened away, the entire field came with a rush and the eight animals thundered down the track like a squadron of cavalry, on even terms. Suddenly Chappaqua shot out from the inside rail and won by a short half-length, while Mint Sauce was second by a nose because Dolly Weithoff was badly ridden.

Kohnwreath, the usual "good thing" among the maiden 2-year-olds, captured the opening event as she pleased. Harry Nutter, the favorite in the second event, was heavily played, although some of the bettors followed Frangible and Topmast, both being played down a point. Nutter made the running, but, when Topmast reached even terms at the head of the stretch, he was considered the winner. Then unexpectedly Frangible came fast, and, in a ding dong drive beat Harry Nutter a nose, winning in the final jump.

Kenilworth, fresh from the Eastern tracks, made his first start in the West in the third race. Eastern horses have not shown as well and the manipulators offered 3 to 1 on Kenilworth. The investors played him heavily and he won as though exercising.

Frelinghuysen beat a bad lot handily in the fourth race.

The final event was full of good things. Sir Kingston, the favorite, was well played, and there was quite a brisk bit of investing on Astor's chances. Astor made most of the running, stalling off Dissenter's rush, but Aurea, cleverly piloted by Landry, who seems a good boy, came away from the crowd in the stretch and won handily by three open lengths.

Notes of the Track.

Barney Weller, who has been visiting the race-tracks of England and continental Europe, returned to Harlem yesterday. He says the American jockeys are the heroes of Paris.

Fines of $10 each were imposed upon the following jockeys by Starter Dwyer for breaking through the barrier in the first race: J. Waldo, Ransom, J. Martin, A. Webber, and Neel. Starter Dwyer also set down Jockey H. Butler during the rest of the meeting for incompetency.

It was announced yesterday that the meeting at Lakeside would open on Monday, Oct. 29, instead of Oct. 30. Harlem will close its present meeting on Oct. 27, thereby giving only one day for the horsemen to move to the Indiana track. The Lakeside meeting will terminate on Wednesday, Nov. 14.

The following horses will be sold at auction tomorrow in the Harlem paddock: Property of James B. Gray: Macie Maree, Florence Anetia, and Katherine Ennis. Property of C. B. Campbell: Bob Palmer and Corn-I-Cut. Property of F. M. Arthur: Ohnet, Banish, and Sam Lazarus Esq. Property of G. and F. Grefer: E. R. Russel. Next Tuesday the stable of A. C. Clark will be offered for sale at auction. In it are the following: Hermoso, Harry Nutter, Mirello, Emigre, and Owensboro.

CRITICISE LORD DURHAM'S TALK.

New York Turfmen Stand Up for the American Jockeys.

New York, Oct. 18.—Several prominent racehorse owners express decided opinions on Lord Durham's criticisms in regard to American owners, trainers, and jockeys. It is the main topic of conversation at the Morris Park course.

"I do not think," said Richard Croker, "that Lord Durham is right. English boys have the same chance to learn the American style of riding as our boys have. We would be quick enough to follow English style out here if English jockeys taught us anything. There ought to be no restrictions as to nationality. I suppose American trainers will not be able to get any more licenses to train at Newmarket. Superiority of American jockeys consists in putting the saddle forward and the crouching attitude, which offers less wind resistance, and that can be copied. Depend upon it the English boys will have to come to it."

David Gideon said: "I think Lord Durham's criticism is entirely uncalled for. Any boy that does wrong should be punished, be he American or Scotchman."

"Lord Durham must have facts to support him in such harsh criticism," said F. R. Hitchcock. "American boys have behaved no worse than English boys."

R. C. Hopper, who races under the name of Mr. Chamlet, said: "Perhaps, if Lord Durham paid a little more attention to English jockeys he would not make such scathing remarks about others."

"I think Lord Durham's remarks are made for effect," said T. Hitchcock Jr. "The best answer is that American boys are still in demand."

Arthur Featherstone said: "They have the rules. If our boys do wrong punish them. Patriotic Englishmen do not like to be beaten. I think Lord Durham has made a mistake."

ONWENTSIA WINS AT POLO

TEAM DEFEATS ST. LOUIS COUNTRY CLUB AT CLAYTON, MO.

Take First Game in Tournament by Score of 6 to 2¾—Home Club Weakened by Absence of the Davis Brothers and Charles Scudder—Chicago Men Somewhat Ragged in Combination Work, but Play Well Individually.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 18.—[Special.]—By individual play rather than team work the Onwentsia polo team won this afternoon's match with the St. Louis Country club at Clayton, Mo., by four goals to three, but, as St. Louis made a safety play and the Chicagoans were receiving two goals, the score at the finish stood Onwentsia, 6; St. Louis, 2¾. Neither side had played the same lineup before, and the game showed it, being rather ragged at times, though fast.

Bruce Kirkman, playing No. 1 for Onwentsia, did some good riding off and hit the ball hard for long, slashing drives. Walter Farwell and M. J. Kirkman put up a pretty good game, but were not quite in their best form. Charlie King's defensive play was good and he seldom failed when the pinch came. The St. Louis team was not so strong as anticipated, owing to the absence of the Davis brothers and Charles Scudder. Captain Doan elected to play back, which weakened the St. Louis line and seemed poor policy. Had he played T. J. Drew's position and put Philip Scanlon in as back the team would have been more formidable. The intention was to play Bertie Walker, one of St. Louis' best forwards, but his ponies were not on hand and he only supplanted Drew for the last period. E. H. Simmons played a good game. The locals expect to be able to put a stronger team in the field for Saturday's game. If they do it is to be hoped the Onwentsias will develop better team work.

From the throw in Simmons broke away with the ball for a short run and goal shot, but King spoiled his direction. King made a good drive from goal line, and the Kirkmans rushed the play down the field, finally leaving the ball to Farwell, who passed to King, and the back made a good drive for goal, but the ball took a twist and hopped outside the post. A good rally followed Doan's long hit out, but neither side could score during the first quarter.

The second period began with Prim following up the hit out with a hard drive. Then every one missed, and a hot scrimmage resulted in St. Louis advancing along the side by rapid rushes, but the ball went out of play and the next feature was a fast run by M. J. Kirkman, his brother riding off the St. Louis back in gallant style. But the Onwentsia Captain overrode the ball, which Simmons sent out of harm's way with a beautiful backhander. St. Louis then gave a good exhibition of team play, Drew riding off and Simmons and Prim combining in a good galloping run and determined attack. In a fierce rally near Onwentsia's line Doan made a clever pass right to the mouth of the goal, which King saved. Doan threatened again with a fine backhand cut, but Farwell hit to the side and M. J. Kirkman romped down the field with the ball. By hard riding Doan got back in time to save his goal temporarily, but the visitors were not to be denied, and, pressing the attack hotly, they were rewarded by M. J. Kirkman's good shot for goal after seven minutes of play in this period.

This appeared to put the St. Louis men on their mettle and they attacked irresistibly with the result that Simmons and Prim scored in quick succession. Then the attack suddenly shifted and the Onwentsia forwards swooped down upon their opponents' goal, which finally fell, although Prim made a desperate effort to avert danger, crashing into a goal post and knocking it down. Doan's hit out was followed by Simmons' fast run, but King once more saved his goal, and when time was up each side had scored twice. Fast rallies and furious rushes up and down the field marked the first part of the third period, and once St. Louis was forced into a safety play, a good run by Simmons was followed by a rush of the Onwentsia forward. But Doan saved beautifully. Then Walter Farwell lashed the ball down the field and wound up with a capital shot for goal. On the throw in W. B. Kirkman hit out of the mêlée, and Doan, coming with a rush, galloped the ball down the side and with a fine cut passed to goal, but no St. Louis forward was there to play the ball and King drove away hard. St. Louis rushed it back, but it went behind, and the third quarter terminated.

Captain Doan sent G. H. Walker into the game for the last quarter and changed his forward around, Simmons going from 3 to 1, Prim from 2 to 3, and Walker playing No. 2. At first the shifting of places seemed a disadvantage, for the team work was loose and Walter Farwell dashed through the St. Louis line and scored with apparent ease. But in a few minutes Walker made matters even by landing the ball into the Onwentsia goal with a corking fine drive. On the next throw in the play grew faster and St. Louis carried the game into Onwentsia's half most of the remaining time. Prim and Simmons each driving over the visitors' line on one side or other of the goal. But at the close of the play the local team had failed to tie the Onwentsias.

The score:

Onwentsia.		St. Louis.
W. B. Kirkman [2]	0	T. J. Drew [2]	0
M. J. Kirkman [2]	2	G. H. Walker [5]	1

A. J. COLEMAN WINS THE KING CUP.

Defeats E. F. Drennan by Two Up—Woman's Handicap at Onwentsia.

A. J. Coleman yesterday won the cup presented by C. W. King in the Newspaper golf tournament, defeating E. F. Drennan by two up and one to play. The match, which was at thirty-six holes, was closely contested. In the first half Drennan had all the better of the play and was four up. Coleman then began to get his swing and at the twenty-seventh hole had reduced his opponent's lead to two. At the thirty-first hole the match was even. Coleman then went ahead and won the match at the thirty-fifth hole.

The medal scores were as follows:

	First round.	Second round.	Total.
Coleman	114	96	210
Drennan	98	113	211

A woman's consolation handicap at eighteen holes is scheduled for this afternoon at the Onwentsia club. It is open to players who have not won a prize of any kind during the season. Mrs. Abram Poole has donated a prize for the winner. Tomorrow afternoon a men's consolation handicap will be played. It is open to players who have taken part in at least two matches during the season and have not won a prize.

A bogey handicap open to all members will also be played. Three prizes will be given.

Fourteen players of the Midlothian Country club will leave tonight for Kansas City, where tomorrow they will play a return match with the Kansas City Country club. The first match played at Midlothian on June 22 was won by the local club by five up, ten men playing on each team. It was a small advantage on the home course and the locals realize that on the Kansas City links they will be at a disadvantage. The team going is about the strongest the club can produce and will be strengthened by the addition of John Stuart, the ex-Princeton player. Those who will make the trip are: W. T. G. Bristol, J. C. Daniels, C. Zeublin, John Stuart, P. K. Tyng, T. W. Gilson, W. L. DeWolf, J. O. Hinkley, E. C. Potter, J. R. Morron, R. H. Donnelley, J. L. Stack, E. A. Russell, and C. S. Smith. President G. R. Thorne, E. A. Turner, J. G. Shedd, and C. G. Atkinson will accompany the team.

MISS GRISCOM DEFEATS MISS HOYT.

Merion Club Golfer Wins from Former Champion at Baltusrol.

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Miss Frances Griscom emphasized the fact that she is America's woman golf champion today by defeating Miss Beatrix Hoyt, who held the title for three successive years. Owing to the luck of drawing, they did not meet in the recent national tournament at Shinnecock Hills.

The chance of seeing these stars meet attracted another large crowd to Baltusrol. The weather was ideal and the links in condition for the best possible golf.

The story of the victory of Miss Griscom is told in a few words. Her driving was not so good as that of her opponent, but her approach shots were well judged, and she would putt out in two strokes to Miss Hoyt's three. The former champion missed several good chances for halves purely through nervousness. Miss Griscom was careful, and several times her skill at short work elicited applause.

The defeat of Miss Ruth Underhill, who held the championship title in 1899, by Miss E. A. Manice of Lenox, was not considered surprising, as the latter's great game against Miss Griscom at Shinnecock Hills won her a host of admirers.

The summaries:

Second round—Miss Frances Griscom, Merion, beat Miss Beatrix Hoyt, Shinnecock Hills, by 3 up and 2 to play; Miss Margaret Curtis, Boston, beat Miss Bessie Howe, Pittsburg, by 5 up and 3 to play; Miss E. A. Manice, Lenox, beat Miss Ruth Underhill, Nassau, by 1 up.

YANGER-SULLIVAN FIGHT TONIGHT.

Little Fellows Ready to Battle for Supremacy at Star Theater.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

Tommy Sullivan, the Eastern featherweight, who is to meet Benny Yanger at the Star Theater tonight, was installed a 100 to 80 favorite over the little Italian yesterday. The cause of this sudden shift in the betting from even money in favor of Sullivan in twenty-four hours can only be accounted for by Yanger's failure to defeat Mowatt, "Buddy" Ryan's victory over Mowatt, and Ryan's draw with Sullivan. On form the Eastern looks a shade better than does Yanger, and probably the followers of form outnumber Benny's admirers.

Reports from the training quarters of both boys say they are in the pink of condition. Sullivan put in a rough half hour's work with Jack Cody at the Star gymnasium yesterday, and made an excellent impression upon those that witnessed the bout. After a thorough rubdown Tommy got on to the scales and weighed 123¾ pounds, a pound and a half over the weight specified in the articles of agreement. Sullivan is in better condition than when he met "Buddy" Ryan at Tattersall's, and is confident he will leave the ring with Yanger's scalp dangling from his belt. Benny's work yesterday consisted of a run through Washington Park and a full hour's boxing with several light and feather weights. In turf parlance, he warmed up well, and tipped the beam a half-pound under the required weight. With both boys fit, and with no unforeseen accident happening to either before the gong calls them to the center of the ring, the contest ought to be one of the best, if not the best, seen in this vicinity in some time. The boys will box for a percentage of the gross receipts, but this is not the only incentive. The winner, besides receiving the big end of the money, will also leave the ring with the honor of being the best 122-pounder in the West. Furthermore, it means more good matches and incidentally large financial returns.

The semi-windup will also be a warm affair, as the contestants, Clarence Forbes and Walter Bloom, are on edge for a warm scrimmage. Forbes has a victory over Bloom to his credit, which the latter is anxious to wipe out, but Clarence would like to make it two, just the same.

Ole Oleson, who won a decision over Oscar Gardner in six rounds at the Chicago Athletic association's boxing entertainment last Saturday night, wants to match with any 124-pound fighter in America.

◆

"Chicago Jack" Daly and Barney Walsh are down for the windup at the Orpheus Athletic club tonight.

◆

Joe Walcott, the colored welterweight, is in training in anticipation of a match with Frank Childs, the colored heavyweight.

◆

Harry Harris and Johnny Reagen were matched yesterday to fight at the Star Theater on Friday, Oct. 26. Reagen is the Brooklyn boxer who scored a victory over Clarence Forbes at Tattersall's a short time ago. Johnny will arrive in the city today and will second Sullivan in his fight against Yanger.

Con McVey in Trouble.

New York, Oct. 18.—[Special.]—Con McVey, who trained J. J. Corbett, and who played the prominent part in jumping into the ring and stopping the Corbett-Sharkey fight, was arrested here this morning charged with mayhem and held in $1,000 bonds to appear tomorrow. McVey is charged with assaulting Thomas Clinton, a porter at the Herald Square Hotel, and chewing his ear.

Gans to Fight Erne Here.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 18.—Al Herford, manager for Joe Gans, announced tonight that he had mailed to Chicago a draft for $1,000 as a forfeit for a six-round fight with Frank Erne in Chicago.

YANKEE RIDERS WIN AT SANDOWN.

Lester Reiff, Martin, and Maher One, Two, Three in Great Sapling Plate.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—At the first day's racing of the Sandown Park autumn meeting today the Sandown Foal Stakes of 2,000 sovereigns for 3-year-olds was won by Sir R. Affleck's bay colt Admiral Dewey. Lord Rosebery's colt Cateran Lad and Mr. Fairie's colt Mahdi were second and third respectively.

The Great Sapling Plate of 1,000 sovereigns (twenty-second year) was captured by Mr. Theobald's Volodyovski, with Lester Reiff in the saddle. J. D. Wardell's Armath, ridden by J. H. Martin, took second place, and Lord Melton, the property of J. Musker, with Maher up, was third.

In the race for the Hermitage Plate of 200 sovereigns, the winner to be sold by auction for 1,000 sovereigns, J. B. Duke's Stamina, ridden by Rigby, beat Lord William Beresford's Yumboe, ridden by "Johnnie" Reiff.

TO ACQUIT IN COLISEUM CASE.

Judge Tuley Announces Flaw in Indictment Will End Trial of Peasley and Johnson.

Charles M. Peasley and John J. Johnson, superintendent and foreman respectively of the work in progress on the Coliseum Building when it collapsed on Aug. 8, 1899, will by order of Judge Tuley be acquitted this morning of the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Frank Logan. The announcement that he would so instruct the jury was made by Judge Tuley on the adjournment of court last night. The Judge's action is the result of the claim made by Attorney Forrest that the indictment did not set forth the things the prosecution would have to prove in order to show the defendants guilty of criminal carelessness.

TO LICENSE SALE OF HORSEFLESH.

Health Department May Officially Recognize Trade in Equine Steaks.

FRAUDS ARE PRACTICED.

Investigation Shows Small Establishments Sell Meat Under False Name.

NECESSITY FOR INSPECTION.

Frauds practiced by meat dealers have resulted in an investigation of Chicago firms by the Health department and have led to the suggestion that the preparation of horseflesh for the market be recognized as an industry and be permitted under inspection and with license. Deception on the part of dealers who have placed the meat on the local market as beef has caused both the investigation and the attempt to regulate the trade.

Efforts to secure evidence against the firms have not succeeded thus far. The meat was traced into the establishment of one large Chicago firm, but when the health officials secured access to the barrels in which it had been packed a substitution of beef for the horse meat had been effected. The evidence was incomplete and the case was dropped. In addition to the large firm a number of smaller establishments have been suspected, upon what the health officials consider good grounds, of securing the meat and imposing it upon their customers as beef.

Big Profits for Dealers.

The meat purchased from the establishments which kill horses for the trade is secured at about two cents a pound. The profit to the dishonest dealer who retails the meat at the prices charged for beef is immense. There is one place in Archer avenue which is recognized by the Health department without any definite policy having been established for the regulation of such places in general. In the case of this dealer the department is assured that his trade is conducted honestly. He sells to the foreign market, principally in Sweden, and his meat is labeled plainly as horse meat.

Other establishments have sprung up in the city, and the dealers who conduct them are under the impression that their industry is carried on without the knowledge of the department. This supposition, the health officials declare, is not well based, and arrests may follow the discoverey that the meat is sold under a false name.

The trade has reached a stage at which Secretary Pritchard of the department considers that it should be licensed and recognized. The department then would place the firms under inspection, and would be in position to know what disposition was made of the meat. This suggestion has been made to Health Commissioner Reynolds, who now is considering it, being deterred from adopting it by the repugnance which is felt for the trade.

There is no market in Chicago for plainly labeled horse meat. Whatever sales are made, it is said, must be made by fraud, the meat being sold as beef. In this the laws are broken and the dealer becomes liable to prosecution. No offense is committed by the sale of the meat as horse flesh.

Believes Trade Should Be Licensed.

"I have been convinced that the best method of dealing with the situation is to license the dealers and permit them to operate under inspection," said Dr. Pritchard. "Then the city officials will know what becomes of the meat and whether it is diseased. I have visited Beagle's place in Archer avenue and have found the meat as sweet as beef. It is plainly labeled as horse meat, the label being burned into the head of the casks in which it is shipped. When it was discovered that firms in the city were obtaining meat and selling it as beef we traced a number of casks into a large firm. Before we could make an investigation and prove that the meat was in the barrels, the firm managed to substitute something else, and we did not have enough evidence to prosecute. The worst feature of the trade is that small dealers will secure horse meat early in the morning, and during the day will sell it for beef. Its use in sausages is common."

REFUSE TO PRODUCE THE BOOKS

Chicago Credit Company Men Must Show Reason Why They Should Not Be Punished for Contempt.

Weber and Kanter of the Chicago Credit company yesterday refused finally to bring their books into the investigation of the police Lieutenants' examination. They will be brought into Judge Dunne's court this morning to show reason why they should not be punished for contempt. The papers were served by Detective Stible of Central headquarters, after an all-night search through the city for the money lenders. He found them yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock in their office. At 11 o'clock Attorney Moritz Rosenthal announced to the court that his clients would not obey the summons.

Attorney Rosenthal filed a formal motion to vacate the order issuing the subpœna. The motion is based principally on the ground that the petition on which the order was entered sets up a state of facts which, if true, would tend to incriminate the defendants should their books be taken before the merit board. The motion also declares that the order of the court directing the production of the books is unconstitutional. The whole petition is finally objected to as being uncertain and loosely drawn.

While court proceedings are progressing to secure the records of the company the commission is hearing such evidence as can be secured to substantiate the charges against Attorney Loveless and the money lenders. Alderman Smulski and Lieutenant Jurs were witnesses yesterday.

Alderman Smulski related the circumstances attending a conversation he overheard between two sergeants of police in a restaurant just before the examination. He stated that he had not been deeply interested in what they said, but that he noticed one hand the other some papers.

REMEDY IN A JUSTICE COURT.

Judge Dunne Intimates That Policeman May Collect Salary from City Through Minor Tribunal.

Judge Dunne devoted several hours yesterday to the mandamus proceedings brought by Policeman John D. Connell to compel the city authorities to pay him for the months of June, August, and September. The case involves all the questions which have been raised in the other cases, where assignment of wages to loan brokers have deterred the city officials from paying policemen.

In the course of the afternoon Judge Dunne intimated that the policeman had a complete remedy in a hearing before a justice of the peace. The hearing will be resumed today.

STREETER WINS HIS CASE.

NORTH SHORE ARMY HELD NOT GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY.

Jury Quickly Reaches a Verdict That the Mariner Who Essayed to Establish "The District of Lake Michigan" Did Not Connive with His Followers to Resist the Police and Commit Murder, as Charged—Other Indictments Pending Against Men.

Captain George Wellington Streeter, "Judge" William H. Niles, and the six codefendants who had been on trial in Judge Smith's court on the charge of conspiracy to murder for the part they took in the occupation of the north shore on May 26, 1900, and their resistance to the Lincoln Park and city police, were acquitted by the jury yesterday morning.

The jury reached a verdict in three hours. The members were not convinced that Captain Streeter had planned with Niles the occupation of the north shore property by force of arms.

"When we found that Streeter was not in with Niles," said one of the jurors, "we had to agree that no conspiracy existed between him and the others, as charged in the indictment, and we had to find the defendants not guilty."

The first verdict read was the one acquitting Captain Streeter, who nodded his head as if the jury's finding was in accordance with his expectations. Then separate verdicts were read holding guiltless the other seven defendants, William H. Niles, Merton C. Burgess, Edward Eickelberg, Stephen J. Kavanaugh, Walter D. Eastman, Edward K. Pierson, and Samuel W. Scott.

Streeter said he would be busy for some time to come trying cases of malicious prosecution. Streeter and Niles were allowed to go on their former bonds, while the six other men were led back to jail.

Several other cases are pending against the men, and Assistant State's Attorney McEwen declared they would soon be put on trial.

GOOD YEAR FOR THE PULLMAN CO.

President's Report Shows Increased Value of Products and Rentals.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD.

Declare Usual Quarterly Dividend of $2 a Share from Net Earnings.

ELECT DIRECTORS FOR YEAR

Prosperity smiled upon the Pullman company last year. At the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday President Robert T. Lincoln submitted his report showing that the value of manufactured products of the car works for the year was $16,704,111, which, with the additon of rentals amounting to $322,159, gave a total of $17,026,270, against $13,628,257 for the previous year, the increase being $3,398,013.

Another evidence of good times was found in President Lincoln's report in the figures taken from the pay rolls. According to the report the average number of names on the pay rolls at Pullman for the year was 6,258. The wages paid amounted to $3,832,291, or an average of $612.38 for each person employed.

The total number of persons in the employ of the company in its manufacturing and operating departments was 16,066, and the wages paid during the year aggregated $8,483,132. The number of employés for the previous year was 13,617, and the wages paid during that year made a total of $6,996,283, or $1,486,849 less than the year just ended.

Owing to the absorption of the Wagner company during the year the comparisons are not understood to signify all that the figures imply. The acquisition of the other company, while increasing the rental and wages, is not regarded, however, as explaining in full the increased business of the company. Good times have, in the opinion of the stockholders, been largely responsible for the prosperous condition of the company.

Less than half a dozen stockholders were present at the meeting, but these represented over two-thirds of the capital stock. Directors for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Marshall Field,	Norman B. Ream,
J. W. Doane,	William K. Vanderbilt,
O. S. A. Sprague,	J. Pierpont Morgan,
Henry C. Hulbert,	Frederick W. Vanderbilt,
Henry R. Reed,	W. Seward Webb,
Robert T. Lincoln,

The usual quarterly dividend of $2 per share from net earnings was declared, payable on Nov. 15 to stockholders of record at close of business on Nov. 1. Transfer books close on Nov. 1 and reopen on Nov. 16, 1900.

Figures from Annual Report.

The annual report of President Lincoln shows that during the fiscal year ended July 31 contracts have been made continuing the operation of Pullman cars on the Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Burlington, and Seaboard Air Line railway systems. New contracts have been made with the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf, Buffalo, Rochester, and Pittsburg and Washington County railroads.

The number of passengers carried during the year was 7,752,876 and the number of miles run was 274,066,488. During the previous year the number of passengers carried was 6,015,818 and the number of miles run was 219,011,905. The year just ended, therefore, shows an increase of about 25 per cent in the number of passengers carried and about 29 per cent in the number of miles run, largely due to the acquisition of the Wagner business on Dec. 30, 1899.

The total mileage of railways covered by contracts for the operation of cars of the Pullman company is 158,503 miles.

Earnings, expenses, etc., for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1900, were as follows:

Total revenue		$15,022,858
Total expenses of operation	$6,112,654
Depreciation on cars disposed of, on cars rebuilt and revalued, and on cars in general	1,699,186
Proportion of net earnings of cars paid associated interests	587,543	8,399,382
Net earnings		6,623,476
Surplus brought forward		3,792,188
Dividends declared		5,519,720
Surplus		4,895,944
Capital stock		74,000,000
Net assets		78,895,944

Gross earnings at the end of last year were $11,478,930, while this year, with the Wagner company included, they are $15,022,858. The surplus at the end of last year was $2,295,465, as against $4,895,944 this year.

To Maintain Passenger Rates.

With a view of securing a strict maintenance of passenger rates in Western and Southwestern territory a Conference committee has been appointed consisting of James Charlton, chairman of the Transcontinental association; E. E. MacLeod, chairman of the Western Passenger association; and Charles M. Pratt, chairman of the Southwestern Passenger bureau, which is to inquire into all charges of rate-cutting made against any of the members. The committee has been given power to assess fines up to $1,000 at its discretion against any member found guilty of having any deal, direct or indirect, with any ticket broker.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway yesterday closed negotiations for the purchase of the Milwaukee and Superior railway, a line twenty-nine miles long, running from Granville to North Lake. The Milwaukee and Superior holds a charter which entitles it to build to Lake Superior. The road was built in 1889 and was originally known as the Milwaukee, Menominee Falls and Western railroad, and later was incorporated under its present name. The road is bonded for $100,000, the bonds being held by Daniel Wells Jr. of Milwaukee.

LAKE SHIPPING NEWS.

Freights and Charters.

CHICAGO—Grain freights were steady at 1¼ cents on corn, with five or six charters for next week's loading. Charters reported were: To Buffalo—Yuma, Penobscot, corn; Cranage, oats. To Midland—Pontiac, wheat, at 1¼ cents.

CLEVELAND, O.—Sixty cents is all that ore shippers will offer from the head of the lakes, and of course the grain trade holds forth no inducement. The Rockefeller steamers Siemens and Houghton are being laid up at Conneaut, and unless there is a big change in freight conditions a number of boats will be laid up before Nov. 1.

From President Wm. McKinley.

I am familiar with the merits of Ridpath's "History of the World," and can commend it to the scholar as well as to the plain people generally.

From Gen. Lew Wallace.

Indianapolis, Ind.

I have not words to sufficiently recommend Professor Ridpath's Historical Library, and am delighted to hear that a reduction of the price is being made, as the effect will be to bring the great work within the means of every reader.

A Common Sense Proposition.

This Ridpath's History offer is a thoroughly common-sense proposition. Here's a set of books that you ought to have in your home. It's one that you'll value as long as you live. It interests the children down to the three-year-old that asks forty thousand questions about its four thousand attractive pictures. It will teach you many things you don't know now, and will enable you to look up all the doubtful historical allusions that you come across in your newspaper and magazine reading. In fine, it will be a sort of household treasure.

You'll buy it sometime, anyhow. Here's a chance to get it for half what it will cost if you let this opportunity slip. And you can pay for it (if you like) at $3.00 a month.

Isn't it common sense to get it now?
